April 6, 1981
8:00 P.M.

The Common Council, of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time with Mayor Supernaw presiding.

Present: Councilmembers Timms, Roloff, Wood, Muma, Block and Porter. Absent: None.

The Minutes of the March 16, 1981 regular meeting were approved as presented in writing and so recorded in the Council Minutes Book.

A Public Hearing was held regarding the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission Order No. 69, Cogeneration and Small Power Productions, for the purpose of adopting rules pertaining to small power plants that wish to interconnect with the City of Charlevoix power distribution system. There being no comments from the General Public present, and since the City has not been approached by any small power plants wishing to interconnect with the City's power distribution system, no action was taken on this matter.

Moved by Councilwoman Roloff and supported by Councilman Porter to reappoint David Strewbridge, Barbara Fels and Jina Cross to the City Planning Commission for terms of three years each.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote:

Yeas: Councilmembers Timms, Roloff, Wood, Muma, Block and Porter. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Moved by Councilman Muma and supported by Councilman Wood that a Mutual Assistance Agreement between the City of Petoskey and City of Charlevoix Fire Departments, to be signed by the Mayor and the City Clerk, be adopted.

The month of April, 1981, was proclaimed Cancer Control Month by Mayor Supernaw.

Council was notified of the Michigan Mutual League Regional Meeting to be held on May 14, 1981 in Grayling.

The President of the Charlevoix Hangar Association addressed Council with a request that a taxiway be built at the City Airport as soon as possible. He expressed concern that should the City wait for funding in conjunction with the Airport Master Plan that an adequate taxiway may not be built for two or three years. Council agreed to wait until figures could be obtained from Granger Engineering, regarding cost and work involved, before proceeding with any action. He also questioned progress on VOR and was advised that the project is at a standstill due to lack of land available. Council agreed to consider the suggestion of forming a committee from the local flying community to advise on Airport matters.

A Resolution offered by Councilman Porter designating the City Manager as Council's representative in Union grievance procedure died for lack of support.

The following Resolution was offered and moved for its adoption by Councilman Muma and supported by Councilman Timms.

Resolution #(4-)

WHEREAS, it has been brought to our attention that the Bay Shore Radar Station may be relocated.

AND WHEREAS, we, the Common Council of the City of Charlevoix, strongly oppose this relocation,

AND WHEREAS, if the Ohio Air National Guard is allowed to make low level flights over our County this may help to keep the Bay Shore Radar Station in the Charlevoix County area.

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that this Council is not opposed to having the Ohio Air National Guard fly over Charlevoix County for a period of one year.

FURTHER BE IT RESOLVED, that a copy of this Resolution be sent to Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger, United States Senators Riegle and Levin, Congressman Robert Davis, Governor William Milliken, State Senator Irwin, and State Representatives Andrews, Ostling and Varnum.

Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote:

Yeas: Councilmembers Timms, Roloff, Wood, Muma, Block and Porter. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Council discussed a request by Weiks Aviation for a gasoline concession at the City Airport. A proposed site located directly across from the Flight Deck Inn was approved by all parties, with the understanding that the concession would have to be moved at some time in the future to allow for Airport expansion. Council agreed to approve the Weiks gas concession pending final approval by the FAA; and to send a letter to Weiks Aviation stating Council approval.

Moved by Councilman Wood and supported by Councilman Block to approve the Weiks Aviation request for a gasoline concession at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport, with the understanding that it must be moved at a future date, and pending final approval of the FAA.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmembers Timms, Roloff, Wood, Muma, Block and Porter. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmembers Timms, Roloff, Wood, Muma, Block and Porter. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Moved by Councilman Muma and supported by Councilman Block to approve the Supervisors and non-Union employees wage increase and fringe benefits at the same rate as the CWA Union Contract.

Middle School honor students participating in the subscription sales campaign are, front row, from the rear to front, Michelle North, Laura Reibel, Barbie Boss, Rusti Coolman, Bryan Swanson, Julie Balmer and Sandy Wanek; standing from rear to front are Marc Himebaugh, Ann Kroll, Dan Stublin, Kristin Holmes, Jill Raecke, Holly Unger, Joe Hayes, Jason Brindel, Kris Austin and Danielle Johnson. Chicago or Bust!!!

The sixth, seventh and eighth grade honor students at the Charlevoix Middle School need a lift! They are planning a field trip to Chicago and are in the process of raising funds to pay for it. To help their cause, the Charlevoix Courier has agreed to let the students keep half the money they make in selling new subscriptions to the Courier for their class trip. The sales campaign also represents a good bargain for prospective new subscribers. As of April 1, subscription prices went up to $11 a year for the immediate area and $15 per year elsewhere, but those who buy a new subscription from the honor students during the month of April will receive the Courier at last year's price of $10 a year in area and $13 a year elsewhere. The students are now canvassing the area. Those not reached at their home or business by the students, but who would like to start a new subscription, help the kids get to Chicago and save money at the same time, can contact honor student advisor Tom Sothard at the Charlevoix Middle School.

CHS Student Council sponsors blood drive

by JOY CHAPMAN and JULIE WEBER

The Charlevoix High School Student Council sponsored a blood drive on Monday, March 23 from 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. in the high school library.

The Petoskey American Red Cross for Blood Services asked the Student Council to sponsor the drive. The blood will be used for persons needing transfusions for surgery, auto accidents and other emergency uses.

Three registered nurses suplied by the American Red Cross actually took the blood. Nancy Fowler, R.N., was in charge of the collection procedure. The 25 student council members help set up a mini-hospital in the CHS library, provided refreshments for donors to relieve weakness and took medical histories.

In all, 47 students and faculty volunteered to give blood. Ten of them were turned away because of illness or other reasons. Twenty psychology earned extra credit by volunteering to give blood.

Donors had to be 18 years or older in order to give blood. Those under 17 could get a permission slip signed by their parents.

A federal regulation prohibits younger students from donating blood. Besides this regulation, there is a medical reason that younger students are not allowed to donate.

For example, a person who weighs 110 to 120 pounds contains only ten pints of blood. Donating one pint would mean taking to much blood from the system. This may affect younger students because their bodies are not mature enough to handle the blood loss. Such a loss would result in a feeling of weakness for several days, and, in some students, dizziness.

This is caused by the loss of plasma, proteins and antibodies that the blood contains. Some students, on the other hand, would not be affected at all.

Amy Sanborn

Amy Sanborn will compete as finalist in state teenage pageant

by KIM RUSSELL

Every school has its students with special talents. Here at Charlevoix High School, during the last couple of months, the Flash has featured several of these talented young people. Still, the list of them continues. Another such student is Amy Sanborn.

Amy has been accepted as a state finalist in the 1981 Miss Michigan National Teenager Pageant. The Flash interviewed her to find out about the pageant and her personal feelings about it.

FLASH: Tell us a little about yourself.

AMY: My birthday is March 25, 1965. I lived in Lansing for nine years, then in Haslett (15 miles east of Lansing) for six years, then I moved to Charlevoix at the end of last January. I have one brother, Frank, who is 18 years old and a senior at Haslett High, and I have one sister, Becky, who is almost 20 and is a computer operator. She lives in Lansing. My father is an engineer in design computations at Oldsmobile in Lansing.

FLASH: How did you decide to enter the pageant?

AMY: I saw an ad in a magazine for information on local and state pageants so I wrote to them and they sent me an application. The application asked questions about my grades, hobbies, school and civic organizations that I participate in and what my goals in life are. Then I sent in the application and a color picture. About a month later I received a letter saying "Congratulations, you have been chosen as a state finalist for the 1981 Miss Michigan National Teenager Pageant!" They chose 100 out of 1,500 girls who applied to be state finalists.

FLASH: When does the pageant take place?

AMY: The pageant is May 1, 2 and 3 and will be held at the Plymouth Hilton Inn near Detroit.

FLASH: What activites are involved in the pageant and what will you be judged in?

AMY: The pageant will be judged one third on poise and personality, one third on personal appearance and one third on scholastic and civic achievements. For help on poise, everyone must write, memorize and recite a 100-word speech on the pageant theme, "What is Right about America". There will be evening gown judging but no swimsuit or talent competition.

FLASH: What prizes are involved?

AMY: The winner of the Michigan pageant will receive a $500 cash scholarship, a full Barbizon modeling scholarship and an all expense paid trip to the national finals in Atlanta, Georgia to compete with 51 other winners from every state, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico for the title of Miss National Teenager for 1982. Eckerd College in St. Petersburg, Florida will award a $4,000 tuition scholarship to the state winner and a $20,000 tuition scholarship to the national winner. the national winner also receives her own Miss National Teenager car. Other prizes include trophies and tiaras.

I am very excited about being in the pageant and proud that I was chosen to be in it. It should be a lot of fun and a good experience. I would like to come home a winner but as long as it's fun, I'll be happy.

Changing of the Seasons

by BONNIE JOHNSON

Throughout the darkness, winds scatter across the land, rushing around houses and hiding in corners.

Mournful howls ring out upon the night, clashing with the sounds of debris floating by.

Boards of old barns whistle and snap in the cold breeze.

Animals breath in the cold night air, searching for something they cannot find.

Long beams of light travel down dusty roads while rocks chip the bottom of the car.

Branches of trees slap against windows, awakening those sleeping within.

The clock ticks restlessly upon the mantle, filling the quiet of the house.

Long, dark shadows shiver in the darkness, hiding secret life in their folds.

Woods sway with perfect rhythm, like dark waves upon the ocean's surface.

Streams flow quickly under crystals of ice, bearing small organisms of life to come.

Winter's guard had slept and spring had crept in, bringing its warmth and hope to the sleeping life.

Scattered showers of snow cascade down from the sky, challenging spring's new hold.

Then the fight is over, the battle has been won and spring hovers above in its glory.

Winter still stands by in defiance, then bowing its head, backs out in defeat.

The next morning a spring sun rises, raising life up on its feet again.

Driver training to start on June 10

by STEVE SCHMIDT

Driver's training, sponsored by the Charlevoix Public Schools, gets underway June 10 at the high school.

Classes will be held for three weeks from 8 to 10 a.m.

One hundred seventy-five students are expected to sign up for the course which will require six hours of behind the wheel driving per applicant.

Last year, the cost to put a student on the road was $200. This included the cost of gas, teacher, insurance, car, etc. The school system picked up the tab except for $30 which came from the government. This grant money is expected to increase to $45 this year.

Cars were borrowed from local car dealers for a $3,200 payment.

Five teachers from Charlevoix High School will take part in the course this year as instructors. The teachers had to apply earlier this year and be approved by the Board of Education. Last year the teachers were each paid $2,247. Most of that amount was for 180 hours of work in each teacher's class.

The total cost of driver education during 1980 was $18,942. With rising inflation, this cost is expected to escalate this year.

NHS plans induction

by TERESA NOIROT

On May 8, the National Honor Society will be holding a spring induction for all eligible tenth, eleventh and twelfth graders in Charlevoix High School.

To be eligible, a student must maintain a 3.3 grade point average or better. He must also possess commendable character, leadership and service. Anyone who is interested must write a letter to Mr. Taylor, the National Honor Society advisor, and must also send letters of recommendation.

Currently the NHS is involved in tutoring the Laotians as part of their services. They have also set aside the month of May as Charlevoix Beautification Month. The students will offer their services to the community for such things as washing windows, raking, etc.

If any business or organization would like to use these services, they are asked to contact Mr. Taylor at 547-6491 or Vicki Falting at 547-9138 by April 25. The NHS has indicated that they are very anxious to be of service to the community and are hoping to get the opportunity.

Square dance

by BRIDGET NOIROT

It's that time of year again. Each year at CHS the freshmen take part in a square dancing unit conducted by Mrs. Marie Osterburg.

"At first the kids are self conscious but after we tell them that nobody will laugh at them and that we are all learning together, they seem to enjoy it," says Mrs. Osterburg.

"We do this because square dancing is part of American Life and everybody should have a chance to try it," she said.

Peer group counseling: students helping students

by LINDA BOOCHER

Who would you rather go to when you have a problem? Either of your parents? Your counselor? Your best friend? Most likely you would rather go to your friend or at least someone near your age.

Three years ago Charlevoix High School developed a program called Peer Group Counseling headed by high school counselor Gayle Kaczynski. Peer Group Counseling is an organization which involves students counseling students. Students recommended by their teachers in the tenth through twelfth grades counsel and help kids in the high school, Middle School, K-5 and St. Mary's School.

Whether it be tutoring or helping with family problems, the peer group counselors are there for the kids to confide in.

The students participating in the program trained for two weeks to get in touch with their own feelings. Advice-giving and its drawbacks were discussed. By the end of their training period, they saw themselves not only as a tutor but as a listener, goal setter and a person to offer alternatives instead of answers.

An evaluation of the program showed behavior problems dissipating and the number of suspension cases decreased. Both peer group counselors and those counseled developed strength and mature attitudes from the experience.

The program originated in March, 1971, in Palo Alto, California. The peer group counselors represented human resources that are frequently overlooked.

The drug scene of the '70s promoted counseling involving young people who were tied up in drugs. Reformed drug users counseled kids who needed help.

Today, schools are using peer groups in many other areas besides drug abuse.

Four local musicians form versatile new band

by COLLEEN SMITH

Charlevoix High School has a talented group of musicians who have formed their own band called Eclipse.

Its members consist of Bob Best as lead vocalist, guitarist, instrumentalist and occasional flute or saxaphone player; Jim Boggs on keyboard; Shawn McLelland on bass guitar and Doug Way on drums. Jim and Shawn also do back-up singing. Larry Reising is the sound technician.

Jim and Bob started playing as a duo in restaurants and the response was good so they expanded to a full band. They recruited Doug on drums then Shawn on bass guitar. Their debut was at Antrim Dells at a wedding reception.

Formerly known as Wildwood, they changed their name to Eclipse because they needed a more upbeat name. Jim Boggs stated that, "Eclipse is the type of music we play."

Eclipse plays a wide variety of music to please every audience. They play everything from country to rock, including the Top 40, old time rock and polkas. They dress according to the occasion.

The band will be recording a number of 45 records in the month of April at the Charlevoix Music Shop.

Eclipse will be providing the music for the Ellsworth prom on April 18. They also perform for wedding receptions, school dances and private parties. They charge $250 to $300 for four hours but exceptions may be made for private parties.

Anyone wishing to contact Eclipse about performing should call Bob Best at 547-5360.

Employability skills topic of workshop

by KATIE CLOCK

Last week, Charlevoix High School juniors attended an "Employability Skills Workshop" given in coordination with the Traverse City based Youth Employment Services and CHS counselors Gayle Kaczynski and Charles Bentley.

Representatives of Youth Employment Services Dennis Aenis and Nancy Miller taught students the proper way to fill out an application, a resume and a personal data sheet.

Also covered was how not to behave at an interview. This was stressed in mock interviews in which counselors and Aenis performed.

During the week of May 5, the ninth graders will be given a "Career Exploration Workshop" which will correlate students' interests with career possibilities. This workshop is also sponsored by the Youth Employment Services.

Most growth in the county is in townships

by PEG OHLE

The population of Charlevoix County increased from 16,541 to 19,460, or 17.6 percent, as the Census Bureau figures it.

That means 3,119 more people. Where are they all living? What areas of the County have experienced the greatest growth?

Perhaps not surprising is the fact that the greatest growth has occurred outside the three cities of Charlevoix, East Jordan, and Boyne City. It is in the rural townships in all sections of the County that newcomers and movers have decided to make their homes.

A study of census figures for 1970 and 1980 shows some remarkable population growth patterns:

Hayes Township, up 85.6 percent; Wilson Township, up 82.2 percent; Norwood Township, up 63.1 percent; Hudson Township, up 56.6 percent; Chandler Township, up 42.7 percent; St. James Township, up 43.5 percent.

Peaine Township, up 36.2 percent; Marion Township, up 36.9 percent; Evangeline Township, up 36.6 percent; Charlevoix Township, up 34.9 percent; Bay Township, up 26.1 percent; Eveline Township, up 24.7 percent; South Arm Township, up 21.5 percent; Melrose Township, up 11.8 percent; Boyne City, up 6.6 percent; East Jordan, up 4.3 percent; and the City of Charlevoix, down 9 percent.

One might question the figure for the City of Charlevoix when one remembers that most of the condominiums in Charlevoix were built after 1970. Because these condominiums are almost all "second homes", most owners were not counted as residents of Charlevoix in the census.

However, in another compilation of figures, the City of Charlevoix is at the top of the list. During 1980, five permits for new residential construction in the City were issued by the Charlevoix County Department of Building Inspection.

These included the permit for the Senior Citizens Housing project ($1,259,812), two for multiple housing units ($115,8000 and $188,257), and two for single family residences ($51,643 and $35,468), for total construction costs of $1,650,180, the highest for any city or township in the County.

How is the growth of Charlevoix County holding up? An indication may be obtained from the number of building permits for new residences issued for each township and city during 1980:

Hayes Township, 18 permits, $753,533 costs; Bay Township, 15 permits, $525,756 costs; Marion Township, 14 permits, $482,671 costs; Melrose Township, 13 permits, $504,300 costs; Boyne City, 11 permits, $500,316 costs; South Arm Township, nine permits, $272,536 costs.

Peaine Township, eight permits, $200,150 costs; Evangeline Township, seven permits, $413,615 costs; Boyne Valley Township, six permits, $175,519 costs; Eveline Township, six permits, $253,656 costs; Charlevoix Township, five permits, $362,947 costs; City of Charlevoix, five permits, $1,650,180 costs; Wilson Township, five permits, $138,583 costs; East Jordan, four permits, $112,100 costs; Hudson Township, four permits, $233,334 costs; St. James Township, four permits, $157,461 costs; Norwood Township, three permits, $87,866 costs; Chandler Township, no permits for new residential construction.

All of this adds up to 137 units of new housing costing $6,814,523 for Charlevoix County during 1980.

It will be noted that although Hayes Township apparently is still experiencing the greatest growth

"You and Your Home"

"You and Your Home" is presented this week as a joint effort by the Charlevoix Courier and the Charlevoix County Press. It is an annual project by Charlevoix County's two weekly newspapers to commemorate Private Property Week which, this year, is being recognized from April 19 through April 25.

Because of the broad impact on the county of the housing industry, and the many trades and services associated with it, the Courier and County Press join forces each year to provide as complete and informative a section as possible.

This year, contributors to the editorial content of "You and Your Home" include Dave Knight and Peg Ohle of the Courier and Trish Wright, Kathy Johnson and Barbara Cruden of the County Press.

The Home Improvement Loan THAT LETS YOU SAVE SOME FOR THE LITTLE THINGS!!!

When you finance a home improvement at many banks, there's no reason to pay the loan off early. No incentive to make extra payments. (In fact, many banks impose a penalty for practicing such sensible money habits.)

Precisely the opposite is true at Michigan National.

With our Simple Interest Home Improvement Loan, you can save a substantial amount of money over other loans. Because interest is assessed only on your unpaid balance. So every time you make a payment a little early, you save a little interest. Every time you pay a little extra, you save a little more.

Obviously, over the full term of a Simple Interest Loan, you can realize significant savings over the cost of many other loans. And our Simple Interest Loans can be used to finance a wide variety of other needs, too.

The Simple Interest Loan. Think of it as interest off for good behavior.

Condominiums are catching on

BY TRISH WRIGHT

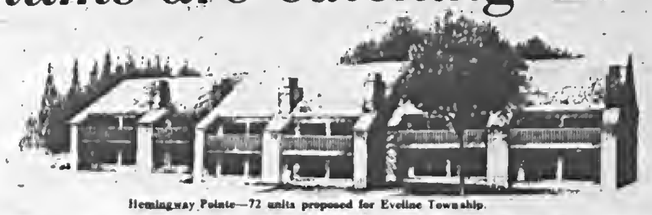
Individual ownership of a dwelling in a multi-unit structure is not a new concept for homeowners. However, the condominium craze is catching on as never before in Northern Michigan and has many city councils and township boards buzzing about the rezoning requests and zoning ordinances necessary for some condominium projects.

Charlevoix County's most recent condominium proposal, Hemingway Pointe Club, is now being considered by the Eveline Township board. The 72-unit project will be on a 170 acre parcel—with 130 acres being considered for rezoning to R-3 for condominiums.

According to Art Seaborne, general partner of Landmark Development Company, the R-3 zoning request should not present a problem since no multiple zoning exists in the township. "It's a reasonable request, especially when the pluses are considered," said Seaborne who plans to live in Hemingway Pointe.

"Our development will be situated on the largest amount of acreage that exists for any condominium project from Traverse City to Mackinaw, and we have the lowest density project, 72 living units on 170 acres of land—and 140 acres of that will probably become a nature preserve." The Hemingway Pointe Club is located on a point jutting out into Lake Charlevoix. It was once the home of George Hemingway who established a tree farm on the property.

The Harborage—108 units under construction.



Hemingway Pointe—72 units proposed for Eveline Township.

"We want to preserve as much of the land sa possible and protect anything of historical significance there," said Seaborne.

Seaborne added that the project does comply with the restrictive ordinance language but the county planning commission has advised the township board to zone it as a Planned Unit Development (P.U.D.).

"I see the P.U.D. as an extension of the existing zoning ordinance but it allows the planners and developers more creativity with design as well as more restrictions for zoning," said Seaborne.

Should rezoning be approved by the board this month, construction of the development will begin shortly afterward. Although construction of the 72 units will span four or five years, Seaborne hopes that 18 units will be build during this summer and fall.

"A tennis court, beach house and swimming pool are also planned for completion during the first phase," added Seaborne: "I believe in cluster development with shared walls, common areas and maintenance. There is an ever-increasing number of people who have owned large homes and no longer wish to devote as much time to the maintenance of them."

The Hemingway Pointe Club units will have redwood exteriors and approsimately 2,000 square feet of living apace. A condominiumized marina is also slated for the project but must first meet DNR specifications.

"We don't espect the marina to materialize until nest year," said Seaborne. "Our plan is to keep the integrity of the project completely private. The 45 or 50 dock slips will be available only to our condominium owners."

Another condominium project, in the Boyne City area The Harborage, plans to condominiumize dock space but will allow some slips for boat owners not living in the project. According to Dave Smith of Lake Associates, the firm developing the Harborage, approximately 206 slips will be available over the nest few years.

"This will be the first new marina that is condominiumized in Michigan. There are some esisting marinas that are in the process of converting. We have a permit to take reservations for the slips now," said Smith, "but we don't espect the permit necessary to begin construction until the end of May."

"We haven't established a price for the slips. Engineering bids will determine that," Smith said.

Popularity of cluster type living in and around Lake Charlevoix is evidenced by the number of people on the waiting list for condos.

The Harborage already has 85 paid reservations for the 108 housing units. The first building which houses eight units will be ready for occupancy by late spring. "I think that some people will be moving in by late May," said Smith.

Cluster housing can preserve open spaces

BY BARBARA CRUDEN

"We are blessed to be living in an area so physically attractive," saya Rick Smith, well-known builder and developer in Charlevoix County. "But we can soon lose what is ao attractive if we pnt up atructurea indiscriminantly."

The present trend of population increase is projected to grow here while the rest of Michigan and other midwestern states are espected to have a population loss.

While developers are often considered enemies of the land by environmentalista, it is really one of their inventions that offers a sensible solution to the problem.

It is called cluster housing. A more amiable name for it might be estate-living, because it satisfies the desire for large acreage but dilutes the expense.

Cluster housing groups dwelling units into one area on, say, 20 acres instead of dotting them over the same land in two-acre squares.

This way an unbroken portion of the land is left as a private park or natural wilderness or whatever the owners agree on to preserve streams, wildlife, and the peace of nature.

In 1975 Rick Smith and his brother David were honored by the Charlevoix Soil Conservation District for exhibiting good land use. The award wsa given in connection with their Wildwood cluster housing development near Walloon Lake.

Cluster housing can vary, Smith pointa out. It can be composed of dwelling assembled as one building but designed to look individual, with privacy indoors and private outdoor areas. It can also be separate units grouped together a few feet apart or even 20 feet apart. But always the idea is to group toward one corner of the land to leave the rest nnistruded.

Smith notes that busy people are less likely to be self-sufficient. "They may have the pioneering spirit but not the pioneering skills," he says.

In cluster housing there are neighbors to share the driveway snow removal, the espenses of obtaining electricity and water. Their children have playmates.

Realtors agree that often people move np north sure that they want 10 acres and solitude, but eventually find they have never even walked as far as the boundaries of their land. They have constantly increasing taxes, and not that mucb pleasure in solitude.

What they really want is privacy, a beautiful view, and not so much responsibility. Sounds just like the cluster housing concept.

But the concept must be realized properly, Smith emphasizes. Proper density is essential. The idea is lost if 20 families are crowded into one-half acres of the 10-20 acrea, although developers in other regions of the United States have turned the concept into cameo cities, clustering dwellings, community center, and shopping in the middle of the rural setting.

Often the term cluster housing sounds as though it would crowd out dreams of something like one's own little barn and horses. Not so. On the other hand, it makes a tennis court or golf course possible through this sharing of land ownership.

Although not yet a familiar concept in Northern Michigan's development pattern, cluster housing has elsewhere been found desirable and profitable. As Smith says, "It is a good blend of a good idea - and profit - making."

Smith, like all students of land use planning, is awaze of the disadvantagea of strip development - building homea along a roadside, stringing out services expensively and inefficiently, and cutting up the flow of traffic. Equally disadvantageous are the grid-pattern developmenta which carve up the land, creating little suburbs in the country.

Nearly everyone who comes to northern Michigan would like to be the last one. "Let's not have any more development" is the familiar cry. Yet, as Smith says, "Growth is inevitable anywhere that is desirable."

However, he adds, "We are so wsateful of our land! We have got to make more careful use of it...Working with it instead of against it...respecting this resource."

Usury laws: Adequate or restrictive?

by DAVE KNIGHT

Usury laws, the constraints the State of Michigan places upon interest rates in several areas of business, have become a special subject of concern among home builders, sellers, financial institutions and buyers.

At present, specific interest is focused on ceilings of 11 percent on land contracts and seven percent on second mortgages.

The ceilings are part of a sunset law that is due to expire on December 31, 1981 if no action is taken in the State Legislature. Deliberation is currentiy under way, however, in legislative committees on a total interest package.

Indications are that even if the package, a comprehensive bill that will address interest limits in all areas of business, is not put together by the end of the year, the extension of the present usury ceilings will be all but automatic.

The basic position among home builders and sellers is that land contracts and second mortgages are two of the more attractive methods of financing homes right now and that the present usury ceilings are too restrictive to these methods.

Says Terry Vanderveen of the Michigan Association of Realtors, "Our feeling is that if the ceilings aree raised on the interest rates, the buyer and seller will have more flexibility in working out the best way of financing a home."

The selling process begins with the seller determining how much he must have for the property. With the 11 percent and seven percent ceilings on second mortgages and land contracts respectively, the seller will have a tendency to raise the purchase price to make up for the income lost from the restricted interest rates.

"These figures have been set arbitrarily," said Vanderveen, "And for today's economic situation, most of our members feel they are arbitrarily too

Realtors question neccessity of ceilings on interest rates

Vanderveen added, however, that not all MAR members agree.

Lending institutions are, naturally, just as interested in usury legislation as the builders but at least one local banker indicated some ambivalence toward a dramatic change in interest rate ceilings such as the total elimination of the ceilings.

"I am somewhat of a protectionist," said Lou Hollow, president of the First State Bank in Charlevoix, "I cannot see doing away with all ceilings, letting the rates be solely pegged to the prime rate and letting them rise to whatever point the market will bear. On the way to that point, there will be a time at which the rates will just be too high for people to afford homes. And people have to have housing."

Hollow said that be favors extension of the usury law this year but that some form of relief from Lansing is still crucial to a housing industry in Michigan that is in dire trouble.

He indicated that the Michigan Bankers Association has been working closely with legislators and that "some very imaginative stuff is coming out."

The area of seller financing is getting a lot of attention lately as more and more ways are found to work around the constraints of high interest rates. To ease the burden of a 16 percent interest rate for a buyer, for instance, a builder may agree to partially finance the mortgage making the effective lending rate to the buyer as low as 11 or 12 percent.

Specific recommendations have been made by the MAR to raise the maximum rates for both second mortgages and land contracts to 15 percent even though, said Vanderveen, many MAR members would like to see the ceilings eliminated completely.

He explained, "If the limits are raised to, say, 15 percent, we are afraid that everyone will automatically use that arbitrary figure and that all rates will rise to that amount. If the limits are abolished altogether, there will be more freedom and flexibility to use the rate most workable for the situation which, perhaps, may well be below 15 percent in some cases."

"A change in the usury limits," said Vanderveen, "Is just as desirable for the consumer as it is for the realtor."

Population trends

in the County, the overall County growth pattern seems to be changing. For instance, Bay Township, which was below the average in population growth from 1970 to 1980, last year was second in number of new housing starts.

As far as building costs are concerned, it should be mentioned here that the Department of Building Inspection building cost figures do not reflect the actual cost of the building project, but are the product of a formula used statewide upon which the Department bases the costs of building permits. The formula is based on the size of the building but does not include the costs of plumbing, heating, and electrical work.

Making your home energy efficient

If you hesitate to make your home more energy efficient because of the expense, think about it again. Improving your home in this way is an investment with one of the highest returns imaginable. Considering the savings in fuel, tax credits and appreciation on the value of your house, you may be able to realize a 300 percent profit.

About half of an average home energy bill is for heating and cooling. By adding insulation to your attic these bills can be reduced from 30 to 50 percent. Even more money can be saved by insulating ceilings with cold spaces above them such as an attached garage, floors above cold spaces such as an open porch and exterior walls. In addition, three-fourths of the cost of insulation is recoverable when you sell your home.

Your well-insulated home still allows some heat to escape. Plastic storm windows can cut heat loss up to 32 percent. Glass storm windows can reduce heat loss up to 50 percent, saving you about $87 in gas heating bills each year. Your summer electricity bills will also be lower, since storm windows keep your home cooler reducing the need for air conditioning.

You can save about three percent on your heating bills by plugging up "leaks" in your home with weatherstripping. Entrance doors, window sashes and attic and basement doors should be weatherstripped on all sides and on top and bottom.

Drafts can also be sealed out by caulking windows and doors where the frame meets the wall, around outdoor faucets and cracks in exterior walls. Be sure to caulk wherever there is a building joint, for example, where your porch joins your house.

Insulation, storm windows and doors, weatherstripping and caulking qualify for the energy tax credit. This credit is limited to 15 percent of the first $2,000 spent on the improvements and their installation. If you spent $2,650 on making your home more energy efficient, you could claim the maximum credit of $300.

If you financed a home improvement loan of $2,000 over two years at an annual percentage rate of 17 percent, and you are in the 40 percent tax bracket, you could save about $150 in taxes by deducting your total finance charge of $373 on your federal income tax return.

The first year after the improvements were made, you would save $350 in energy costs; the second year, $315 and you would have third year savings of $284. You've already cut your intial investment to nearly half with energy savings of $949. Adding your $300 tax credit and your $150 income tax saving, you've cut your initial investment from $2,650 to $1,251.

Should you decide to then sell the house, you benefit even more. A house worth $60,000 this year could appreciate to $75,000 in three years. Because of the improved energy efficiency, it could appreciate an additional five percent, or $3,750, which is three times your actual energy related expenses of $1,251. Your return is 300 percent.

No matter which energy conservation methods are chosen, you almost can't afford not to improve your home's energy efficiency.

Investing in land can be risky but profitable

In the investment game, owning undeveloped land could bring satisfaction, security and profit to you several years down the road or it could leave you with less money than when you started. As a game of chance, keep in mind that your money will be tied up when you buy the land, as real estate is not very liquid (not easily converted to cash.)

Don't assume all land will appreciate. How much a piece of land is worth depends on many factors such as how suitable the land is for commercial development. Is there a potential for development in the future? How many years will it take?

How much you profit from your land will depend primarily on how a buyer can use the land. Land outside the suburbs and within urban areas generally carry a higher rate of risk than land in the suburbs.

Before investing in land, the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants says do some thorough research. Consider the costs involved, cash down payment, mortgage payments, property taxes, maintenance costs, tax aspects and a realtor's commission when you sell. The best place to look for land possibilities is where you are most familiar with property values and real estate development. This includes land where you live, work or vacation.

Investing in land

Land investment often requires a greater initial cash outlay than other types of investments with other expenses involved, too, such as property taxes and mortgage interest. Consider your federal income tax return as these may affect your deductions.

High returns and leverage may be realized from real estate investments by paying as little as possible with your own resources and as much as you can with borrowed money.

If you buy five acres at $30,000, you may contribute $10,000 in cash and have a $20,000 mortgage. Should you be able to sell the property at $50,000, there would be $30,000 remaining after repaying the mortgage. Then, subtracting the initial $10,000 in cash that you paid, your profit before taxes would be $20,000.

Tax benefits are a major consideration with any investment and the CPAs remind you that investing in raw land is not treated as a tax shelter. The advantage to owning land is that profits on the sale is viewed as capital gains. When the property is held for one year or less, the gain is considered to be short-term and is fully taxed as ordinary income. When owned for more than one year the gain is long-term with only 40 percent of any gain from the sale taxable.

Money may be made from your land while you hold onto it by putting it to use. Renting it as pasture, selling timber rights or charging hunters or campers for their use of the land are some common ideas. You may even plan it so the sale of portions of your acreage will finance the building of a vacation or retirement home.

Plan carefully before building your own home

With the price of houses zooming out of the average person's reach, more and more Americans are building their own homes. According to the U.S. Bureau of the Census, one out of five new homes started in 1979 and the first half of 1980 were by owner/builders. Predictions are that number will be one in four by 1983.

Before building a home, be sure to calculate all the real and hidden costs as accurately as possible. Most homes end up costing much more than the owners initially budgeted and they usually take longer than expected to build.

If you hire an architect and a contractor, and do no work yourself, you won't save a dime. In fact, you'll probably spend more than you would for an existing home or a developer-built house. If you act as your own contractor you'll probably save 15 to 20 percent. If you do it all yourself, you could save more than 50 percent.

One of the bigger financial considerations should be the resale potential of the house. This is one reason it makes more sense not to cut corners on the land. It's better to build a less expensive house in a prime location and expand the house later as your budget allows.

Before starting to build, you'll need money for site development and a foundation; permits and fees; hookup of water, sewer and utilities (or drilling a well) and delivery of the materials to the site.

Other costs to consider include plumbing, heating, air conditioning and finishing costs. Be very detailed with estimates, for the cost of appliances, molding, paint and wallpaper, floor finishing, light switches and fixtures, all of which can add up.

The cost of financing is an important part of the total cost. You can get money by selling or refinancing your present home, borrowing from friends and relatives or building only as cash becomes available to buy materials. For this type of project, there are other lenders besides banks. A real estate broker might be a good source.

Remember that lenders won't give you a mortgage on something that is only in your head. Also, they like to consider the resale value before giving you a loan and since they don't know if you'll succeed with your house, or if anyone else would want to buy it if you do, you may have some problems.

You'll have the most success getting your construction loan if you have sufficient assets, a good credit rating and sufficient income. If you hire a contractor with a known track record, you'll also have a better chance. Without sufficient assets and an experienced contractor, you'll have the most trouble.

When looking for financing, be aware that both interest rates and terms of repayment vary. The repayment terms may be a more important consideration, so do some comparison shopping.

Remember even if you save only 20 percent by building your own house, that reduction in price over the period of the mortgage, such as 25 to 30 years, will amount to substantial interest savings and lower monthly payments. Also, the house could appreciate at the same rate as comparable houses in the area which may have cost much more than yours.

Another benefit of building your own home is that you can deduct the sales tax on building materials on your federal income tax return. If you spend $25,000 for lumber and all the other building supplies, and your sales tax is 5 percent, you can deduct $1,250 from your income tax. To get this tax break, however, you must purchase the materials yourself. If you are working with a contractor, be sure to buy the materials, then turn them over to your contractor.

The hows and whys of a solar greenhouse

A solar greenhouse utilizes passive methods for collection, storage and distribution of the sun's heat. Passive solar heating systems have no mechanical or moving parts and rely only on the natural properties of moving air to heat a house.

Active systems, on the other hand, do use mechanical methods; the black, rectangular boxes seen sometimes on the roofs of houses are typical of active systems.

Passive solar works on the simple principle that sun shining through south windows will warm the interior of a house just as efficiently as a car left in the sun with the windows rolled up.

A solar greenhouse should face south or up to 15 degrees east or west of south. The south wall is double glazing and part of the roof can be glazed, too. The east and west sides are often glass as well but the greenhouse is more efficient if those sides are solid walls.

Heat form the sun enters the glass and soaks into masonry thermal mass areas where its stored until the temperature of the greenhouse drops below the temperature of the mass. When this happens, the heat is released through radiation. Typical components of a thermal mass to store the beat include an insulated bed of rock sand under the floor which might consist of a concrete slab and masonry flooring. Containers of water can also be placed in the greenhouse to store heat.

At the same time the sun is depositing its heat into the thermal mass, it's also warming the air in the greenhouse; this air can be used immediately to warm the house. Open sliding glass doors wil bring the heat inside or several vents can be installed near the ceiling and floor of the greenhouse. The heat will rise, flow out the top vents, travel north through the house, fall as it cools and then return to the greenhouse through the lower vents. This type of airflow is called convection.

At night, the greenhouse quickly loses its beat through the glass so some sort of movable insulation like a thermal shutter or shade should be installed to cover the glass. If that is not possible, the greenhouse should be closed off tightly from the rest of the house at night so it doesn't pull warm air from the house out the glass, too.

Rileys experiment with solar greenhouse

The solar greenhouse concept has been put to practical use in Charlevoix by Dr. and Mrs. Art Riley on their home at 405 Mercer Blvd. The Riley's greenhouse consists of three insulated walls with the fourth wall made of double-paned glass. To avoid the cost of custom glass cutting, Riley used almost all standard sized glass panes used for sliding glass doors. The greenhouse adapted well to the 50-year old house and has the dual purpose of joining the house and the garage. Riley calculates that, in the dead of winter in November and December, Charlevoix receives on the average only 80 hours of sunlight a month so he says, "If it works here, it can work anyplace!"

The solar greenhouse has made an attractive addition to the Riley home which was built 50 years ago as a summer cottage.

Plants are already flourishing in the Riley's solar greenhouse, even though it is yet completely finished. Minutes of sunlight can boost the temperature up to 75 degrees and higher on a winter day.

Landscaping trends are changing

by DAVE KNIGHT

One of the most essential considerations for any prospective propery owner is landscape.

For the new home builder, a landscape design can be incorporated with the architectural plans to develop a living arrangement fitted precisely to the owner's desires.

For the owner of an existing home, landscaping can be an effective tool to improve the aesthetic impact of the property and to upgrade the value of the home.

Laodscapiog ia especially important in Northwestern Michigan where the natural beauty of the environment is one of the major reasons people come to live here. The key to developing an attractive property in this area is being able to incorporate the natural environment with the overall plan.

It was not always thus.

Early landscape trends in this area were rooted in the urban environment from which many of the first summer home builders and year round residents came.

Trees were planted tightly around homes. Shrubs were of a variety that oeeded constaot maintenance. Exotic species were introduced to give some homes a showplace effect.

These are all practices that are generally avoided by the modern landscaper today, according to Trevor Wood, landscape architect for Site Planning Development, Inc. of Charlevoix.

"Simplicity is the word today," said Wood, "Planting a minimum of varieties of species, siting them practically and selecting ones that are most economically feasible to maintain."

Interestingly, much of the traditional landscaping done for the older homes of the area reflects an economic picture of the time that is much different than today's.

When some of the elaborate shrubbery planting was done, for example, in Charlevoix's Belvidere Club, the property owners could afford gardeners to trim it regularly and keep it maintained the way it was designed to be.

These days, few families anywhere can afford the luxury of a full time gardener. This is why, says Wood, the modern landscaper chooses species that enhance the property in their natural form and that need a minimum of extra care or maintenance.

Planning is also done on the basis of how a species will look when it is mature; not when it is planted.

"The most common mistake people make is planting too close to the house," said Wood, "That cute little yew looks fine right next to the house when it is planted but people forget that it is going to grow into a 50-foot tree and then there are problems."

Of the trends in modern landscaping that have become evident in recent years, one of the most popular for home owners is the development of a total landscape plan as opposed to a piecemeal process.

"We are getting more and more people interested in drawing up a comprehensive plan for their property," said Wood, "It may cost a little more at the outset but in the long run the results are much better."

Wood cites the typical landscaping in Florida as a good example of lack of planning. With so many varieties of species to choose from in that climate, says Wood, people have a tendency to plant many different kinds of trees and shrubs and the result is "a mess".

For homeowners in this area, Wood recommends planting three to five varieties of species at the most. And the types of species that work best are the indigenous ones, or, those native to the area.

Exotic species, those not native to the area, should be avoided, says Wood, except in cases where they are use for a special effect. For one thing they are sometimes not tried and tested on a long term basis and, while they may seem to grow well at first, they may not mature as expected.

"What the nursery says is a new and improved variety of tree or shrub may be new but it is not always improved," said Wood.

Another consideration is that they do not blend as well with the natural environment of the area.

"Simplicity is one of the toughest things to keep to in doing a plan but it still brings the best results," said Wood. He added that 90 percent of the trees and shrubbery recommended by his firm are of the idigenous species.

In creating a plan, the landscape architect is most effective when be can be involved from the beginning. Therefore, it is easier and more effective to involve a landscape plan in a new home than to apply it later. Sometimes unforeseen problems for new homes such as drainage or protection from the elements can be prevented by landscape planning incorporated into the architectural process.

Says Wood, "Landscape planning at an early stage can be the proverbial 'ounce of prevention'."

Revision of county's sanitary code might help make more building sites available

by PEG OHLE

There seems to be a move afoot in northern Michigan to change existing Sanitary Codes so that more property will be labeled suitable for building purposes.

In Emmet County, a committee of ten men from different occupational backgrounds recently completed a study of that county's Sanitary Code and presented a new, revised Code to the County Board of Commissioners for consideration.

Several members of the Emmet County committee appeared before the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners in April, at the invitation of the Charlevoix Board, to report on how they propose to change the Emmet County Sanitary Code.

Since both Charlevoix and Emmet Counties are part of District Health Department No. 3, their Sanitary Codes are similar, and changes recommended for one might conceivably be recommended for the other.

Several real estate persons, as well as builders and engineers, were were also present at the April meeting of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners. Some of them expressed a desire that a committee be formed in Charlevoix County to study the Charlevoix Sanitary Code and make recommendations for its revisions.

Gerald M. Chase, administrator of District Health Department No. 3, who was also in attendance, strongly objected to this suggestion and asked that the proposed new code for Emmet County be thoroughly studied and acted upon before anything is done in Charlevoix County.

"Frankly, that proposed code is unenforceable", he told the group.

However, there was still sentiment among some listeners for the formation of such a committee.

John Campbell of Site Planning Development indicated he would like to see a committee appointed, saying he saw no reason why Charlevoix County had to wait for Emmet County to solve its problems.

Wayne Boss, an engineer, said that in all of his engineering studies he had not found scientific bases for many of the restrictions in the present Sanitary Code.

Realtor Bill Carey told the group that the people of Charlevoix County had been "trusting and trustful of the Health Department and have not found much to criticize about the Code." However, he, too, said he believes a committee of "interested and concerned local citizens" should be formed to consider revision of the County Code to dovetail with the Codes in Emmet, Antrim, and Otsego Counties (which constitute District Health Department No. 3).

The Emmet County study committee was appointed by the Emmet County Board of Commissioners. If there is to be one in Charlevoix County, presumably it would be appointed by the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners.

As part of their presentation in Charlevoix County, the Emmet County committee showed pictures of many satisfactory on-site elevated absorption system mounds in Cheboygan County which they noted would not be acceptable in Emmet County. The committee is proposing that they be permitted under certain circumstances.

The committee is also recommending the approval of aerobic systems and holding tanks, neither of which are provided for in the present Sanitary Codes.

Some other recommendations include the use of filled sites for absorption systems, higher water tables and longer perc periods.

It will probably take some time, but the growing number of complaints from landowners that they can't use their land "the way they want to", may bring about these and other changes in the various County Sanitary Codes.

As one landowner put it, "We are just as concerned as any environmentalist about our area, but it has been proven in other places that we could use a lot more of our land without hurting anything."

Environmentalists, nature lovers, and health scientists may feel otherwise, and there may even be a classic confrontation between those "for change" and those "against change" of the Sanitary Codes.

"The Brand New Old House Catalogue" provides 3,000 new and useful products, services and suppliers for restoring, decorating, and furnishing the period house—from early American to 1930s modern.

There are 10 different headings for suppliers and products including furniture, paints and paper, lighting, fabrics, hardware and heating and cooking. Among the items listed under those headings are wood moldings and ornamentation, door and window casings, flooring information and stenciling, candleholders, antique lighting fixtures and ornamental light posts.

Two of the more unique items to help finish off that special old house are acid-etched mirrors, and weather vanes. There are two listings under weather vanes. The motifs are hand-hammered of pure copper, beaten down into the old molds.

Or to add a certain polish to your old house you may want an early 19th century whale oil lamp with oil container insert and wick enclosed in a brass front. The globe is included in the selling price of just $40.

These items and more can be found in the 22 pages of new old house items. Published by Warner Books, the book retails for $9.95.

An artist's rendering of the Northwest Marine planned development on the former Foster Boat Company property.

Marina development planned for Foster Boat Company site

by DAVE KNIGHT

With optimism that final approvals are forthcoming soon from federal, state and local governmental levels, Northwest Marine, Inc. of Charlevoix is progressing at flank speed with plans for a 214-slip marina complex on Lake Charlevoix at Ferry Avenue and Eaton St.

Included in the project are plans to renovate the former Foster Boat Works building on the property into a restaurant, various shops and possibly even an indoor raquetball-health club facility.

Dennis Heck, who is a partner in Northwest Marine with Brad Lundy of Ann Arbor, said last week that dredging of Lake Charlevoix in the boat slip area could begin in a matter of weeks if all the final approvals are obtained.

Final blessings are yet to be granted by the City Planning Commission, the Department of Natural Resources and the Army Corps of Engineers. Heck said that he has received no major complaints from any of those agencies and that he expects the project to experience no delays.

Boat slips at the proposed marina will be condominium owned which means that, like a residential condominium plan, each slip owner will be a member of the association and will pay jointly for some common services.

According to Heck, condominium ownership of boat slips is a concept that has been successful in other parts of the country, notably Florida, but one that is relatively new to this area. Among the 214 boat stalls in the plan, there are small ones for boats up to 34 feet long and large stalls for boats up to 44 feet. There is also a flexibility in the plan to accomodate larger vessels.

Said Heck, "One of the main reasons we came up with this idea was the current shortage of dock space in Charlevoix and the increasing number of people with boats, both local and visiting, who who need the docking facilities."

He pointed out that boating is one of Charlevoix's most important summer activites and that the Northwest Marine project could provide a significant boost to the whole local economy.

"Besides drawing more vacationing boaters to spend their money to Charlevoix," said Heck, "Bear in mind that this will also mean over 200 more tax bases for the city."

Another advantage to the project, said Heck, was that it could ease pressure on downtown dock space by providing facilities on Lake Charlevoix for local boat owners. That, he said, would then free more municipal docks for transient boaters who sometimes don't stay in town because the city docks are full.

If all goes according to plan, the first phase of the project, 66 boat stalls, will be completed by mid-July. Reservations are already being taken. Dredging for the stalls will be to at least 11 feet to accomodate large keeled sailing vessels.

The rest of the stalls and the renovation of the shore buildings will follow in later stages. Completion of the project is now set for the fall of 1982.

The most challenging phase of the plan is the rejuvenation of the massive Foster Boat Works building that has been used only as a warehouse for over 30 years. Plans call for a restaurant on the third floor and such shops as a party store, bakery, deli and marine accessories store on the first floor. Use of the second floor is undecided as yet. All three floors will be open to the lake-facing side which will be enclosed by a huge glass atrium.

Although nothing definite has been confirmed, Heck has been approached by more than one party interested in turning part of the north wing of the building into an indoor raquetball, health spa facility. The far end of the north wing will be a private bath house for boat slip owners and will be the only part of the building not open to the public.

The architect for the project is R.F. Wilde of Traverse City. Heck said that when he showed architects and engineers the interior of the building, built in the early part of the century, they were amazed by the sturdiness and character of the structure. It's frame is comprised of huge, hand-hewn timbers that have lost none of their integrity over the years, said Heck.

"This project should create a good calling card for Charlevoix," said Heck. "It is being developed specifically for the boaters and when it is done we want the city to be proud of it."

No schoolmillage increase asked

by FRAN MARTIN

Voters of the Charlevoix School District will be asked to renew a 15.25 mill tax levy for one year in the upcoming June 8 school election.

The decision to ask for a renewal rather than increased millage was made at the regular meeting of the Charlevoix Board of Education Monday night.

In discussing the issue, Supt. Gordon W. VanWieren said that in these uncertain times, it is felt that "We can operate on the revenue that the 15.25 mills will generate and offer the same program."

He went on to say "We don't know what is going to happen. At this point, we don't know what we can plan on."

Vincent Olach, business manager, said that if Governor William Milliken's tax proposal which will come to a vote of the people on May 19 is approved, the entire format for school finance will be changed. In the past, schools have been financed by local taxes levied on the State Equalized Valuation of the School District plus state aid if the district was eligible. The Charlevoix School District has not qualified for state aid for many years.

The new format, under the governor's proposal, will combine State Equalized Valuation and tax revenue but it will place a cap of no more than six percent of tax monies that will be available, regardless of what S.E.V. might be.

For instance, even if S.E.V. should increase as much as 20 percent, only six percent in tax revenue over the previous year would be available.

There will be no restriction on the growth of the S.E.V. The restriction will be on the tax revenue that is available. The remaining monies will come from the state.

Olach added that the governor's proposal is complex and that there is no one answer that applies to everyone.

It was announced at the meeting that Dave Moyer, boys varsity basketball coach, had been relieved of his duties and that the position is being posted.

Tom LaBlance, who was present at the meeting, said that since this was an extra-curricular activity, he thought it might be a good idea to evaluate a coach's performance every year. However, no action was taken on the suggestion.

The naming of a girls' junior varsity basketball coach for the 1981 season was tabled after the vote to hire Van Green, who was recommended for the post, resulted in a 2-2 tie with two members absent. Ardeth Wieland said she felt girls this age needed a woman in the position while Steve Smith indicated that varsity coach Henry Wagner's recommendation should be followed since he was in charge of the program.

A request for an overnight trip on May 1 and 2 by the speech team was approved.

Carol Elliot gave a detailed report on the elementary academically talented program for which children are being tested. She also reported on the elementary counseling service available to the children in the school. She added that teachers were very cooperative in making the program a success.

The next meeting is scheduled for May 4.

The board adjourned to executive session to discuss the dismissal of Middle School principal Vincent Chew with a delegation of supporters who had obtained Chew's permission in writing to discuss the matter with the board.

Castle Farms to face scrutiny

by DAVE KNIGHT

A sizeable crowd is expected to attend the meeting of the Marion Township Board of Trustees Tuesday evening at which Castle Farms Music Theatre will be the main item on the agenda.

Growing concern on the part of law enforcement officials and Marion Township residents over rock concerts held at Castle Farms has prompted a recent initiative to regulate more closely the outdoor concerts.

About 20 township residents met last week to discuss possible actions the township might take to place tighter controls on the concerts which have attracted crowds of from 5,000 to 15,000 people in recent years.

Increased incidents of unruly crowd behavior, traffic congestion, drug and alcohol use and property damage have been cited by some township residents as major reasons for closer township supervision of the concerts.

Said a member of the group that is pressing for more restrictions who asked to remain anonymous, "We are not out to shut down the concerts. We are only concerned about the safety and welfare of both the people who attend the concerts and that of Marion Township residents."

The individual continued, "In the past, the people who live in the township have not shown their full support for the sheriff and the township board. At this week's meeting we are hoping for a good turnout to show the board and the sheriff that we are behind them all the way. This is not just Marion Township's problem; it is a county-wide problem because so many county personnel are involved, it is affecting law enforcement in all parts of the county."

Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater has sent a letter to members of the Marion Township board making several recommendations relating to the concerts.

Included are suggestions to fence in the parking lots used for the concerts, post more "No Parking" signs on secondary roads in the area of Castle Farms, limit the number of people attending concerts to 7,000, generate additional funds for law enforcement costs by placing a special tax on ticket sales, require uniformed personnel to patrol parking areas more closely, train concert employees in traffic control techniques to assist Sheriff's department and police officers, look into banning the consumption of alcoholic beverages on the concert grounds and implement more crowd control, specifically in the stage area.

A copy of Lasater's letter was also sent to Castle Farms owner Arthur Reibel. Both Lasater and Reibel are expected to attend Tuesday's meeting. Also attending will be representatives of the District Health Department and the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners.

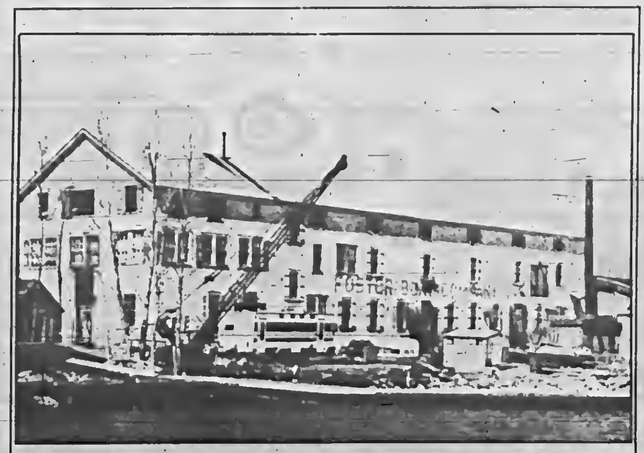
The meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. at the Marion Township Hall on Marion Center Road.

Downtown trees in process of being planted

Work began this week on the planting of trees in downtown Charlevoix. As of Monday, 41 locations along Bridge Street sidewalks in the central business district had been selected and marked.

The cutting of the cement was also under way Monday.

The trees have been purchased as part of a voluntary beautification project by city business people.



Though now peeling and gray with age, the former Foster Boat Company building, above, at the foot of Eaton St. has a history as colorful as any Charlevoix landmark.

It was built in the early 1900s with massive, hand-hewn beams joined by wooden dowels. For years it was used by the Ferry Seed Company as a warehouse. The firm enlisted several area farmers to grow seed, some of which was stored, some shipped by way of the railroad siding that is still there and some germinated in the smaller side buildings.

In the fall of 1940, Harry Foster, a downstate boat builder, bought the building and went into production of small, flat-bottomed, plywood rowboats, compression-seamed runabouts, small sailboats and canvas covered canoes. Charles Duerr, a current Charlevoix resident, remembers the time well, he was associated with Foster and arrived in Charlevoix when the building was purchased.

As World War II heated up, government contracts filtered steadily out of Washington and the Foster Boat Company was duly awarded a Navy contract for building 33-foot seaplane rearming boats, low-slung vessels designed to transport bombs and torpedoes to waiting seaplanes. They later supplied 27-foot companion crafts and 17-foot line handling boats for the Navy. Their expertise in canvas even landed them a contract for portable arctic shelters.

The company's greatest moment came when they supplied hundreds of small, high powered crafts to the Army Corps of Engineers at the time of the famous Battle of the Bulge. The boats were used to get troops quickly across the Rhine in one of the most crucial operations of the war. At peak production during the war years, up to 175 people were employed by the Foster Boat Company which also had plants on Charlevoix's north side and in Petoskey.

After the war, the company turned back to manufacturing civilian boats but things were not the same. Many more "back alley" operations were flooding the market with small boats and, in the sparsely populated Charlevoix area, there was little chance of doing much of a volume business. By about 1947 Foster had lost interest and he sold out to Robert Schleman who owned a South Bend tool and die firm.

After a brief time during which recreational equipment such as bows, arrows and fiberglass fishing rods were manufactured there, the building became a wareouse. It has been used for various storage purposes ever since.

'Oliver', with local talent, to dedicate McCune Art Center

by SARA GAY DAMMANN

"A crew of rollicking ragamuffins" won the hearts of New York theatre critics in 1963 when "Oliver" opened on Broadway.

Bill Casper of Boyne City stars as Oliver.

It's a safe bet a similar gang of bedraggled orphans and joyfully sly pickpocketing urchins will win Northern Michigan hearts when "Oliver" opens May 7 at the Virginia McCune Community Arts Center in Petoskey.

For seven performances, (May 7,8,9, 12, 14 and 16) "Oliver", starring Bill Casper of Boyne City, backed by a chorus which includes Rusty Coolman, Wendy Voisin, F.L. Dammann, Trina Wiser and Mike and Lara Stargardt of Charlevoix, as well as some 20 other enthusiastic performers, will shake the rafters of the newly opened art center.

The actors, all local, were selected by audition in early February. Twenty-six youngsters from Boyne City, Charlevoix, Harbor Springs and Petoskey were chosen.

Since then, they and the adult leads have been in constant rehearsal, putting together the full length Broadway version of "Oliver".

The production of "Oliver" inaugurates the Virginia McCune Community Arts Center housed in the renovated former Methodist Church next to the Petoskey Public Library. The center has been a joint project of the Crooked Tree Arts Council (Charlevoix and Emmet Counties) and the Little Traverse Civic Theatre, which has been staging musicals and dramas using local talent for about 40 years.

Bill Casper of Boyne City who stars as Oliver has been impressing his directors with his vocal talent and acting ability. In one scene, as Fagin stalks him, he backs up stage, frightened and confused.

"They told me I gotta look scared, so I thought about when I used to get scared when my dad got mad at me."

Casper, a sixth grade student, has been in school productions, sings for his church and performed at Art Train last year but this is his first experience with a full scale Broadway-type production.

Fagin, the delightfully evil tutor of pickpockets, will be played by Petoskey disc jockey (WPZ) Bob Kevolan who has previously worked with the Young Americans on three national tours.

Nancy, whose torch song "As Long As He Needs Me" became a popular hit in the '60s, is portrayed by Debbi Zoerhof who last appeared in the Little Traverse Civic Theatre production of "Real Inspector Hound".

Opposite her is the evil Bill Sykes, acted by her real-life husband, dentist, Dr. William Zoerhof, whose theatrical experience includes working with Karl Malden and playing Mercutio in Romeo and Juliet.

Artful Dodger, the chief young pickpocket who befriends Oliver, is Gary Albert, 18, of Harbor Springs, who has performed in many LTCT productions. Next year Albert enters Michigan State University to study the performing arts.

The sanctimonious Mr. Bumble is Bob Snideman, of Harbor Springs, a member of the singing Keelhaulers; his cohort, Widow Corney, is Maxine Parshall, Top-in-a-bee, another experienced member of the local group; and the Undertaker Sowerberry and his wife are Mike Ridley, Indian River, and Karen Coon, Petoskey.

Sue Fisher, who has contributed much toward the establishing of the new art center, is the director. Ms. Fisher, who has directed everything from Shakespeare to Pinter, is a graduate from the University of Michigan with a degree in theatre and vocal music.

Ms. Fisher, Jan Smith of Petoskey, coordinating director, and Carolyn Woods of Good Hart, choral director, have been putting the pieces of the production together with particular emphasis on the children's parts.

Most of the kids who play the orphans and pickpockets are like the six from Charlevoix. They have dreamed of singing and acting, have had little experience beyond school plays and are thriving on the excitement of staging a major musical.

As Mike Stargardt, 10, a Charlevoix fourth grader commented, "I think this is going to make older kids who see it want to join the theatre group."

Trina Wiser sees her role as an orphan in "Oliver" as the beginning of her career. The 11-year old fifth grader is studying voice with Fran Tollas of Charlevoix.

Wendy Voisin was one of a handful of children chosen to be one of Fagin's pickpockets. She doesn't know about careers yet but she loves the singing and dancing she is doing now.

City Attorney post remains unfilled

The position of Charlevoix City Attorney remains unfilled this week following action by the City Council Monday night to table the appointment.

The council was told that three local attorneys, Michael Gibbons, Robert Hoffman, both former city attorneys, and Roy Hayes have expressed interest in the job which was left vacant last week following the sudden death of Frank Hoffman.

Council members expressed a desire to solicit more information from the three before making an appointment.

In other action, the council:

-Tabled a request by the city volunteer firemen to raise their pay from $5 to $7 per run and the hourly rate to $5 an hour from $4.50.

-Declined to allow a city crew get involved with the downtown tree planting program until more is known about how much work the crew would have to do.

-Appointed the National Bank of Detroit as paying agent for the water tower bonds with the stipulation that surcharges, out-of-pocket costs and other such fees be deleted from the agreement with the bank.

-Learned from City Manager James Brinker that a study of potential hydroelectric power in which Charlevoix was involved with several other cities has been dropped due to the conclusion that hydroelectric power generation would not be cost effective.

How would Proposal A affect Charlevoix County? In some ways, a lot!

When Charlevoix County residents go to the polls on May 19, they will have a chance to vote for something they have wanted for a long time – a cut in their property taxes.

Called "Proposal A", the proposed amendment would "Reduce property taxes, reduce city income taxes, limit growth of property tax revenues, return additional sales tax to local governments and schools, and give state lottery profits to school aid fund."

There it is, in black and white in the very first paragraph of the Proposal: "Reduce by 50 percent homestead property taxes used for operating schools and local governments. Reduction limited to $1,400 in 1981 and changed yearly as home values change..;;

–So far, so good.

The second paragraph notes that the Proposal would "Reduce by 50 percent local individual income taxes on the first $40,000 of taxable income."

–There are no local income taxes in Charlevoix County, so disregard this.

Paragraph three: "Make state return ') local governments all funds lost by above reductions."

–SOUNDS all right.

Paragraph four explains that the Proposal would "Limit yearly property tax revenue growth by six percent by property type unless raised by local voters."

–So we get to vote on raising our taxes!

Paragraph five takes a different turn. It notes that the Proposal would :'Raise sales tax from 4 percent to 5.5 percent. Raise must be returned to local governments and schools."

–Well, the money has to come from somewhere.

In paragraph six, the Proposal would "Let farms and forests be assessed at use value."

–Makes sense.

Paragraph seven reflects a popular idea: "Give state lottery profits to school aid."

–There are those who remember this was the promise when the lottery came into being.

The 50 percent cut in property taxes would be achieved by taking 50 percent off the top of the tax bill for operating millage, according to Joan Blanchard County Equalization Director.

If a piece of property had a State Equalized Value of $20,000 last year and the operating millage rate was 36 mills, the taxpayer was billed $720 for operating taxes. If that property is again valued at $20,000 this year, the tax bill would be cut 50 percent and the taxpayer would be billed for $360 in taxes under Proposal A.

All of this is over-simplified, of course. Millage would have to be cut for schools, township operations, and county operations on an equitable basis before the "cut" millage figure is arrived at.

The State must return to the local governments – schools, townships, and the county, the $360 which they did not receive locally because of the tax cut. That sounds all right, but what if the State runs out of money. What if they say, "We're short right now. We'll try to pay up by the middle of the summer." There isn't much the Charlevoix Schools or Marion Township, or Charlevoix County can do about it. Also, something seems to happen to money that is left with one agency to forward to another agency. That "safekeeping" is expensive. The money seems to shrink with it.

When the city or township or city or school system or county needs money beyond the 6 percent increase permitted by Proposal A, the voters can go to the polls and vote it in, presumably is any amount. It is conceivable that by this method, the whole 50 percent cut provided for in Proposal A could be wiped out in a few years, and the taxpayer would still be left with the increased sales tax.

Figuring it one way, the increase in sales tax from 4 percent to 5.3 percent is a 37½ percent raise. This means that if you buy a new automobile for $6,800 after July 3, the date Proposal A would become effective, the sales tax would be $374. Before Proposal A, the sales tax would be $272.

The whole mechanism of Proposal A means a lot more work for city and township assessors, as well as the County Equalization Department, according to Mrs. Blanchard. One requirement is that before May 1, all local assessors must send out Homestead Affidavits to every owner of residential and agricultural property in their taxing units. There are 16,625 such pieces of property in the county, Mrs. Blanchard says. This will cost $2,927.70 just for postage – and must be done before Proposal A is even vote on.

In the final analysis, the important thing for taxpayers seems to be "the bottom line", at least for the first year. The Michigan Association of Counties cites two examples:

	A	B
50 percent operating tax cut	$225	$1,012
Minus current credits under circuit breaker	90	615
	$135	$397
New circuit breaker	15	218
New tax cut	$150	$615
Minus Sales tax increase	60	150
Net benefit	$90	$465

This was all that was left of a car belonging to Patrick Nilligan that was involved in a fiery two-car collision early Friday morning. The car was being driven south on U.S. 31 at about 5:30 a.m. near the Lexalite plant when it ran out of gas and was parked on the side of the road. Nilligan and Albert Salisbury, a passenger, started walking south leaving three other passengers in the car. The car was then struck by a car driven by Charles Borths of Charlevoix, pushed several yards and burst into flames. Two passengers in the Nilligan car, Guy Salisbury, 60, of Grawn and Raymond Slaisbury, 48, of Maple City, were taken to the Charlevoix Area Hospital by ambulance. Another pasenger, Thomas W. Edenburg, 33, Lake Ann, was uninjured. Borths was taken to the hospital, treated and released. Charlevoix city firemen were called to the scene to put the fire out.

Band students fare well

Charlevoix Middle School students entered in the annual District 11 MSBOA Junior High Solo and Ensemble Festival at Central Lake recently did well, their director Terry Isenbarger reports.

Five of the eight entries received the top 1 rating and three others received 11 ratings.

Eighth grade instrumentalists receiving 1 ratings are Peter Plagge with a trombone solo, Masako Regier and Mary Camillero, flut duet, and Cheryl Harnett and Cheryl Aull, clarinet duet.

Michelle North and Lisa Seymour, with a flute duet, and Dan Staublin with a drum solo, won 1 ratings among seventh graders.

Receiving 11 ratings were Lisa Seymour, flute solo; Dan Kelly, cornet solo, and Tim Plagge and Tara McClelland, trumpet duet.

Junior High students do not advance to state competition, Isenbarger explained.

Mesquite at B.I.

Students at the Beaver Island Community School got a treat April 7 when the U.S.C.G. Cutter Mesquite arrived in St. James harbor and hosted them on board for a tour and question and answer session.

Under the direction of Lt. Commander Warren Miller, the crew entertained a total of 75 students and staff.

Students rank

Four of Charlevoix's 13 entries in the Michigan Industrial Arts Fair at Grand Rapids recently, ranked among the top 10 in the state in their respective grade levels and categories, their instructors have announced.

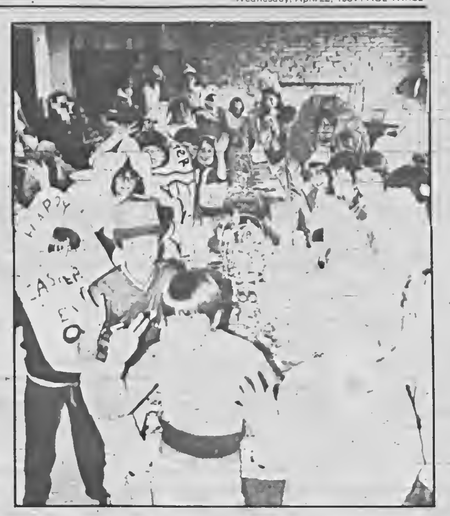
Among the seven Middle School entries, Doug Sloan won a ninth place ribbon with his entry, a terrier head carved of walnut, his instructor, Jerry Puhl said.

Three of the six high school entries who had also qualified for state competition by winning first or second place ribbons at the regional level were Fred Mielke, who received a fifth place ribbon, and Greg Andrick, a seventh place for their architectural drawings. Both are sophomores.

Lyle Kiesler, a freshman, was awarded a fifth place ribbon for his copper tooled picture.

Their instructor is John Mills.

Both Mills and Puhl said competition at the state level was very tough.



Patients at the Grandvue Medical Care Facility were treated to an Easter Parade and party Friday by the East Jordan fifth grade class of Dee Ann Rothenberger and piano accompanist Margaret Thompson. Thirty-three students toured the facility and received eggs colored by the patients. The parade was one of many recent activities held at the facility including Bingo, craft work, church services, item instruction, outdoor recreation parties, bowling, puzzles and others.

Bergmann Center sets dedication

Now that clients of the Bergmann Center are comfortably settled in their new home on Martin Road, they are inviting the public to an Open House on Sunday, April 26, from 2 to 5 p.m.

The Open House will feature a dedication program at 3 p.m. and tours of the facility during the afternoon.

Bergmann Center provides employment and training for mentally and physically handicapped persons in the area. It is a non-profit organization, incorporated in 1962 as the Charlevoix Association for Retarded Children, but later re-named to honor Lillian Bergmann, a driving force in the establishment and maintenance of the program.

The Bergmann program is designed to provide gainful employment and supervised training for clients in the hope that they may eventually be able to join the competitive job market. It is supported by the Michigan Department of Mental Health through the Northern Michigan Community Health Services Board and the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners.

The Attractions, above, the popular band that played for the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce Spring Dinner Dance last year, will return for this year's dinner dance planned for May 9 at the Belvidere Club casino. Phil Kluczynski is chairman of this year's event and the Grey Gables Inn will cater a prime rib dinner. Tickets are available at the Chamber of Commerce office on Bridge St. or from any of the Board of Directors.

Death notice

Mrs. Mable Stutzman, 90, longtime resident of Marion Township, died early Monday at the Grandvue Medical Care Facility. Funeral arrangements are pending at the Winchester Funeral Home. Further details will appear next week.

Humane Society to sponsor course

Charlevoix County Humane Society will sponsor a 10-week dog obedience course scheduled to begin with registration at the Charlevoix K-5 school on Division Ave. at 7 p.m. Tuesday, May 5.

Those planning to register for the class are asked not to bring their animals to the initial meeting.

Animals must be inoculated for rabies, distemper, and parvo virus in order to be enrolled in the obedience course.

Chuck Robinson, assisted by his wife, Vicki, will be the instructor.

Details of the course, which will cost $20, will be outlined at the first meeting.

Opinion

Knight on the Town
Money talks

by Dave Knight

As the curtain to another summer season is poised to go up, many business people in the area are as nervous as first-time actors waiting in the wings.

It has been a long, long time since Labor Day. The dismal stretch of winterspring since an untimely February thaw has fostered a rare but potent strain of cabin fever. March and April are the No Man's Land of the calendar year in these parts.

Not much to do except sit around and read the Courier

Fact is, though, that beneath a rippling of uncertainty on the surface, there lately has been strong current of optimism and confidence in Charlevoix running deep below. Those who have been wintering afar should be pleasantly surprised when they return and see that the reports of this town's winter time dormancy have been greatly exagerated.

Some big things are happening, make no doubt about it.

Item: A 114-foot, 400-passenger restaurant-party boat is on its way to a Round Lake berth from the East Coast. When it is put into operation early in the season by the Beaver Island Boat Company, it will be the only attraction of its kind in Northern Michigan and a real draw for the Charlevoix area.

Item: Plans are being finalized for the complete renovation of the Foster Boat Works property on Lake Charlevoix into a marina complex that will add 214 boat slips to the city's total plus a restaurant-shopping area complex in what is now an eyesore. The Charlevoix summer economy depends largely on its accomodations for boaters which have been stretched in recent years. This project will do much to provide more and better such accomodations.

Item: The former Fochtman dealership building on Bridge St. has been purchased by a local firm, Midwest International. Although specific plans have not been announced, Charlevoixans should welcome almost any good use of the property which has been, during its vacancy, a poor reflection on the health of the central business district.

Item: Downtown merchants, most of whom are owners of small businesses with limited capital to throw around, have united behind a plan to beautify the central city by purchasing and planting trees along the downtown sidewalks. Criticisms and logistical complications aside for the moment, the fact that the initiative was taken and the dollars pledged indicates a strong desire on the part of the business community to make Charlevoix competitive as a retail center. It sure beats sitting around and moping about sagging receipts.

What all this activity tells me is that a lot of people who should know what they are doing have strong confidence in Charlevoix. Enough confidence to invest some pretty good sums in the city's future.

I don't trust Pollyannas any more than the next guy and my glasses have no rose-colored tint whatsoever. But money talks and the message is that good things are happening in Charlevoix because some progressive-minded people are convinced that better times are just around the corner.

Clockwise
Gone with the Citronella

by Bob Clock

I sat around the house all weekend with a deep foreboding that "an era is" ending," although I couldn't whip up a great deal of sympathy among other members of the family.

The era I'm talking about has to do with Pepsodent Tooth Powder, which I have just capitalized out of respect for the dead.

I am afraid they aren't making Pepsodent Tooth Powder any longer; at least I haven't been able to find any recently. I have checked the dentifrice shelves in all of my favorite emporiums for several weeks now, and I am sorry to report that Pepsodent Tooth Powder has gone the way of Italian Balm and Citronella, which I haven't been able to find either.

There was a time not too many years ago when dentifrice manufacturers produced their compounds in two forms: paste and powder. Paste was easier to use, but I was always convinced powder did a better job. At least radio commercials urged us to "clean your teeth the way dentists do — with powder."

In recent years, however, powder apparently has fallen into disfavor and one by one manufacturers have retrenched until only one name brand — Pepsodent — remained.

Which was OK with me, because that's all I've ever used ever since the Pepsodent people sponsored a radio program called "Amos and Andy" in the 1930's, 40's and early 50's. Sometimes they would even send you free samples of Pepsodent Tooth Powder if you were nice enough to drop them a line.

For a while they included free maps of Harlem with their free samples of tooth powder so you could follow the fortunes of Amos, Andy, the Kingfish, Lightning and Madame Queen while lying flat on your belly under the radio.

Even though "Amos and Andy" fell victim to the age of racial sensitivity that enveloped the United States in the 1960's, Pepsodent Tooth Powder continued to flourish until just recently, when the clinically white can with the red lettering suddenly disappeared from all of the nooks and crannies of my favorite supermarkets and drug stores.

Of course, I have been "making do" with tubed tooth paste, but it's not the same. A can of tooth powder costs no more than a tube of tooth paste, but it lasts three times as long. And I was sufficiently well brain-washed by the old radio commercials to believe that it really does a better job.

Although my last can of Pepsodent Tooth Powder is now empty, it is still resting on a shelf in the medicine cabinet. I refuse to throw it out until I find another full one.

But I have an awful feeling it is going to become a museum piece, right up there with the Italian Balm dispenser and the Citronella bottle.

Out of the Blue

Centimeters, grams and liters...
Why do we yet resist 'em--
And fiddle with inches, pounds and pints
In a half-asymmetric system?

Letter to the President draws a reply

On January 28, 1981, the Charlevoix County State Bank sent the following letter, with a clipping of an advertisement run by the bank that week in the Courier and a tape of a WKHQ radio ad, to President Ronald W. Reagan care of the White House:

Dear Mr. President:

We thought you would be pleased to see the enclosed ad announcing our INAUGURAL SPECIAL which ran in the local paper this week, namely the Charlevoix Courier. Also enclosed is a tape which is being used on WKHQ Radio, Charlevoix.

We sincerely hope, in some small way, programs such as this will help you in your pledge to restore soundness to the economy of this great country. Our small bank in Northern Michigan cannot do it alone but many banded together under your leadership can surely get the job done.

Over the past 86 years, our bank has assisted countless business people and industries with financial counseling and loans to help better our community and we shall continue to do so with campaigns such as this. We know you are aware of the problems encountered by these people with the high interest rates and unemployment these past years.

Our Board of Directors, Officers and Staff wish you the very best during your term as President of the United States. We sincererly hope that you and your staff will strive to make this nation more economically sound and we pledge our support to help in every way possible.

Sincerely,
G.R. Wellman
President

The following reply was recently received:

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON
April 8, 1981

Dear Mr. Wellman:

Thank you very much for your public-spirited response to my plan for economic recovery. I am delighted that many Americans have expressed their willingness to cooperate. Acting now and acting together we will succeed in revitalizing this nation we all love. Your expression of support and your friendship mean a great deal to me.

With heartfelt thanks and best wishes to everyone at the Charlevoix County State Bank,

Sincerely,

Ronald Reagan

Trackmen record three firsts in loss to Cadillac

The Charlevoix Rayder track team, coached by Hal Evans, took on a strong Cadillac squad to open its season and came away with 27 points to 82 for their hosts.

Charlevoix captured three first places and the same number of seconds and thirds in the meet, Evans said.

He described the Cadillac team as "awesome".

The Rayders took first and second places in the shot, with Ross Carey throwing it 45'2". Gary Drury placed second in the event.

George Smith covered the 120 yd. high hurdles in :16.8, and Van Sloan the 440 yd. run in :53.29 to account for the Rayders' first places in the meet.

Joel Schnackenberg threw the discus 113'8" to place second. The winning distance was 117'3". Mark Beaudoin placed third. Jim Landon came in second in the 880 yd. run with a time of 2:08.73. The winning time was 2:08.44.

Sloan, with a jump of 5'8", was third in the high jump. The winning jump was 6'4".

Track team in four-way meet this week

The Charlevoix Rayder track team will take on its first opponents in the Michigan-Huron Shores conference Tuesday when the team will enter a four-way meet with the host team, Boyne City, and Traverse City St. Francis, and Petoskey, at Petoskey.

Their coach, Hal Evans, said he has 40 candidates for the squad, including six seniors from last year. He also has 17 juniors, several sophomores, and a good crop of freshmen from last season's middle school team.

LL tryouts

The schedule for try-outs for the major and senior league divisions of the Little League have been announced by Dr. Donald Trimper, Little League president.

Major League try-outs will be held at the Major League field at 10 a.m. Saturday, April 25.

Senior League try-outs will be held at the Senior League field at the same hour, 10 a.m., the following Saturday, May 2.

Minor league try-outs will be held May 9.

Dr. Trimper said the program had need for two additional senior league coaches. Interested persons may contact him.

A great deal of work is presently being done on the senior league field in preparation for the opening of the season on May 25, he said.

The Major League season will open May 18 and the Minor League season May 30.

Rayder nine ready for action

The Charlevoix Rayder baseball team, coached by Pete Spieles, will launch its 1981 season Tuesday when the team travels to Elk Rapids.

The Rayders, co-champions with Rogers City, will be defending its title in a 13-game schedule which will include home and away double-headers with the other four teams in the league that field baseball teams plus non-league games with Central Lake (2), Elk Rapids, and Harbor Springs.

The team's record last season was 7-3 in league play and 23-8 overall. It will be remembered that Charlevoix shared the conference title with Rogers City and won the district and regional titles before losing to Parchment in the sate semi-finals. This is Charlevoix's fourth year in the baseball program.

"We have a tough year ahead of us after our fine record in 1980", Coach Spieles said of the season. "We have only three regulars returning from last season, our pitcher, Mike Loper, Jim Buchanan, who batted .352, and Mike Zednicek, who hit .275. We have a few seasoned players but we need pitchers and some strength behind the plate," Spieles continued.

Other returning lettermen are Brian Carson, who plays second base, Jeff Greene, a pitcher with limited experience and an outfielder, and Scott Kelly, who plays short stop. Buchanan plays first base and Zednicek plays in the outfield.

Loper and Buchanan received all-conference honors in 1980.

Spieles summed up his team as "young but competitive", with only one starting senior returning, Zednicek.

He lists Loper on the mound, Jon Supernaw behind the plate, Buchanan, Jeff Trimper and Ken Speigl, with some experience, on the bases; Kelly at short stop and Greene, Zednicek and Jim Zeitler in the outfield as his possible starting lineup Tuesday.

Other candidates are Kurt Puffpaff, Craig Klooster, Jon Spieles, Chris Putman, Greg Whitley, Fred Mielke, Randy Bullard, Ken Wojan, Jeff Kelly, and Jeff Novotny.

Charlevoix will be at Central Lake Thursday and will host Rogers City in their first league game at 4 p.m. Tuesday at their field on Grant St. south of the Charlevoix County jail.

The Charlevoix Girls Track team, coached by Dennis VanGuilder, will open its season at Petoskey Tuesday when they participate against the host team, Cheboygan, Boyne City, and Traverse City St. Francis.

Coach VanGuilder said he has 30 candidates out for the squad. However, he has few returnees, with 20 of the 30 up from the middle school.

Only seniors are Mary Beth Eldredge, who runs the 100 and 220 yd. hurdles, and Pam Lamoreaux, the long jump.

Other returnees are Tanya Ford, a junior, who runs the sprints and the sprint relays, and Lisa Pischner and Sally Westenbroek, also juniors, the sprint relays.

"We lost most of our veterans through graduation last year and we'll be starting over. However, the girls are competitive and we should have a fairly good season," VanGuilder said.

LL Auxiliary holds meeting

The Charlevoix Little League Auxiliary held its organizational meeting Wednesday evening and completed plans for various activities during the ensuing months.

Mrs. Charles Wilmot was named president of the group; Mrs. Robert Sell, treasurer, and Mrs. Gary Zundel, secretary.

Plans for the annual spring luncheon as well as other events were set at the business session. The luncheon will be held at the American Legion post home Thursday, May 7; a car wash at Duffy's of Charlevoix is planned for May 23, and a refreshment booth that will be manned by the group will be set up during the Venetian Festival July 23 to 26.

At the same time, it was announced that try-outs for Little League team members will be held at the major league field at 10 a.m. Saturday, April 25.

Harbor Industries plan sales meeting

Harbor Industries of Grand Rapids, which recently acquired Freedman Arteaft of Charlevoix, will hold its annual sales meeting on April 27-29 at the Weathervane Terrace in Charlevoix. The meeting is being held in Charlevoix to acquaint the sales staff with the newly acquired plant and to familiarize them with the area. About 16 people will be attending the sales meeting.

student chosen as a pickpocket, admits he enjoys doing "things I have never done before," and that includes picking pockets.

Lara Stargardt is delighted that "Oliver!" is something of a family project, a seventh grade band member, Lara's performed in school plays. She and brother Mike learned the music to "Oliver!" before their father, Steve, who is the Musical Director and they didn't hesitate to correct him when he got the tempo wrong.

Steve admits, "It got to the point where I was asking them questions about the production. Now I'm just a proud father looking forward to seeing them on stage."

Rusty Coolman, 12, another pickpocket, was quickly spotted as something of a ham actor and given a special role in the opening number.

The senior Stargardt, a graduate of the Cincinnati College Conservatory of Music, who has been involved in many musical theatre productions, as well as having performed as a jazz musician, feels, "The kids are going to steal the show."

Tickets for the seven performances are now on sale at the Apple Tree in Charlevoix, Hoveys Drugs in Petoskey and the Photo Art Shop in Petoskey. Season ticket holders should also be sure to reserve seats in advance. Organizers of the musical expect a sellout.

What Americans Are Changing Into

By MARY LEE HUBER

At last the season has arrived! The season of easy care clothes, swimming, flowers, picnics and the Young Americans. This really has nothing to do with fashion except that the Spring and Summer weather brings untold numbers of resorters and vacationers North from their sunny southern homes and from the city after schools have closed. And this means that our area swells with potential customers.

From all the tales that have filtered North, the expectations are ones for a great summer. Our barometer is the winter business season that the South, especially Florida, has just experienced - Florida was booming; the South was booming and with that exciting forecast I leave you to ready yourself and stores for the multitudes that are soon to arrive.

Fashions this season are exceptionally interesting. Ready-to-wear designers are no longer limiting you to the one and only correct look. Instead they offer a myriad of alternatives that lets you choose the right style for your personality. "I say it's about time" fourteen years ago I wrote a letter to the editor of a metropolitan newspaper registering a complaint against ready-to-wear manufacturers who were only after the bucks.

At that time they had no conscience when it came to putting women in mini skirts in the dead of winter, when 10 to 15 degrees below zero froze their derrieres. This is only one example of the inequities of fashion. Well, no more, for how long I don't know, but wearing clothes to fit one's personality will last a while because men and women will only follow designer and ready-to-wear dictates only so far. Then their own fashion perogatives take hold. Designers are finally realizing this too, because they now offer many styles to choose from, each season.

Last Fall, the fashion trends for this Spring and Summer looked as though pants in all shapes and sizes were all that one needed to hang in their closets. How many ways can you design pants, you say? Plenty. There is the long, lean look of a pant with the now familiar "cigarette" or narrow leg. These pant legs are sometimes gathered at the ankle with ribbons for a totally different look. Especially a great idea for an evening mood.

The forerunner of the culotte, which too is back, bloomers, are burgeoning onto the scene. Short shorts are in, so are, (remember this), pedal pushers worn with boat shoes and knee highs. The ethnic look prominent in hat designs, witness the Egyptian turban and the cowboy hat, is also evident in evening pants. The Egyptian harem pant has now replaced the lounging gown.

Skirts too offer many choices. The narrow skirts with side, back or front slits are still good but are waning in popularity. A fuller symmetry has returned. But what is so remarkable is that skirt lengths are not all above the knee. Although the mini is making waves again, any skirt length is appropriate worn just an inch or two above or below the knee and anywhere in between.

With all this attention being focused on pants and skirts, blouses will play a major role in your wardrobe. Don't forget to purchase your blouses with all your pant and skirt colors and styles in mind. This will help extend your wardrobe, and make it more versatile.

Earlier I stated that pants, pants and more pants were all that it looked like you'd need to hang in your closet this season. What happened to change all that? Mrs. Ronald Reagan of course. Her clean cut sense of design has helped to keep the feminists of dresses and two piece suits alive and well. So last year's quality tailored suit is still usable this season and so are the pretty ruffled dresses. If you haven't purchased yours yet, all the area shops still carry these good looks plus the new est in pants.

The biggest news this season is accessories, including, jewelry, and hats. (See stories pages 2, 3 and 4).

So go ahead and enjoy this Spring and Summer knowing for the very first time the fashion world is offering you many choices. Next month, Summer solutions in mens-wear and Beauty aids that now help control skin aging.

Travel Trends

Your Friends in Travel at BAYSIDE TRAVEL

The timely words in travel are "NOW" and "take the children with you."

"Now's" the time to travel because during late April and May, the airlines are offering some wonderful buys due to the fact that after the Easter Season rush, the volume of air travelers declines -- so the airlines offer some great buys to entice the traveler. Also, because of the decline in volume, you'll find your accommodations when you reach your destination less crowded, which results in that coveted personalized service which we all treasure.

Those good buys include an Eastern Airlines offering of a seven day package called a Super-7, to put it into layman's terms, Eastern is offering reduced, much reduced, air fares to many desirable destinations in Florida, along with economical land packages which include many fine hotels, such as the Sheraton Lakeside near Disney World and the Marriott Orlando.

That's not all -- the package also includes super added attractions like admission to Kennedy Space Center and Walt Disney World. A sub-compact rental car can also be included in the package.

As far as "take the children with you" is concerned, there is no hotel charge for children under 17 years of age, who are sharing the room with their parents.

These packages mean substantial savings to the traveler. For example, a Super 7 package with accommodations at the Sheraton World during May is only $307.00 per adult. That package includes round trip airfare from Detroit to Florida; hotel for seven nights; sub-compact rental car and two-day unlimited passport to Walt Disney World.

"Now" is not just limited to a sunny Florida destination during this season of the year. A number of the major airlines including United, TWA and American are offering reduced rates to all major cities during late April and May. The savings are particularly substantial if you're interested in traveling to the West Coast. Only $298.00 round trip can take you from Detroit to most major West Coast cities. And, don't forget the children because the children's fare is $98.00 round trip -- that's a mere $49.00 one way!

If we haven't convinced you that "NOW" is the travel trend for this month, and you're a confirmed "planner ahead" who finds pleasure in the planning, here's a teaser for you -- a trip to Knoxville, Tennessee for the World's Fair of 1982!

Boyne City's Hat Lady

by Peg Ohle

Florence Holloway of Boyne City is a woman of many talents.

She is a milliner, a beautician and hairdresser, an airplane pilot, and active worker in the Eastern Star, the Shrine, the Rebekahs, and the Presbyterian Church.

We talked with Mrs. Holloway at her home, where she modeled some of the many hats she has created through the years. She showed us how they were constructed and some tools of the trade, including a block on which she forms and fits the headpieces.

Mrs. Holloway told us she learned the milliner's trade by taking classes at the University of Michigan. "I went every spring and fall for four years," she said. "It's an interesting hobby. Fall is fabric and satin time, spring is straw cloth and straw braid time.

"I had two beauty shops in Ann Arbor, so I used my free time and time in between appointments making hats. I especially like to make the flowered hats for wedding parties. Some of the hats I kept for myself and others I sold. When I moved, I threw a lot of them out."

Mrs. Holloway said that it's not so easy to buy the "makings" of a hat anymore. "I used to get the forms for about a dollar apiece from the Chicago Hat Company," she explained. Now she often takes old hats apart and uses the frames for new hats.

Mrs. Holloway's milliner's block is used to steam a straw hat

Among the hats she showed us were those made of cock feathers, lace and mohair, satin, silk flowers, straw braid, and fur felt. There were even some golf "hats" fashioned from a paper mesh fabric.

Flying came naturally to Mrs. Holloway since her late husband was a colonel in the Civil Air Patrol and taught flying. She became a pilot in 1934 but recently sold the family plane because it was too much for her to take car of alone.

But hats are another thing. Whenever life slows down a little, Mrs. Holloway retires to her studio to create another hat.

Mary Lee Huber wears a spring bonnet of white straw braid and silk flowers fashioned by Mrs. Holloway Fine Austrian Crystal refracts a rainbow of colors to echo the hue of your new Spring wardrobe. We have earrings, pendants, stick pins, for you to choose from.

Hats...From Yesterday

A bit of fashion nostalgia may be experienced these days by viewing the display of straw hats at the Original Hat and Dress Shop on Lake Street in Petoskey.

Some of the hats are over 50 years old - some, in fact, date back to 1898. They're all part of a collection of over 1,000 hats collected by the late Alice Brenner who ran the Hat and Dress Shop for more than 50 years.

Each season, Mrs. Brenner tucked away six of her fashionable hats in the attic of her shop. It was her intention to have a "hat museum" some day. The museum did not materialize, but the present exhibit may be a step in that direction.

Mrs. Brenner's daughter, Moly Pelon, and her husband, Jim Pelon, now own and operate the Original Hat and Dress Shop.

A Better Way Than Counting Calories

By Julia Ris Smith
Coordinator of Vital Options, Little Traverse Racquet Club:

Like everyone else, particularly this time of year, I have constantly been on the lookout for the magic diet where pounds will melt off my body. However, I no longer believe that merely losing weight is the answer for total fitness.

Losing weight is a beginning. There is an easier way. I should be specific and say that there is an easier way in the long run. It is not easy to begin with though. It involves changing your lifestyle to a degree.

The first step to becoming a healthy, slim, fit person is mental. You must make a mental commitment to a fitness program and then it is necessary to map your strategy. Let me just reiterate here that merely losing weight is not the answer. You may very well lose pounds, but most short term diets are merely short term answers. Usually what you are losing is muscle weight and not the "fat" that should be your real goal. Cutting calories is only a beginning and should go hand in hand with increased physical activity.

By physical activity, I mean a planned aerobic workout that is done a minimum of three times weekly. Aerobic literally means "with oxygen." An aerobic workout is any endurance activity which promotes a strong heart, lungs and cardiovascular system. An aerobic workout can take many forms. Brisk walking, running, dancing, swimming and biking are all good choices. Personally, I found that running was the answer for me. I began by mapping out a mile route and run-walking it until I could comfortably run the entire mile. This took a week of diligent effort. This is where the mental commitment is very important. Rain, kids, social activities can not interfer. It was easiest for me to have a neighborhood girl come and watch the children every morning at 9 a.m. Other alternatives are having your husband watch the children for half an hour before dinner or having a friend who is also committed to a fitness program come over and take turns watching the kids. It may take some arranging, but actually it will be, at the most, an hour out of your day.

By the second week you will be hooked. This is where I get on my soap box and extol the virtues of physical fitness. Why will you be hooked? Lots of reasons. You will be proud of yourself for your diligence, you will find that you feel better mentally and have more energy physically, and you will begin to feel less hungry. Do you feel guilty taking this personal time? Most likely to begin with, yes. Soon you will easily recognize that this personal time, well spent, actually enhances your relationships with your family.

The third week you will be ready to increase the length of time spent at your aerobic workout. If you run, walk or bicycle this is done by increasing your mileage slowly but

Fashion Additives

While much of ready-to-wear adopts an understated approach to Spring, accessories are showing their extravagant, bold side. Shapes are larger and color goes two ways, bright and vibrant or natural. Look for the pairing of unlikely materials that range from wicker and wood to cloth, frosted lucite, and brass. Lots of metallics in bright gold or the softer luster of copper and pewter.

In leather goods, textured skins of various types have returned to popularity. Snake, lizard, even fish skins abound in belts, clutches and shoulder bags.

Jewelry is larger than that shown during the preppy period. Oversized wooden or lacquered wicker bangle bracelets, wooden fetishes strung between various types of beads for bracelets and necklaces and exotically shaped earrings in wood, ceramic, plastic and metals all bespeak the burgeoning ethnic influence. Head wraps and turbans also echo the ethnic tunes.

Necklaces are very short or very long and made of fascinating combinations of acrylic, coconut shell, rose quartz, rock, rhinestone, and sea shells. Pearls are still top of the line for evening wear and will be for a while to come.

One of the lastest most attractive accessories that I've seen offered, is the Add-A-Ruffle. Add-A-Ruffle takes an ordinary clean-cut preppy look and defines it as more feminine, as well as offering a new look for a blouse or shirt at a much more reasonable price. Great for gift giving; because size is no consideration.

All in all, accessories are what will make or break your look this season, so don't overlook the variety of possibilities.

A Better Way...

surely. It is necessary for full benefits to spend at least 15 to 20 minutes in an aerobic workout. The aerobic workout is the key to your fitness program. One interesting aspect is that not only are you using a large amount of calories while participating, but your body will be burning more calories in the hours following an aerobic workout. Fat is burned evenly from the entire body. Your total body's muscle tone will improve. You may not lose pounds to begin with, particularly if you are less than five pounds overweight. You will, however, be burning fat and building up muscles and muscle weight. So even if the scales do not indicate a loss, the way your clothes fit should.

Spot reducing is actually muscle toning in certain areas of your body. The aerobic workout will take care of this to a large degree but you may want to supplement with calisthenics. Spending twenty minutes doing spot exercises will help those problem areas we all have.

The extra bonuses and offshoots to a physical fitness program are numerous. The feeling of camaraderie in participating in an amateur race is indescribable. People begin to seek you out at parties to discuss mutual athletic interests or for advice. Your family, though they may at times be annoyed by your strict adherence to your program, will be the ones to beam with pride as you cross the finish line or receive well deserved compliments on how great you look. Also you may find that you have made a few friends who share your interest in physical fitness and the enjoyment of accomplishments.

There are a lot of programs in our area to get you started on the road to fitness. I can not think of one that I don't recommend. So, no excuses, get going and good luck.

LASER-ZAPPED DIAMONDS
Technological breakthroughs have a way of finding applications no one would ever have dreamed possible. The laser was discovered by accident. Mathematics said it couldn't be done, but physics said it could. The research to solve the controversy brought us one of the wonders of modern science.
Today the laser's applications range from etching a design on an award plaque to speeding communications through fiber optics to mending a detached retina. It has even found its way into the diamond industry.
A laser is sometimes used to cut diamonds. Typically diamonds are cleaved or sawed, depending on the most advantageous cutting direction. Usually a diamond is sawed slowly with a blade charged with diamond dust. The process is slow as it is, but when a knot or twinning plane is hit, it can take days or weeks to saw through. Here is where the laser beam comes to the rescue. It can cut through these difficult stones in a flash.
A laser beam is also occasionally used to remove an unsightly blemish within a diamond. The laser is directed at the target, and a minute hole is drilled into the stone to remove the mark.
This is one of the latest developments in the fascinating history of diamonds. If you'd like to learn more, stop by and ask for our free booklet on diamonds. We can also answer any questions you might have because we're trained American Gem Society jewelers.

"Saving Grace"

-----Resource News---

by Mary Lee Huber

Sometimes in the course of growth and expansion, an idea from a reader passed on to me reaches maturity. Such is this column. It is devoted to all the men and women, very much like me, who love good looking clothes, but are not always as graceful as they'd like to be. For that reason I offer these handy tips for saving "grace", or if you prefer, saving your favorite outfits

Saving "grace" will be a regular monthly feature in Best of the Bay (BOB), offering ideas on how to remove grease from a blazer, how to diminish the effects of an iron scorch and many more helpful ideas to keep that wardrobe intact.

Before I offer this month's tips, I would like to invite all the readers who have favorite proven remedies, to mail them to me at the Charlevoix Courier, and as space permits, I will be happy to publish your name and your saving "grace".

It is very important that before attacking any stain, immediately soak up all excess liquid with layers of absorbent towels. To remove ink stain, drench the stained area with a solution of ½ water and ½ white vinegar, taking care that the ink does not splash nor spread. Do not rub, but absorb moisture with terry cloth. Part of the ink will come out with each application. Repeat.

To remove ball point pen stain...soak area with sour milk or white vinegar and milk and sponge off. Repeat.

To remove grease stains....brush baking soda or cornmeal lightly on fabric; allow to stand overnight. Brush off lightly. On synthetics, apply shellac thinner or denatured alcohol to the grease spot.

The following suggestions for removing scorch stains will help diminish an iron scorch.

1. Sponge white shirts or linens with cotton soaked in peroxide.
2. Lightly brush scorch from silks or woolens.
3. Make a paste of baking soda and water, place article in sun. Brush off lightly after soda and water have dried.
4. Rub with lemon juice and place in the sun.

For those of you interested in saving energy and money, here's one for you. "Iron" hair ribbons by rubbing over a hot light bulb that you've already turned on.

Marion Township says no to concert permit

by DAVE KNIGHT

Tighter control over outdoor summer rock concerts held at Castle Farms Music Theatre is being sought by a newly organized group of area residents who call themselves the Citizens Safety Committee.

Concern for potential health and safety problems related to the concerts resulted last week in the denial by the Marion Township Board of an annual permit requested by Castle Farms for the 1981 summer concert season.

The first concert of the season, headlined by the rock band Molly Hatchet, is scheduled for May 23. According to Bradley Parsons of concert promoters Pyramid Productions, who was reached in Lansing Monday, plans are proceeding normally for the concert. Parsons said advertising for the concert will begin soon and tickets will most likely go on sale this week.

At an April 21 meeting jammed with over 100 people in attendance, the Marion Township Board voted unanimously to deny the Castle Farms an annual permit until a list of eleven conditions recommended by Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater are met.

Included in the list are recommendations to limit the number of concert attendants to 7,000, ban the consumption of alcohol on the concert grounds and levy a head tax on ticket sales to help pay law enforcement costs. Castle Farms owner Arthur Reibel indicated in a letter of response to Lasater that these three conditions would place unreasonable constraints on the operation of the concerts and that he would not voluntarily comply with them.

Other recommendations such as fencing of the parking lot, more "No Parking" and instructional signs, uniformed guards in the parking lots, more training for security personnel and increased crowd control methods were agreed to by Reibel.

Dawson Way, an organizer of the Citizens Safety Committee and resident of the Castle Farms area, said this week that the committee has 24 people on its board of directors and a steering committee of four. About 80 letters were sent to area residents Friday asking for support for the committee and for financial help.

The letter states the committee's purpose as "promoting the health, safety and welfare of the residents and guests of Charlevoix County." A $5 donation is requested in the letter to help support the committee's efforts. As of Monday, "several" replies with donations had been received. Said Way, "We have a very active organization going."

Representatives of the committee will appear this Wednesday night before the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners, nine of whom were present at last week's Marion Township board meeting. Way said that his group will seek support from the commissioners for the stand taken by Lasater and the Marion Township board.

Marion Township board members met privately Monday night with legal counsel to discuss legal aspects of the situation. Questions were raised at last week's meeting on the legality of some of the conditions set in the board's denial of the concert permit.

Marathon had some local flavor

by FRAN MARTIN

"It was a great experience! I did what I set out to do. I ran and completed the Boston Marathon only a minute off the goal I had set for myself," said Glen Taylor, Charlevoix High School math teacher, last week after returning from Boston.

Taylor ran the famed 26 mile, 385 yard course in three hours and 49 seconds.

He said he did not feel much fatigue until the 24-mile mark in the race. However, he said he did not have the "kick" he had hoped to have at the very end. After completing the grueling race, Taylor said he felt better than he ever had after running a marathon.

"The crowd was something else. You cannot believe what it is like until you see it. It was especially exciting when we passed Wellsley (girls college) where the girls were cheering everyone on as though every racer was a personal friend," said Taylor, "It is some feeling to have completed the race and proven to yourself that you could do it."

He added that the course was much hillier than he had envisioned. He had driven over the course on Monday after arriving in Boston and was very surprised at the hills. Taylor flew east on a plane chartered by Michigan runners.

He finished in 29[illegible]ace among 7,826 legitimate runne[illegible]

Taylor said there [illegible]e countless runners who had not qualified for the race but who would enter it at various points along the route making it difficult for registered runners to keep their pace because it was so crowded.

His time in the race was one minute off his qualifying time at Marquette last fall.

He said he lost a minute getting to the starting line and two minutes starting because of the crowd.

Taylor has been running for less than three years and training seriously for the past 18 months.

Another runner in the Boston Marathon with ties to Charlevoix was part-time resident Joe Potter of 178 E. Birch Crest Dr. in Pine Point. Potter is a coach of tennis and golf at Lansing's Otto Junior High. He ran the Boston Marathon previously in 1969 and in 1976.

Potter, 50, has been running since 1967 and in 1979 ran completely around Lake Charlevoix, including the South Arm, a distance of over 40 miles. He completed the run in about ten hours.

Potter plans to retire in the Charlevoix area in about five years. His wife, Mary, works for Ski & Shore and he has two sons, Pat and Mike, and a daughter, Julie.

Chamber of Commerce retail chairman Linda Mason was on hand Monday morning along with John Campbell, right, of Site Planning Development, Inc. and J.C. Bascom, left, an SPD employee as the first of 41 trees were planted along Bridge St. in the downtown area. Planting was expected to be completed by mid-week. Mason issued a request to merchants and area residents for more cash pledges to help pay for the expensive project. She also expressed gratitude on behalf of the Chamber to SPD for their volunteer labor and for providing the trees at cost and to Midwest International which provided the cement cutting equipment.

Food and hospitality show set for Boyne Highlands

The contributions of tourism to the state's economy will be the topic of discussion during a legislators' breakfast at the Northern Michigan Food and Hospitality Show.

The event, sponsored by the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service and the hospitality industry, will be held at Boyne Highlands, near Harbor Springs, April 28-29. A trade show will open the program on Toesday afternoon, the breakfast will be on Wednesday morning, and educational seminars and discussions will be held throughout the day.

George Stachwick, associate director of Extension for agriculture and marketing programs at MSU, expects more than 2,000 people to attend the show and hopes for a large turnout at the breakfast.

"We will ask for comments from some of the legislators about tourism and recreation and their contributions to the state's economy," Stachwick says. The breakfast, he adds, gives industry representatives a good opportunity to visit with government decision makers.

Restaurateurs, hotel and motel managers, and institutional food service providers attending the breakfast will have a chance to discuss the economic climate of the tourism industry with their legislators.

After hearing how the government representatives perceive the state of the state, members of the audience can make suggestions and voice their views.

Seminars following the breakfast will look at some of the problems facing food service, hotel-motel and recreation people, Stachwick says. The economic potential of the tourism industry will be discussed and ideas for improvement presented by such people as Robert Christie-Mill, Extension specialist in park and recreation resources at MSU, and Wesley B. Tebeau, president of the West Michigan Tourist Association in Grand Rapids.

Tax sale coming up

The sale of Charlevoix County property on which 1978 or prior taxes have not been paid will be held Tuesday morning, May 5, at 10 a.m. in the Courthouse in Charlevoix.

Back in January, the Courier ran over two full pages of county property descriptions on which the taxes had not been paid up to that time. The delinquent taxpayers have had an opportunity to "pay up" since then, and may still do so until May 1.

County Treasurer Anah Potter, who conducts the sale, suggests that anyone interested in specific pieces of property described in the earlier listing check with her before attending the sale to determine if that piece of property is still available.

"Only about 40 percent of the property descriptions listed are usually available at the time of the sale," Mrs. Potter said.

County EDC organizes

The Charlevoix-County Economic Development Corporation (EDC) held its organizational meeting recently.

Lee Moerland of Charlevoix was elected president of the group, Cass Toton of Boyne City was elected vice-president, Ray Towne of Boyne City was elected secretary, and Don Voisin of Charlevoix was elected treasurer.

Other members of the corporate board are Arthur Rouse of Boyne City, Oscar Ward of Charlevoix, Dennis Jason of East Jordan, Charles Sherck of East Jordan, and James Hater of Charlevoix.

The next meeting of the Development Corporation will be held on May 8 at 8 p.m. in the County Building Annex. It is expected that at this meeting, the application of the Weathervane Terrace Motel for EDC assistance will be considered.

Historical Society to meet

The monthly meeting of the Charlevoix Historical Society will be held at its Harsha House headquaters, 103 State Street, on Tuesday, May 5, at 8 p.m.

Members and friends are urged to attend this meeting. Progress in development of the museum may be observed and the summer open house plans will be outlined.

For the program, a group from Boyne City will tell about plans for celebrating the 125th anniversary of that city's founding, on November 14, 1856, by John Miller.

Ernest Hemingway letters refer to this area

BY PEG OHLE

We picked up the volume from the table of new books. It was heavy and scholarly in appearance. The price on the wrapper over the inside front cover read, "$27.50".

The introduction was long, 27 pages. Then came Page 1 of the real book. It could have been the front page of a local newspaper.

The first heading reads, "To Anson C. Hemingway, Walloon Lake Michigan", and it was a letter written from Walloon Lake on August 8, 1917.

The writer, of course, was Ernest L. Hemingway, then 17 years old. He was reporting to his grandfather about activities on the Hemingway farm located at the Walloon Lake end of Sumner Road in Bay Township.

Right below that letter is another headed, "To Dr. C. E. Hemingway, Horton Bay, Michigan". It is a letter from Ernest to his father, written from Horton Bay on September 19, 1917. In it he reports that he will harvest 60 bushels of potatoes on the farm but that they are worth only 85 cents a bushel locally.

The book, "Ernest Hemingway Selected Letters", is a collection of over 600 letters written by Hemingway, beginning with that first one in 1917, through a lifetime of world-wide experiences and ending with a last one written on June 15, 1961, just two weeks before he took his own life.

As every Hemingway buff knows, Ernest spent the summers of his boyhood and early manhood at the Hemingway homes on Walloon Lake, "Windemere" at the end of Resort Pike Road and the farm, as mentioned above, at the end of Sumner Road.

From these places he roamed the countryside, fishing, hunting, and playing — living experiences that were later to be the bases for many of his short stories.

Stories with settings in Horton Bay, Walloon Lake, and other parts of northern Michigan have been translated into many languages. The author, himself, credits many of these early experiences with greatly influencing his writing career.

In fact, in a letter written from Paris on December 6, 1924, to William B. Smith, Jr., a Horton Bay summer friend, Hemingway says:

"—almost everything worth a damn I have written has been about that country (northern Michigan). It was the whole damn business inside me and when I think about any country or doing anything it's always that old stuff, the Bay, the farm, rainstein fishing, the swell times we used to have with Auntie (Mrs. Charles) at the farm, and the swell trips out to the Black and the Sturgeon and the wonderful times we had with the men and the storms in the fall and the potato digging."

Altogether, there are nine letters in the book written by Hemingway from Walloon Lake, Horton Bay, Boyne City, and Petoskey. They reveal much about how he and his friends spent their time. Mention is made of coming to Charlevoix (Hemingway calls it "Voix") to play tennis and to gamble at Cook's.

His gambling luck at Cook's one particular night pleased him no end. "I won 59 'seeds' which would have been several days at the cement plant," he wrote to a friend on August 8, 1920.

Ernest Hemingway married Hadley Richardson of St. Louis, Missouri at the Methodist Church in Horton Bay on September 3, 1921. A few months later, the newlyweds departed for Europe, where they spent several years while the young author struggled to earn a living writing.

His marriage ended Ernest Hemingway's years of vacationing in northern Michigan, but as "Ernest Hemingway Selected Letters" is distributed throughout the world in many different languages, northern Michigan's Walloon Lake and Horton Bay will be right there on Page 1.

Knight on the Town

The issue is safety

by Dave Knight

What would happen to, say, the Medusa cement plant if an accident sent enough employees to the Charlevoix Area Hospital to completely till the hospital's emergency room and intensive care facility?

What would happen if a second accident occurred a few weeks later resulting in just as many casualties? And then a third. And a fourth. What would happen if the plant had nine such occurrences in one summer?

I daresay there would be an expensive kiln and a quarry for sale in short order.

Even hypothetically, the above scenarios are more than remote; they are impossible given the health and safety requirements tollowed closely by Medusa and almost every other business and industry in the area.

One business exists, however, in our midst, that actually does result in such catastrophic situations as described above several times each summer. That business is Castle Farms.

Even with its newly expanded facilities, points out Dr. William Mosher of the Charlevoix Area Hospital's medical staff, the hospital can barely manage to handle the number of emergency cases admitted on concert nights. The great majority of the cases invoive chemical abuse; alcohol and drug overdoses.

Also treated, however, have been rape victims, assualt victims and people injured seriously in traffic accidents involving concert goers. On concert nights the emergency room at the hospital somewhat resembles CBS's M.A.S.H. unit after the chopper's have landed. The only difference is that here, there is absolutely nothing funny about it.

Hospital Administrator Richard Krueger told the Marion Township Board last week that on nights of Castle Farms concerts last year, admissions were more than double the normal weekend averages. He said that additional nursing and admitting personnel had to be scheduled on concert weekends and that the extra cost was no small amount.

Who pays? All too often, we do. As many as 25 percent of the emergency cases that come in on concert nights have no identification and give false names and addresses when they are admitted, if they can communicate at all. Remember that when you are startled by the amount of your next hospital bill and when you pay the next installment on your pledge for the hospital expansion project.

Understates Krueger, "We feel that some of this is unnecessary and uncalled for."

Says Mosher, "If this isn't a threat to public safety, I don't know what the hell is."

As tar as law enforcement officials are concerned, Castle Farms is a tragedy waiting to happen. Sheriff George Lasater has seen so many close calls that he can't believe there haven't been more casualities than have actually occurred.

"As sure as I am standing here," said Lasater at the Marion Township meeting, "We are going to have a serious injury or tatality soon."

One of the worst problems is pedestrian traffic. When you have a tew thousand people, many in altered states, trying to cross a state highway at night at the same time, you have a serious problem.

Aside from the problems of ingress and egress, the concerts themselves pose even more frightening possibilities. Lasater said that on as many as four occasions last summer, the crowd pressing forward toward the stage created a dangerous situation in which people could have been hurt or worse. Such is the nature of festival seating. You either move with the crowd or the crowd moves you.

Those who scoff are invited to talk to some distraught parents in Cincinnati who sent their children to a certain rock concert just last year at a seemingly "safe" city auditorium.

It should be pointed out emphatiatly that, trom the time concerned people started organizing three weeks ago, there has been not one word of opposition to the concept of holding concerts at Castle Farms. Indeed, many businesses benefit from the influx of people and outdoor concerts can be very enjoyable.

But to think that any business or industry, no matter how much money it pumps into the area, can operate with such disregard to the well being of its patrons and neighbors is incredible. Traffic jams, trespassing, property damage aside; the rock concerts at Castle Farms, as they have been run in recent years, are unsate and dangerous.

There is no reason why they should be allowed to continue until the worst happens.

Said Dawson Way last week, "If we in the township are ready to sacrifice safety tor the profitability of Castle Farms, we should go back and examine our motives. It a major catastrophe takes place, we will all have to do some soul searching to figure out why we let it happen in the first place."

Letters: Cluster housing rebuff

Another opinion

To the Editor:

A recent article in the You and Your Home Supplement of the Courier entitled "Cluster Housing Can Preserve Open Spaces" would lead readers to believe that at last a happy compromise between developers and environmentalists has been reached.

This may not be the case. Here in San Diego, we are finding that clustering is a method used to permit developers in areas where it would otherwise be quite limited, due to the constraints of unstable soils, high water tables and or steep slopes.

In addition, clusterng requires "creative zoning" which results in two to ten times more dwelling units than would have been allowed under existing zoning patterns which were considered appropriate for the condition of the land.

Readers should be advised that clustering is a catchword of the development industry; it offers to save a small portion of the open space that would have been preserved anyway if existing zoning were adhered to.

When each unit in a cluster is multiplied by three or more persons, and the additional costs to the city-township of providing services for such an expanded population are taken into account, clustering may not be the best way to preserve open space.

Evading taxes

To the editor:

The Phobia of Tax Evansionism

The present proposal to save the monetary economy from inflation by shifting from one torm of tax to another is just another political smoke screen, since most of these proposals pass the cost on down to the consumers with no regard for a living standard.

The cost of government includes such services as police, fire, roads, armed forces, education, welfare, and to name a few more – subsidized farming, labor shipping, post offices, railroads, guaranteed loans, tax exempt bonds, and a lot more. This all adds up in support of the capital cash flow and in an obligation of all the people by the power of taxation.

The plain fact is that local, state, and federal governments are all involved in the economy by the use of monetary values over which there is no control. The cost use of money is supposed to be self-regulating in a competitive free market which includes legalized gambling, speculation on real estate, stock market manipulation, organized for profit corporations, conglomerates, high interest build-ups, and many other creative trades for a profit.

The present political compromisers claim they can fix it all if they are allowed to lower all-income taxes and if the rest of us pull on our belts and work harder. All of this in the midst of an over-supply of automobiles, labor, farm, and manufactured products. I have a feeing there is something missing in the department of intelligence. They claim government spending is the cause of speculative inflation. Then why shouldn't there be a tax on excessive speculation and non-productive income by manipulation?

Clockwise

Springing ahead not so easy

by Bob Clock

IT IS A PITY it is not as easy to change our biological clocks as it is our wrist watches.

Reference, of course, is to Eastern Daylight Saving Time, which went into effect at 2 a.m. last Sunday morning. (Pardon me, 3 a.m. There was no 2 a.m.)

I, for one, am accustomed to awakening when the light in the morning sky reaches a certain intensity, regardless of the time I went to bed. On weekends I automatically allow myself an extra hour or so of nap time, but this, too, is built into my biological clock.

Now along comes Daylight Time, and all of my finely tuned innate impulses are knocked into a cocked hat. It seems just as bizarre to have the sky still aglow at 9 p.m. as it does to have a deep dusk on the land at 6 a.m.

Fortunately, man is an adaptable creature and we all will have adjusted to Daylight Time by next October when we switch back to Standard Time.

Things, of course, aren't as bad as they were back in the 1940's when time in Michigan was a matter of local option. A city, tor example, could adopt Daylight Time and leave the surrounding townships on Standard Time. The pubs in town would close at 2 a.m., and there would be a mass exodus of inebriated drivers to roadhouses outside city limits where closing was still an hour away.

The time situation was particularly confusing in places like the western Upper Peninsula where a rather hazy line divided Eastern and Central time zones. It was entirely possible to have four different times within a few miles — Eastern Daylight or Standard or Central Daylight or Standard.

Needless to say there was some overlapping since Eastern Standard was the same as Central Daylight — but there could be as much as two hours difference between Central Standard and Eastern Daylight — in communities only a stone's throw apart.

It was murder trying to catch a bus or keep an appointment. The situation today is a vast improvement by comparison.

EVERY EVENING all winter I have been wracked with guilt when I turned on the TV and settled down in the big arm chair next to the stove to idle away the precious after-dinner hours. I was guilt-ridden because I knew I should have been painting the dining room and the living room, both of which were beginning to look leprous.

But the very thought of tackling such monumental projects often would put me to sleep.

Finally I decided I would have to change my attitude about the magnitude of the undertaking. I hit upon a scheme of working with my paints no more than one hour a night.

That was two weeks ago, and I would like to report that the dining room — including three french doors and a staircase with lots of fussy woodwork — has had two coats of paint. Hairline cracks in the living room have been mended and primed and the wallpaper in both rooms has been cleaned with a gummy product from the age of innocence called "Climax."

And to tell you the truth, I haven't missed that one hour a night one bit.

Of course, there has been some fudging. If I know I am going to be busy on a certain night, I will work two hours the night before. Or if something unexpected comes up, I will work an extra hour the following evening.

It is amazing how much can be accomplished by fits and starts, if you stick to it.

The facts about heartworm

The following questions and answers concerning heartworms were provided by Charlevoix veterinarian Dr. David Norton, DVM.

What are heartworms?

They are large, white worms (parasites) that can live in the heart of any dog.

How do they affect the dog?

Heartworms cause congestive heart failure in both young and old dogs. Occasionally the dog will die suddenly; but more commonly he will suffer a prolonged illness characterized by coughing, listlessness and eventually death.

How do dogs pick up heartworms?

Mosquitoes carry the infective larval stage of the worms trom one dog to another. The bite of the mosquito infects the dog. This larvae eventually mature into adults and locate in the heart and major blood vessels.

Is there a cure?

Treatment may be successful if the ailment is caught early. However, in advanced cases the patient may be unable to withstand the treatment.

How do you diagnose it?

A blood test will pick up most cases. This test can be done anytime but it is best done in March or April.

How do you prevent infestation?

Prevent your dog from getting bitten by mosquitoes. Since it is usually impossible to do this, to be safe it is neccessary to medicate your dog during the mosquito season with a preventative liquid or tablet. This preventative kills the developing larvae.

Does this medication injure the dog in any way?

The preventative medication is safe unless the dog has already become infected with heartworms. For this reason it is neccessary to test the dog each year before he is started on a preventative program.

Do we have to be concerned about heartworm disease in Northern Michigan?

We have had a significant number of positive cases in this area. We strongly recommend that dogs be tested.

Fourth Wednesday Forum

The Fourth Wednesday Forum is a regular monthly feature of the Courier that provides an opportunity for interested people to express their views on nuclear power and how it directly affects the Charlevoix area. Opinions for the Fourth Wednesday Forum may be sent to the Courier care of the editor. The next deadline is Friday, May 22.

Time for a decision

As a property owner and trequent visitor to the Charlevoix area, t have followed with interest the commentary surrounding the Big Rock Nuclear Power Plant. Apparently it is time for Consumers Power to make a decision on the fate of the plant.

The lengthy debate concerning the facility has continued for some time now but it seems to boil down to a few issues. Let there be no question that the fine personnel and economic impact of the facility are an asset to the area. Do these positive influences and the transmission of power to downstate communities out-weigh the negative factors invoived with the nuclear generation ot electricity?

Big Rock utilizes plutonium, one of the deadliest substances known to mankind and this brings rise to several questions. The Nuclear Regulatory Commission has declared that Big Rock does not meet present safety standards in that the reactor has insufficient shielding. Why, then, does the NRC continue to grant funding to Consumers to experiment with plutonium at Big Rock? Can an inadequately protected reactor be more susceptible to terrorism? Is the transfer of nuclear material into the area and the storage of spent fuel rods at the site the safest and most desirable of practices? Do nuclear plants belong in urban areas?

If Consumers Power believes in a free society let them pose the question to the people. Either refurbish Big Rock as a nuclear plant with present satety standards, convert it to another energy source (such as gas) or close the plant! The cost will be high and the public will ultimately realize it anyway, but what price does mankind put on securing life as we know it today? There is no need to procrastinate any longer. Consumers Power must make their decision now!

Dennis Versele
Bellefontaine, Ohio

The trouble with cool

"This coal strike brings home a point that nuclear opponents never talk about – if a otility is too reliant on one fuel, like coal, it is vulnerable to forces beyond its control," said R. G. Dahlquist, Cheboygan area manager of Consumers Power Company last week.

"Right now we still have enough coal that our customers can continue to use energy with their normal conservation efforts, but if the strike goes on through the rest of April and into May, the two nuclear plants that Consumers owns (Palisades in South Haven and Big Rock at Charlevoix) will become more and more important to helping assure a supply of electricity."

"The Palisades nuclear plant near South Haven is now generating more than 700 megawatts of electricity and the Big Rock nuclear plant near Charlevoix is generating more than 60 megawatts. This is enough to provide the electric needs of cities the size of Grand Rapids, Kalamazoo, Jackson and Saginaw combined," Dahlquist said.

He said Consumers Power began to build nuclear plants in the 1960s because company management recognized the advantages of providing a mix of fuels for generating electricity and the economic advantages of nuclear power.

"I think the present coal strike points up one more reason that nuclear plants Palisades and Big Rock are, indeed, very desirable, not only because they are our lowest-cost producers of electricity but because they are immune to situations like the current strike."

Clergy training seminar set by CHIP

A "practical conference" to help pastors and religious workers spot, understand, and help families in trouble because of alcoholism, drug, and substance abuse will be held Monday, May 4, at the Petoskey Holiday Inn.

The all-day conference, entitled "Alcoholism – A Family Illness," begins with registration at 8:30 a.m. It is sponsored by the Petoskey Ministerial Association for all clergy and religious workers from Northern Lower Michigan and the Eastern Upper Peninsula.

Co-Leaders for the conference are the staff of the CHIP Counseling Center, which serves Northern Michigan with Substance Abuse and Counseling offices in Charlevoix, Emmet, and Antrim Counties.

The Rev. Donald Merrill of Petoskey's United Methodist Church, and CHIP Substance Abuse Counselor Bob O'Brien conceived the idea of offering this one-day seminar in substance abuse to the clergy of Northern Michigan following the cancellation of the state-wide Clergy and Religious Workers Conference on Substance Abuse originally planned for February in Lansing.

The CHIP Counseling Center was the agency with which the state Clergy Association had contracted to conduct the conference in Lansing. When the state-wide conference was cancelled for lack of funds, Rev. Merrill suggested to CHIP that a local conference could be arranged.

Rev. Merrill commented recently, "It's obvious what a tremendous problem alcholism is nationally and locally, inside and outside the church. It is important for ministers to have as much knowledge in this area as possible.

"In the Ministry you are constantly in a learning situation and you constantly need to sharpen up," Merrill continued.

"Problems of relationships between people is something we clergy see a lot of. Alcoholism is one of the problems that contributes to relationship problems," he explained.

CHIP Director Oren Schroeder, himself a Lutheran Minister, observed, "Clergy have more access to families and can be one of the early warning signals when families are experiencing different problems. So it is important for clergy to be aware of the impact of substance abuse on the family."

The conference will open with a basic introduction to the symptoms and phases of alcoholism by CHIP staff member Sally Davies.

O'Brien will follow with a discussion of how the spouse of an alcoholic reacts to the problem.

"There's a common theory that the alcoholic has to hit bottom before he or she is ready for help," O'Brien said.

"But in reality, it's when the spouse hits bottom – a point of desperation – that the family is open to change," O'Brien continued.

"If the clergy are aware of the patterns of behavior, if they can see the problem building, they won't have to waste energy trying to figure out what's going on."

"Because the clergy are often part of the family system, they are more aware of when changes are taking place," O'Brien observed.

The counselors emphasize that early intervention by someone close to the family, such as a clergyman, can mean help before the alcoholism becomes acute and the family begins deteriorating.

"The purpose of this conference is to provide knowledge so the clergy are more sensitized to changes in the family, better able to recognize substance abuse and intervene effectively," Schroeder concluded.

The registration fee of $8.50 includes luncheon at the Holiday Inn. Registration deadline is Monday, April 27. People seeking more information should call Rev. Larry Staton, 347-6181 or 347-6319.

KC drive a success

The recent Knights of Columbus Tootsie Roll Drive sponsored by Father Pierre Charlevoix Council No. 7172 for the benefit of the mentally handicapped was a great success, according to Jack Gebott, president of the young council.

A total of $1,050 was collected by the council during the recent two-day fund drive.

The Knights were assisted by a group of Michigan Bell Pioneers who have "adopted" the mentally handicapped as their project. Mrs. Clarence Rabach, who heads the group, recruited the workers from among the ranks of the organization.

After consulting with officials at Charlevoix House, a home for mentally retarded persons, and Bergmann Center, a sheltered workshop, the Council is preparing to present checks to the two groups.

A check for $600 will be presented to Charlevoix House, which showed the greatest need, and another for $200 to Bergmann Center.

The remaining funds will be forwarded to State headquarters of the Knights of Columbus for distribution to facilities for the mentally handicapped who do not have the support of a local Council.

GEM WISE
JEWELRY FASHIONS, FACTS, FICTION

Colleen Titsworth
Manager
CONSUMER SERVICE AND PROTECTION
American Gem Society jewelers are pledged to the service and protection of the buying public. This isn't just a flowery phrase either. We've put in years of study to be as knowledgeable as possible about the product we sell. And being an American Gem Society jeweler means you never quite get out of school. There's always something new to learn.
As a matter of fact, I just returned from a five-day educational convention in Chicago, an American Gem Society Conclave. This event is held in a different major city each year to allow AGS members to refresh their gemological skills and to learn all the latest developments in the industry.
This year we worked with diamonds in laboratory sessions, mainly discerning the differences between them and the clever substitutes that are on the market. We also heard the latest on gold, jewelry fashion, gem investments and sporsaals.
My next task is to pass an exam on the material covered at the Conclave in order to continue my membership for another year. You see, the Society won't let us sit back on our laurels.
Trust is important when you're looking for a jeweler, and I hope you can place your trust in me. I'm eager to share my knowledge and the excitement I hold for fine jewelry. So please bring your jewelry questions to me. I carry a number of consumer information pamphlets which you may have with my compliments.

Achievement day was big success for 4-Hers

Leah Green, 4-H Program Assistant, reports that Charlevoix County 4-H enjoyed a successful Achievement Day at Whiting Park on Saturday, April 11. Eighty young 4-H members presented a total of 230 different projects to be evaluated in separate interviews conducted by 12 persons not presently connected with the county program.

Each evaluator spent at least five minutes with each child asking questions and talking to the youngster about what he or she had done. Projects were the result of 4-H meetings over the time since September or October, 1980. Achievement Day will next be held in September, 1981 for summer and early fall work such as gardening and food preservation and other program areas. Evaluators worked on projects in foods and nutrition, crafts of many kinds, sewing and needlework, horses, livestock, garden, junior leaders, leisure education, environmental education, folk patterns, birds, biking, creative writing and photography.

4-H thanks Chuck Britton, Teresa Clausen, Betty Zipp, Jeannie Howard, Carol Lauterbach, Shirlene Tripp, Sheri Drake, Peggy Willson, Judy Crook, Phyllis Sumner, Mary Ann Scott and Kay McDowell for their help. They were assisted by Betty Beyer and Georgene Alger, parents of 4-H members.

Following evaluation, ribbons of blue or red were placed on all projects. Each member attending had earlier been awarded a white ribbon to mark participation. At this time the public was given an opportunity to view the displays while personal appearance members and leaders prepared for the evening program. Many people stopped to enjoy a meal of sloppy joes, cake, jello and beverage.

The main event of the evening was a style show by 40 girls and boys wearing articles they had made in 4-H. Style show judges were Phyllis Sumner, Mary Ann Scott and kay McDowell. The show was narrated by 4-H member Vicki Falting and leader Claudia Grutsch. Nancy Brooks, 4-H Council president was in charge of arrangements. During the first break, six gold ribbons for best of category, most projects and most blue ribbons were presented to Robin Gee, Lisa Harvey, Vicki Falting, Susan Stolt and Julie Fall as well as nine trip awards worth $15 each toward future 4-H events.

Members receiving trip awards for particular excellence were Robin Wodzinski, Heather McKay, Julie Fall, Tracy Seagraves, Rhonda Beishlag, Amy Beyer, Susan Annis and Vickie and Sue Stolt. Alternates are Michelle Maillous, Vickie Stolt, Robin Gee, Julie Fall, Paula Harvey, Aaron Beishlag and Tamara Poole. There were two honorable mentions, Katy Clock and Nancy Louiselle. All awards were made by Ed Rebman, retiring Charlevoix County Extension Director.

The second break consisted of musical entertainment by Dan Stolt playing the violin and Sandy, Patty and David Schmoldt on the accordian, banjo and guitar. All four are members of the North Bay Livestock Club. They were introduced by Lori Campbell. Katy Clock closed the evening with the results of the modeling competition. Winners were awarded flowers by leaders Lucy Stolt and Irene Fall.

Ross Carey pulls away in the 880 relay.

Rayder trackmen are tops in quad meet

The Charlevoix Rayder track team, coached by Hal Evans, with a total of 53 points won the quadrangular meet, their first of the season, at Petoskey Tuesday.

"It was an exciting meet. We were trailing by nine points with two events remaining when we took first and second places in the two mile to cut Traverse City St. Francis' lead to one point with one event remaining. The mile relay team came through to take first and win the meet for us," Evans said with pride.

While Charlevoix took only five firsts, the team piled up the winning points by taking seconds and thirds, Evans explained.

Finishing in second place was Traverse City St. Francis with 49 points, followed by Petoskey with 42 and Boyne City with 39 points.

Taking first in the mile was Jay Swarthout with a time of 4:51.2; the 440 yd. relay team (Jeff Drury, Pat Mitchell, Tim Krueger, Scott Shepherd) in 2:10.9; two mile: Matt Peterson, a sophomore, first, and Swarthout second, in 10:52.7 in the event that put the Rayders within one point of Traverse City St. Francis, and the mile relay (Van Sloan, Dave Buday, Shepherd, J. Drury) in 3:46.1.

Other point winners for Charlevoix were: Shot put, 2. Ross Carey; 3. Gary Drury; Discus, 4. Joel Schnackenberg; High jump, 3. Larry Lemerand; long jump, 2. Shepherd; 120 high hurdles: 2. George Smith; 100 yd. dash: 4. J. Drury; 880 yd. relay: 2. (Shepherd, Carey, Tim Louiselle, Sloan); 220 yd. dash: 4. Carey.

Evans said he was impressed with his younger runners, especially the freshmen who did very well in their first varsity meet.

Charlevoix will host Gaylord and St. Ignace here Tuesday. On Thursday, the team will travel to Gaylord where Rogers City and St. Ignace will also be participating, and on May 4 the Rayders will host Petoskey and St. Ignace at Kipke Field.

Baseball team wins first three games

Three wins got the Charlevoix High School boys baseball team off to a successful start of their season last week as the Rayders stopped Elk Rapids in a doubleheader 8-3 and 10-2 on Tuesday and clubbed Central Lake 13-1 on Friday.

In the first game at Elk Rapids, pitcher Mike Loper held the Elks to two hits en route to the victory. Loper, Jim Zeitler, Mike Zednicek and Jeff Trimper all hit safely for the Rayders.

Jeff Greene kept the cuffs on the Elk Rapids batters in the second game allowing only three hits. Charlevoix was also held to three hits, however, two by Greg Whitley and one by Ken Speigl. Numerous Elk Rapids errors helped the Rayders to the 10-2 victory.

The team added Win No. 3 to its list Friday by defeating Central Lake 13-1 in a game rescheduled earlier because of inclement weather.

The Rayders capitalized on Trojan errors and walks to bring in 13 runs on only five hits. Kurt Puffpaff was on the mound for Charlevoix and allowed only two hits.

For Charlevoix, Jon Supernaw had two hits and Craig Klooster, Jeff Trimper and Jim Buchanan each collected one.

Netters bow to Petoskey

The Charlevoix Rayder tennis team launched its 1981 season at Petoskey Saturday, bowing to a strong and experienced Northman squad by a score of 5-2.

Coach Cricket Uhrick said the team played well and looked good in the meet, their first of the season. She added, however, that the meet was played in cold weather which made it difficult for all the players to give their best.

In the singles, Dennis Morgridge was downed by Scott Lange 6-3, 6-2; Rick Rajewski bowed to Scott Snyder 6-0, 6-0; Jeff Morgridge won over Ned Deer 6-1, 6-3; and Pete Cockfield was dumped by Dave Shiets 6-2, 6-0.

In the donbles, Pete Dunkelberg and Paul Hoffman defeated Andy Steward and Jeff Yoder 7-6, 6-3; Patrice Staley and Kris Lignell lost to Bill Butcher and Paul Sattlemeier 6-1, 6-1, and Lew Kline and Ingrid Weimer lost to Paul Muller and Tom Seely 7-5, 6-2.

Coach Uhrick said that she expected the team to improve at the season progresses. "They're young. We have few veterans returning, but I am looking for good things from the kids", she added.

Charlevoix will host Boyne City Tuesday, travel to Gaylord on Thursday, and entertain Elk Rapids next Tuesday.

Two no-hitters logged by girls

Back to back no-hitters by Rhonda Buchanan and Melinda Klooster helped the Charlevoix Rayder girls softball team kick off their season with a sweep of a doubleheader at Harbor Springs last week.

The Rayders took the two games by scores of 11-0 and 9-2.

In the first game, Buchanan struck out four batters and walked only one without allowing a single hit.

Backing her up in the offensive category were Teresa Noirot with a home run and a single, Mel Kerridge with a triple and Klooster with a single. Buchanan helped her own cause with a single.

The losing pitcher was Lisa Keway.

In the second game, Klooster held the Lady Rams to two runs on no hits. Doretta Anderson recorded two doubles to lead the Rayder attack with Brenda Buchanan and Kerridge, who each had two singles, and Holly Taber who had a single.

This week the girls face Central Lake.

Girls track team places fourth out of five

The Charlevoix Rayder girls track team, coached by Dennis VanGulder, came in fourth in a five-way meeting held at Petoskey Tuesday. Charlevoix had 13 points.

A strong Cheboygan team swept the meet, taking 12 of 15 firsts and piling up 118 points. Petoskey was second with 68½ points followed by Traverse City St. Francis with 47½; Charlevoix with 13 and Boyne City with 10.

Placing for Charlevoix were the following: 880 yd. relay team (Mary Ellen Clak, Lisa Plachner, Sally Westenbroek, Tanya Ford) placed second; 440 yd. relay team (Carrie Richardson, Ford, Westenbroek, Plachner) placed third; Mary Lenhart in the highjump and the mile relay team (Shelly Davis, Missy Walker, Kari Renaud, Becky Wojan) took fourth places; Wojan in the discus, Ford in the 100 yd. dash, and Mary Beth Eldredge in the 220 yd. dash took fifth places.

Van Gulider said the girls did well in their first meet against very strong competition. He mentioned, especially, the young runners up from the middle school.

Charlevoix will host Gaylord, St. Ignace, and Cheboygan on Tuesday; travel to Gaylord to meet with Rogers City, St. Ignace, and Grayling on Thursday, and entertain Petoskey and St. Ignace at Kipke field on May 4.

Cheboygan and Grayling field only girls' teams.

ADOPTED BY CITY COUNCIL: February 18, 1981

Freedom is a clear and present danger.

But only to those who have lost trust in the human spirit. It is true that freedom is a risky business. It is equally true that what makes an American is his willingness to invest his life in it.

Freedom is not formlessness; liberty is not license. To be free is to know how to embrace those who came before us, while reaching out to those who will follow. To be free is to succumb, over and over again, to the demands of responsibility—to believe that the decent idea will eventually triumph over the indecent one, that the rules that apply to you apply to the next person.

Each year, on May 1st, it is this belief that inspires the celebration of Law Day. From one end of the country to the other, millions of Americans from all walks of life will gather to give voice to our faith in the daring act of being free.

Go ahead, dare to think a radical thought. Then say it. Explore it. Test it out on your neighbor, your co-worker, your family. No punishment will await you.

Instead, you will re-discover the miracle of being an American. Your idea may please one person, bore another, be a threat to a third. No matter. The important thing is that you will have made full use of the special gift created for you by our Founding Fathers. That gift is the freedom to think, the freedom to share your thoughts with the world.

Join us on May 1st for Law Day. Celebrate that gift.

Eighth graders ANDY BRUMM and TOM GRAF and seventh grader JASON BRINDEL will all advance to the State Math Finals following their achievments at the Regional competition in Gaylord two weeks ago. The Charlevoix Middle School students all placed in the top 24 at the Regional testing while Brumm was the most successful placing fourth out of 125 students in his category. Charlevoix's winners were in competition with almost 5,000 other students from the Northern Michigan region. The State Finals will be held May 16 at Mt. Pleasant.

Gordon Jensen, right, one of North America's leading gospel artists, will present a concert Wednesday, April 29, at 7:30 p.m. at the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church, M-66 South.

Jensen, 28, was born in Canada and now lives in Nashville. Over the past ten years he has written and published approximately 200 songs, many of which have been recorded by such well known gospel singers as Evie, Doug Oldham, Jimmy Swaggart and Dallas Holm.

He has been nominated four times for "Songwriter of the Year" by the Gospel Music Association and his songs have reached the association's top ten on five occassions. Jensen has made numerous church and concert appearances and has appeared on the nationally syndicated PTL and 700 Club television shows.

Some of his more well known compostions include "Remption Draweth Nigh", "Jesus Will Outshine Them All", "I Should Have Been Crucified", "Whisper Jesus" and "Tears Are a Language".

Carnival!

"Fun for the whole family!" That is the annual theme for the Family Carnival held at the Elementary School and this year's version, held on Friday, April 24, had plenty of fun for everyone. Marina plans advance despite worries about traffic, parking

by DAVE KNIGHT

Plans for the first phase of a 214 boat slip marina complex on Lake Charlevoix at the foot of Eaton Street got the okay from the City Council Monday night but not without some hesitation.

Northwest Marine & Brokerage, Inc. will start dredging soon at the site of the former Foster Boat Works on Ferry Ave. at Eaton St. and plans to have 66 boat slips completed by mid-July.

The tentative master plan for the property includes a complete restoration of the Foster Boat building into a restaurant, shops and other uses.

Concern was raised at Monday's council meeting, however, that the project was proceeding too hastily and that the potential problems of increased traffic and parking space availability had not been suitably addressed.

Lee Moerland, county commissioner and resident of the area, accused the City Planning Commission of approving the plan without thoroughly studying the impact the proposed complex would have on the neighborhood.

Said Moerland, "I don't think the City Planning Commission has done a very good job. No traffic study has been done and the matter of parking has not been addressed."

Dennis Heck, a partner in the Northwest Marine project who was on hand for Monday's meeting, told the council that according to present zoning requirements of one parking space for every two boat stalls, about 110 spaces would have been the legal minimum to provide. Actual plans call for, he said, 210 spaces plus those provided in an additional tract of land that could be leased for more parking.

Several council members agreed with Moerland that roads providing access to the location are in poor repair and would not be suitable to handle the increased amount of traffic. On a motion by council member Jeff Porter, however, the vote was unanimous to approve the plans for the first phase of the project - the 214 boat stalls - with the added note that special consideration be given to the upgrading of streets providing access.

City Manager James Brinker told the council he would investigate possible grants and other funding methods available for the work. According to Heck, a completion date for the entire project has been set for the fall of 1982.

In other action, the council:

-Passed a resolution directing the Michigan Municipal League to proceed on the city's behalf to expedite matters pending before the State Boundary Commission. A ruling on Charlevoix's city-township merger has been held up for almost a year by the commission and, as of last reports, was still at least two years away following severe budget cuts to the commission that have virtually eliminated its staff.

-Approved a one-year lease agreement with the Coast Guard for use of city owned dock space to berth the Cutter Mesquite. The only condition suggested by City Attorney Michael Gibbons for the $1 a year lease is that the city obtain in writing from ship personnel a list of dock repairs they have indicated they will do.

-Heard local businessman John Haggard describe plans to move his business out of its present location at 200 Antrim and renovate the building into an office complex. Haggard sounded out council members on a tax abatement plan for downtown improvement purposes and received favorable reactions from council members who suggested he proceed with the neccessary applications.

Gibbons named City Attorney

Michael A. Gibbons returned Monday night to the post he vacated two years ago when his appointment as Charlevoix City Attorney was approved unanimously by the City Council. Gibbons succeeds the late Frank G. Hoffman who died unexpectedly on April 13.

Four other local attorneys had indicated interest in the position including Robert L. Hoffman, Roy C. Hayes, John R. Michael and Edwin Gregory.

Gibbons is a Charlevoix native who graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1956, served in the U.S. Army for two years and attended Aquinas College in Grand Rapids from which he received a Bachelor of Arts degree. In 1965 he received a Juris Doctor degree from Wayne State University and was admitted to the State Bar in 1966.

In further action Monday night, the council set the city attorney's compensation at $7,200 annually which will include all legal work done for the city except that done under "extenuating circumstances" for which additional compensation may be approved by the council.

School voting day set

by FRAN MARTIN

Monday, June 8 has been set by the Charlevoix Board of Education as the date of the annual school election.

At its regular meeting Monday night, the board set the date on which district voters will be asked to renew the 15.25 mills for operational purposes for a period of one year. At the same time they will elect two board members for four year terms from among the following candidates: Max Novak and Doris Pearl, inoumbents, and challenger Michael Bonello. They will also choose between candidates Robert Drenth and Thomas G. LaBlance, neither of whom are presently on the board, to fill a two-year vacancy.

For the second meeting in a row the appointment of a junior varsity girls basketball coach was tabled when the vote resulted in a 3-3 tie with one member absent. Before the issue came to a vote, Steve Smith said that because new head coach Henry Wagner would be held accountable for the program, he felt Wagner's recommendation for JV coach, Van Green, should be followed. Michael Gibbons who had not been at the earlier meeting, said he thought it was important to have a woman in the position. He cast a nay vote on the recommendation as did Kenneth Boss and Ardith Wieland. Smith, Elaine

Commissioners offer limited help in effort to tone down concerts

by PEG OHLE

Marion Township went to "Big Brother" last week for help.

"Big Brother" is the name given the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners by Dawson Way, who heads a Marion Township organization call the Citizens Safety Committee.

The committee was organized recently to help the township with its problems relating to the rock concerts at Castle Farms.

Way and other members of the committee asked the Board of Commissioners for assistance in dealing with safety hazards created by crowds of up to 13,000 that have attended the concerts in past years.

Marion Township has adopted a gathering ordinance to help control the rock concert crowds, but the owner of Castle Farms and the concert promoter are continuing plans for a May 23 concert by the rock band Molly Hatchett – despite the fact the township has denied them a season permit as required under the gathering ordinance. The denial was based on Castle Farm's failure to implement safety and health measures proposed by Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasatar and District Health Department No. 3.

When asked what he could do to help, Charlevoix County Prosecutor Scott Beatty explained to the group that in his position he could not prosecute violations of township ordinances. He added, however, that on occasion he had helped the township "a little, when asked."

County Commissioner Keith Annear suggested that perhaps a county gathering ordinance was needed. If such an ordinance were passed, the County Prosecutor could handle any violations of the county ordinance.

For the present, other members of the County Board of Commissioners told the Marion Township residents that they should get themselves a good lawyer and turn their problems over to him.

This advice did not sit well with Joe O'Sullivan, who called it "buck-passing".

Another neighbor of Castle Farms, Ken Domagala, said the concern shown by the County Board was "well and good", but asked if people must continue to hire guards or stay at home on concert nights to watch their property."

Way concluded his statements by pointing out the county's liabilities in case of a serious accident at a concert.

"The word is out that the Castle Farms operation is unsafe," he said. "What are you going to do about your liability?" he asked the commissioners.

As a final gesture of concern and help, the Commissioners passed a resolution offering their "moral support" to Marion Township.

Gunshot death ruled suicide

The gunshot death over the weekend of a young Charlevoix woman in her home on Bridge St. has been classified by officials as self-inflicted.

Gina L. Berkshire, 20, married and mother of a 16-month old son, was found dead in her near south side home Saturday. Following an autopsy performed at Gaylord Monday, acting medical examiner Dr. James Stewart ruled the death a suicide.

Funeral services will be held at the Winchester Funeral Home at 11 a.m. Wednesday with Rev. Dale Magoon of St. Mary's Church officiating. Interment will be in Evergreen Cemetery at Kalkaska.

The former Gina Lynne Kreiser was born in Traverse City on July 19, 1960 and grew up in the Traverse City-Kingsley area. She was married to Michael A. Berkshire on July 13, 1979 with whom she resided in East Jordan and later Charlevoix.

Besides her husband, she is survived by a son, Michael Arthur, II, 16 months, at home; her father, Gerald D. Kreiser of Traverse City; her mother, Mrs. Charles Klingshirn of Kinchloe; two sisters, Kelley Reilly and Debbie Pierce, both of Traverse City; four brothers, Dennis and Ric Klingshirn and Gary Kreiser, all of Kinchloe and Donald Kreiser of Traverse City; her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Mary Louise Kreiser of Buckley and her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Harold Taylor of Fife Lake.

County equalization report shows 11.13% increase

by PEG OHLE

What is Charlevoix County worth?

According to County Equalization Director Joan Blanchard, the County's equalized valuation of real and personal property is $335,329,006.

That's $33,594,318, or 11.13 percent, higher than last year.

Broken down, the equalized valuation of real property increased by $33,051,068, or 11.90 percent, and that of personal property increased by $543,250, or 2.27 percent.

But that's only half of the story. County equalization is based on 50 percent of true cash value, so the County is really worth twice that $335,329,006 figure, or $670,658,012!

The most valuable unit of real and personal property within the County is the City of Charlevoix, which has an equalized valuation of $48,521,900. Hayes Township (which includes Consumer's Power Big Rock Plant) leads all other townships with an equalized valuation of $37,546,241. Charlevoix Township (which includes the Medusa Cement Company Plant) is second among the townships with an equalized valuation of $28,573,300.

Mrs. Blanchard presented her Equalization Report to the County Board of Commissioners last week. It will now be forwarded to the State Tax Commission, and, when and if approved by them, the figures for each unit of government will be used as the basis for 1981 taxes as shown below.

Mothers Day service to cap Family Seminar

"Mothers" will be the honored guests at the Assembly of God Church in Charlevoix at 11 a.m. Sunday, May 10. A Mothers Day Celebration is planned with Evangelist Louie Calaway. The service will climax a two-day Family Life Seminar to be conducted May and 9 at the church. The seminar is a cooperative effort with the Christian Life Center of Petoskey and the Church of the Everlasting God in East Jordan.

"The Church and Family" is the theme of the seminar led by Rev. Calaway who was a pastor in Troy, Michigan for 30 years. While there, church growth prompted three expansion programs and two building programs. Well known to the Assemblies of God in Michigan, Rev. Calaway has served as sectional Sunday school and youth leader, presbyter, president of Detroit Teen Challenge, member of the Board of Directors of Central Bible College-Detroit Campus and is presently serving as one of three executive presbyters for the state.

For further information on the Family Life Seminar, those interested may contact the church at 547-6430.

Pizza Hut coupons still good

Charlevoix County residents who received coupons from Pizza Hut of Charlevoix during the April American Cancer Society Crusade may still redeem them at the Pizza Hut until May 15. Each coupon redeemed by May 15 will mean one dollar for the Charlevoix County Unit of the American Cancer Society.

It's morel time in Boyne City

by PEG OHLE

It's morel mushroom time again, and for the 22nd straight year, the Mushroom Festival is coming to Boyne City.

Scheduled for this coming Saturday and Sunday, May 9 and 10, the Festival will feature fun and skills for young and old, beginning with the parade of pickers to the secret hunting grounds on Saturday morning, continuing through the "Mushroom Hunters Ball" Saturday evening, and ending with the awarding of prizes for the champion pickers on Sunday afternoon.

In addition, there will be a carnival in downtown Boyne City featuring rides, refreshments and a midway; a pancake breakfast on Saturday morning; a choice of swiss steak or ham dinners on Saturday evening; and a seminar and slide presentation on "Mushrooms and Mushroom Poisoning" on Saturday afternoon.

The registration fee for the mushroom hunting contest is $5 a person, with all fees being returned in cash prizes divided equally among the contestants entered in four categories: non-resident men's, non-resident women's, resident men's, and resident women's.

Of course, anyone who knows a morel mushroom when he sees one may scour the countryside on his own. However, it's a good idea to travel with someone who recognizes possible growing sites, and it's also a good idea to respect other people's property.

Lasater seeks to organize county horse posse

Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater has announced that he would like to organize a county horse posse to assist the Sheriff's Department.

Lasater said he is attempting to organize a small group of Charlevoix County citizens who own horses and would be willing to volunteer their time and equipment to assist in certain situations.

Horses would be helpful, according to Lasater, in some search and rescue missions, finding lost children in the woods, checking reports of downed aircraft in the area and looking for stolen property hidden in wooded areas among other things.

The horse posse would be organized as a volunteer group with no monetary compensation. It would be mobilized by the sheriff in time of an emergency and would function under his authority.

Elementary school students to present mini-version of 'Oliver'

The Charlevoix High School gymnasium will be transformed into the streets of Old England for a while on Wednesday, May 13 when the students of the Elementary School present a condensed version of the popular musical "Oliver" as their annual musical production. An evening performances is scheduled for 7 p.m. and a dress rehearsal will be held at 9:30 a.m. for those not able to make the later show. Two sets of lead characters have been named by director Patricia Carland.

New Bergmann Center officially dedicated

A formal ceremony Sunday, April 28, marked the dedication of the new Bergmann Center facility located on Martin Rd.

More than 120 persons were present to hear Charles Goddeyne of Congressman Robert Davis' office deliver the dedication address.

Others who appeared on the program were Harold Kaufman, director of the Northern Michigan Community Mental Health Services Boards, under which the facility is operated; Mrs. Walter Hufford, chairperson of the Bergmann Center Board of Directors and Kenneth Brill, director of the Bergmann Center, all of whom introduced members of their respective boards and staffs. Mrs. Jessie Cunningham, supervisor of the workshop facility since 1967, also spoke briefly. She acknowledged the assistance and cooperation of all those who make the Bergmann Center a viable operation.

Bergmann Center is a sheltered workshop which, today, provides a work activity center for 33 mentally and physically handicapped adults under the direction of a staff of six and a nine-member board of directors. Its purpose is to provide a meaningful work experience for the mentally and physically handicapped where these clients are trained to become desirable competent employees in the competitive work world.

Bergmann Center strives to provide remunerative work including supervision and instruction in work activities and observance of safety principles in a realistic work atmosphere. Work orientation is provided to encourage good work habits such as proper care of equipment and materials, correct handling of tools, good attendance, punctuality and safe work practices to afford discipline and interpersonal relationships with supervisory personnel and co-workers; to promote work tolerance and work pace consistent with the person's potential and to maximize the skills required for independent living.

The workshop presently has a dozen contract jobs for eight local industries and organizations. During slack time, several products including Love Lites and pine cone wreaths are produced for sale.

Funding for the Bergmann Center is derived from the Michigan Department of Mental Health and the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners with the Northern Michigan Community Health Services Board administring the funds. Other contributors of funds and services are the Charlevoix United Way, Charlevoix Kiwanis Club, Round Lake Lodge No. 293, I.O.O.F., Barnard Grange, Community Reformed Church, East Jordan Community Chest, Telephone Pioneers of America, Father Pierre Charlevoix Council of the Knights of Columbus, Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, American Legion, Charlevoix V.F.W. Post No. 1153, Xi Epsilon Gamma chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority and donations from individuals.

On display during the open house which followed the dedication ceremony were the different types of contract work being done at the center as well as button making and engraving machines.

The history of the Bergmann Center dates back to 1954 when five families banded together to form a local association for retarded children. With various people filling the position of teacher for the first three years, Mrs. Robert Bergmann assumed the position in 1957 and continued in the position until 1963 when the responsibility for the training and education became the responsibility of the State Department of Education.

The schools, however, were not responsible for the handicapped people after their twenty-first birthday. At this time, Mr. and Mrs. Bergmann opened the first work activity center in their home. As its popularity grew and the number of clients increased, it was moved to the facility constructed by the Charlevoix Association for Retarded Children, the original group, and leased to the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District. In 1973, the facility was renamed the Bergmann Center in recognition of the Bergmann's years of dedicated service to the handicapped. In August, 1980, the Bergmann Center was moved to the present site in order to meet the needs of its growing number of clients.

Joining Brill and Mrs. Cunningham as staff members are Helen Denny, secretary-treasurer; Jean Mort, case manager; Carol Beal and James McCallum, driver-aides.

Knight on the Town

My secret

by Dave Knight

My secret for finding morel mushrooms?

Why not. Everyone else seems to have one.

I learned the art from a very kind, gentle older man who harbored none of the competitive zeal that seems to be getting more prevalent among morel hunters lately.

Alex was his name and he lived on a farm nestled amid rolling cow pastures and wooded hillsides.

Most mushroom hunters today will betray their grandmothers before revealing their favorite hunting grounds. I got a call two weeks ago from someone reporting that they had found the first morels of the season. I asked where they found them. The party answered, "Oh, north of town."

Alex, however, loved nothing more than taking people out to his special spots where morels always seemed to be popping up as if on his command.

On my first expedition, Alex and I were walking out of the house when he pointed to a bushel basket full of morels sitting near the back door. It was his previous day's work waiting to be canned or dried on strings.

This is going to be easy, I thought. He must know where morels are as thick as flies in a horse stall. As we tramped off toward the woods, Alex had a cunning look on his face as if he knew something that I didn't.

And he did.

Through the brambles, thorn bushes and clinging vines we went. Over dead trees and under low branches. I scanned the ground like a bird of prey analyzing each sector as if conducting a search and rescue. But I spotted nary a mushroom.

Meanwhile, Alex strolled along at a leisurely pace, stooping down every few seconds to pop another morel into his brown paper bag. He couldn't have been more casual about the whole thing if he was pushing a shopping cart along the vegetable counter at the market.

While Alex chucked more and more mushrooms into his bag, I got more and more frustrated. He would even walk where I had walked and find ones that I had almost stepped on - but not seen.

Finally we sat down on a fallen log and I begged him to tell me the secret.

"It's obvious," he laughed, "You're trying too hard. The secret to finding morel mushrooms is to pretend you're not looking for them at all. I guarantee you won't find a one if you keep walking around peering at the ground like you have been."

This was the secret? Sounded a bit weird to me and not much like the type of secret I had anticipated.

But, empty bag in hand, I was willing to try anything. I started wandering through the woods, just as Alex had suggested, looking up into the trees, listening to the chatter of nesting birds, smelling the aroma of fresh hayfields nearby, feeling the coolness of the forest floor.

Morels or not, this was more fun anyway.

Just as I bent over to get a closer look at a stunning trillium blossom, the biggest morel mushroom I'd ever seen materialized in front of my nose. And then another. And another.

Soon my bag was full and we started back to the farm. Alex still had that cunning look on his face but now I understood the secret.

When looking for mushrooms, don't get so wrapped up in the hunt that you ignore the peacefulness and beauty around you. That way you can never come home empty handed.

JV girls coach still unnamed

Martin and Novak voted for Green's appointment. Following the impasse the appointment was tabled.

In other action, the resignation of Connie Pointner as a part-time teacher in the Middle School was accepted with regret. Kristin Schapperkotter's request for an extension of maternity leave of absence was approved with the understanding she inform the board of her intent by April 1, 1982.

The resignation of Michael Bonello as ski coach was accepted with regret. He has served as ski coach for the past five years and has resigned because of other obligations. A request for leave of absence by Joan Baumer, an elementary teacher, was granted with the understanding that she could return only if a position was open for which she would qualify.

Supt. Gordon VanWieren reported briefly on a trip he and two board members had made to the Lighthouse project on Beaver Island. He said that tentative plans for the summer include the construction of a log cabin to house 24 persons at the site in order that it be used earlier in the spring and later in the fall.

Until now, tents have been used for housing. He added that no local funds have been used to support the project and that $110,000 is available through other sources to underwrite the improvements planned for 1981.

Thomas Caldwell of the Char-Em Intermediate School District presented a report on the Special Education millage the Intermediate School District will be requesting in the June 8 school election.

He said that with state funds for special education being cut back, the Intermediate District staff had had to be cut back and that unless the special millage request was approved, programs would have to be eliminated. Caldwell advised that the Charlevoix School District has 96 students, including 54 in learning centers, that are receiving services offered through the Intermediate District. He outlined the programs available and listed those in which Charlevoix students are involved.

Clockwise

To tree or not to tree

By Bob Chuck

ONE OF THE most exciting events in downtown Charlevoix since the Battle of Pine River was the planting of shade trees on Bridge Street last week.

Although none of the new saplings is in leaf, you can picture how nice they'll look come the Fourth of July - and many July Fourths for years to come.

Oh, of course, there has been some grumbling. One party claims they'll block her view of Round Lake from the west side of Bridge Street.

Why did we go to all the expense of acquiring the property for East Park, if we're going to block the view?" she asked me the other day.

Of course, I didn't have any answer for her. I had no idea our modest little locust trees intend to become giant redwoods.

Another party complains that the trees are cutting down on the available sidewalk space on Bridge Street. Others say it will be impossible to keep sidewalks plowed in the winter with trees growing in them. Still others fear the cost of snow plowing will skyrocket, if the plowmen have to sculpt their way around tender tree trunks.

They all have valid points. But that doesn't mitigate my delight to have trees growing on the west side of Bridge Street, which has always looked hot and naked under a midday sun. I think we'll all enjoy our new foundlings after they leaf out.

To be sure, they'll require more work than a plain old sidewalk, but they'll be worth it.

SPEAKING OF TREES, if I were dictator, I would make it a capital crime to design parking lots such as the ones at Ferry Beach, Oleson's, or the Captain's Corner without provision for shade trees between the rows of cars.

The Captain's Corner has attempted to correct the oversight by planting trees in huge planters, but the effect is not the same. Trees are such an agreeable addition to any landscape we should make more ample use of them.

ANOTHER HOME SHOW sponsored by the Little Traverse Association of Home Builders is now history. Although attendance figures hadn't been posted at this writing, the show was sure to be a bell ringer.

Dozens upon dozens of area merchants and contractors were on hand to show and explain their wares and answer questions. I can't think of a better - or nicer - way to shop for home improvements.

Although the show was held at the Emmet County garage, the number of Charlevoixans in attendance was surprising. We found familiar faces in every aisle.

The show in and of itself was exceptional because last year certainly wasn't all that exciting for the building trades in Northern Michigan. Yet Clyde Whaley, executive director of the Home Builders Association, tells me that membership in the Little Traverse chapter, which includes Charlevoix and Emmet counties, is continuing to grow and has won accolades from state officials.

Although new construction is and has been scanty, the number of building permits being issued for additions and improvements is impressive, enabling builders to maintain skeleton staffs. When the boom resumes, our local tradesmen will be ready to lake full advantage of it.

Out of the Blue

If we're really saving daylight time
All summer, why can't we shove it
Into those dreary winter months
When there's so little of it?

Letters: Chew, pride, taxes

Chew deserves better fram baard

To the Editor:

Fran Martin's article about the April 30th school board meeting, (CC 4-29-81), concluded with the statement that a delegation supporting Vincent Chew was granted an audience with the board in executiva session. Because there are so many people as puzzled as we are about the change of leadership at the Middle School so near the end of the school year, we believe they are entitled to know that we were unable to get satisfactory answers to our questions.

While we recognize that the board not only has the right but the responsibility to make decisions of this kind, we believe as elected officials they also have the responsibility to make those decisions in a fair manner. Probably no injustice was meant when they chose to replace Mr. Chew only a few months after they had given him a two-year renewal of his contract, nevertheless injustice has resulted, because many people have asked what crisis had occurred at the school or grave error in judgement had been made by Mr. Chew that would warrant soch action. We were given no evidence that either had occurred. When we asked what had happened since his new contract had been signed that indicated a change for the worse in his educational leadership or behavior, the board could give no specific answer. They referred only to a general dissatisfaction of the "educational climate" at the school. When pressed for an answer, one baord member admitted there had been no change. We stll do not understand why he could not have been allowed to finish the school year at least, if not the duration of his contract.

A letter to the board, signed by all the Middle School staff members who were present the day the letter was written, indicated their dismay at such precipitate action, as well as their belief that the school year was, on the whole, going very well, in fact better than it had for some time. At no time was the faculty as a whole consulted as to the "educational climate" under Mr. Chew's leadership, nor had members of the school board personally investigated the situation at the school.

We would like to share with the public some of the postive opinions that were expressed by the delegation. Several parents indicated they were pleased with the kind of education their children had been receiving at the Middle School. There was testimony to Mr. Chew's enlightened and cooperative leadership of the staff and treatment of the children. All felt that Mr. Smith, who has replaced Mr. Chew, had been doing a fine job as assistant principal at the high school and was badly needed there. All would like to see the board establish a fair procedure for arriving at this kind of decision in the future.

We are all appreciative of the nearly seven years of conscientious service Mr. Chew has given the children of Charlevoix as Middle School principal, and we are glad his many talents will not be lost to them. We wish him well in the classroom and we are proud of his gracious and gentlemanly behavior in response to what we consider to be unjust treatment.

Let's keep Charlevoix the Beautiful

To the Editor:

As the Courier says, "money talks", (CC 4-22-81) and new investments in Charlevoix are good news indeed.

Even more encouraging, in my estimation, is the evidence of pride in our community as demonstrated by members of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce. By planting trees they have shown responsibility to future generations, provided beauty and "humanized" the commercial district.

Pride and beauty go together -- and beauty is good for business. Pride is the underpinning which makes people nurture and protect quality of life in their communities.

Pride in our town is also evidenced by the concern shown by the Planning Commission about the blighting effect of ugly and inappropriate signs. Ugly signs can do more to quickly downgrade the character of an area than almost any other means.

I'd like to see, in addition to these activities, a day set aside as Pride Day. Other Michigan towns usually observe Pride Day the third Saturday in May. Let's plan now for next year to bring volunteers of all ages together to pick up litter, plant trees and flowers and clean up and landscape public areas.

May I close by quoting conservation writer Michael F Dorne:

"Why is it to safeguard beauty? Ugliness, which is the antithesis of beauty, promotes disorder and ultimately decay. The more people are surrounded with ugliness, the less they care. The less they care, the lower their moral standards become. Ugliness undermines pride. On the other hand, beauty begets beauty, it encourages self-respect in the young and demonstrates belief in the future."

Let's continue to keep the "beautiful" in Charlevoix-the-beautiful.

Tax prapasal is a shell game.

To the Editor:

After attending a meeting at which the new tax proposal was explained by a legislative representative I feel a sense of amazement. There is something in the proposal for everyone...so it seems.

They have kept the so called circuit breaker for those with low income or retired. However, since there will be only half as much tax the effect will be a savings for the state...but those with the low income and retired will still have to pay the extra 1.5 percent sales tax.

From this point on the new tax proposal reminds me of the old shell game where you try to keep your eye on the shell with the pea under it. I am afraid most of us will come up with an empty shell.

The backers of this proposal have put into it that the school fund will get all the profits from the state lottery. Sounds great, until you realize this is not increasing the school funds it is just putting the profits of the lottery into the fund directly instead of into the general fund before going to the school fund as it did in the past. An empty shell for education.

There is very little for reniers that they did not have already...except for the added 1.5 percent sales tax increase.

The legislators and Governor have an extra incentive for those in the large cities. If the voters who have a city income tax increase their tax by 100 percent the state will pay for this increase. What has this got to do with property tax relief...It is a sales tool as explained later.

For property owners...providing the property that they own is their principle residence, will receive a 50 percent cut in their taxes except for debt millage. The cut is limited to $1400 the first year. This will be factored after that for increased assessments to increase the limit. This cut is not on business property, vacant property or vacation homes.

In the future there will be a limit or cap of six percent a year that the overall taxes can be increased on any class of property. This means one house might have an increase of 30 percent but there would have to be a number of houses that would have less than a six percent increase to stay within the rules.

The six percent increase each year can be increased by a greater amount if the voters of a voting body, i.e. school district, county, etc., wish to do so. The example that was given in the presentation was that if local people voted to increase the cap from six percent to ten percent then the state would cover the extra four percent with the 50 percent cut and pick up the cost of half the amount voted. It would seem to me highly unlikely that people in Michigan are about to vote an increase at this time. The reason for the four percent voted increase (as well as the income tax voted increase) hypothesis was understandable when we heard how the promoters of this tax plan arrived at the $250,000,000 claimed net revenue loss if the proposal passes. It proves the old adage that "figures don't lie but liars can figure".

To have the net revenue loss they claim, each community with an income tax would have to vote to double it and every community would have to vote to increase their cap on the property tax from six to ten percent. If this happened the part of the tax the state would have to pick up would be about half the loss in revenue claimed. The chance of every community voting to increase their taxes are slim indeed. On the other hand, if none of the communities vote to increase their local income tax or property tax and there is a strong pick-up in the economy the sales tax revenue could increase enough to eliminate any net loss of revenue. This would mean we played the shell game with all empty shells.

There is a great deal being done to help pass this proposal on May 19. The state is planning to spend hundreds of thousands of tax payers' dollars to mail affadavits to all property owners just before the election. This will give every voter a langible reminder of the 50 percent tax cut just before the election. There will be nothing sent out to remind you of the extra 1.5 percent sales tax you will be paying throughout the years. I doubt if they will think of anything to send the renters as a reminder to vote.

There will be many special interest groups that will be spending large sums of money to have this passed. They will be groups that do not want a true tax cut because they have their hands in the pocket of taxpayers via the state, through wages, equipment sales, consulting fees, grants and service contracts such as road construction.

I urge you to read and study the proposal before you vote for it. Consider if it will really help you over the long run. When you hear the ads for a yes vote consider who is paying for the ad and why.

There is little new work coming into Michigan and a good deal going out. There are many states that have unemployment rates of five to six percent. They are attracting the businesses that Michigan has been driving away with their tax programs. The May 19 proposal does not deal with the real problem of business or jobs in Michigan. Industry creates jobs and all this tax does for industry is add another 1.5 percent onto the sales tax they have to pay. A 50 percent property tax cut does not mean much to an unemployed home owner who can't make his house payment. We need a tax program that will encourage industry into the state, not continue to tax them out as we have been doing for years.

Helen Phillips, who has directed the work of the Public Programs division of CETA since 1974, retired last week. She is shown above at a party given for her by county employees. In the foreground are some ceramic sculptures presented to her as a retirement present.

Previously, Mrs. Phillips had held positions with the Friend of the Court, the Health Department, and the Welfare Department.

Mrs. Phillips is a native of Beaver Island. Her father, Peter Gallagher, was a lighthouse keeper there, and when Mrs. Phillips was in eighth grade, the family was transferred to Milwaukee. She attended school there through the junior year of high school but came back to Charlevoix for her senior year, and to graduate.

She later attended Catholic Junior College in Grand Rapids, receiving an Associate of Arts degree in business.

Mrs. Phillips and her late husband, Ivan, had three children. The sons, Peter and Richard, live in Charlevoix and the daughter, Ann, lives in Grand Rapids.

Mrs. Phillips says that now she hopes to have some time for "gardening, canning, and housework."

Engagements

Warner-Mackowiac

The family of Leland H. Warner announce the engagement of Rachelle K. Warner of Charlevoix to Robert C. Mackowiak of Boyne City.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Casimer Mackowiak of Boyne City.

The wedding will be an event of June 20 at St. Mary's Church of Charlevoix.

The bride-elect is a 1975 graduate of Charlevoix High School. She is employed at the Charlevoix Area Hospital in the Physical Therapy Department.

Her fiance is a 1974 graduate of Boyne City High School. He is employed by the Essex Group in Boyne City.

Sorority celebrates 50th anniversary

The golden anniversary of Beta Sigma Phi sorority was celebrated on April 30, the group's Founder's Day, with a banquet at the Grey Gables Inn.

Chapters from Petoskey, Boyne City, Gaylord and Lewiston attended the event hosted by the Charlevoix chapters.

Toastmistresses were Mrs. Thomas Pence, president of Xi Epsilon chapter, and Mrs. John Coolman, president of Kappa Sigma chapter who welcomed the guests and conducted the opening ceremony. Florence Hussey of Xi Gamma Beta, Boyne City, led the members in the Beta Sigma Phi grace.

The East Jordan chapter of the "Sweet Adelines" provided the entertainment with a variety of musical selections.

"Girl of the Year" awards went to Janet Riley of Kappa Sigma chapter, Charlevoix, Ann Smith, Preceptor Alpha Zeta chapter, Petoskey; Laura Lickteig, Mu Alpha chapter, Gaylord and Janet Freidinger, Xi Epsilon Gamma chapter, Charlevoix.

Members recited the 50th Founder's Day pledge led by Katie Dunaway of Xi Alpha Eta chapter, Petoskey. This was followed by the reading of a message from Walter Ross, Jr. by Mrs. Don Volsin, Xi Epsilon Gamma chapter, Charlevoix.

Following the "Song of Friendship" by Mrs. David Ball, Xi Epsilon Gamma, Mrs. Pence, assisted by the sister of the Charlevoix chapter, conducted a candlelight ceremony.

Those present repeated the closing ritual and joined hands for the "Mizpah" to conclude the observance.

Womens Hospital Guild to meet

Members of the Women's Guild of the Charlevoix Area Hospital will meet at the home of Mrs. Frank Webb for a workshop meeting. It was announced following a recent meeting of the organization.

The workshop meeting has been called for 10 a.m. on May 15 to make and stuff toys and puppets for the pediatrics department at the hospital.

Members are also knitting caps to be worn by newborns weighing in at five pounds or less while they are in the hospital nursery.

National Hospital Week will be observed during the week of May 10-16.

It was reported that the chaplaincy service initiated in January is operating well with 28 requests being acknowledged.

Following the recent Guild meeting, those present were escorted on a tour of the renovated and expanded facility by Mrs. Barbara Rogers, director of nurses.

Tells Revolutionary War area history

While the history of most of northern Michigan goes back only 100 years or a little more, the area did play an important part in the American Revolutionary War, according to a small book called "Waiting Winds of the Revolution in Michigan Literature".

In it, the author, Edith W. Ash, relates the roles of such sites as Sault Ste. Marie, Fort Michillmac, Mackinac Island, and L'Arbre Croche (the Harbor Springs-Cross Village area), as well as the well-known forts at St. Joseph and Detroit and elsewhere.

The book is available for $4 from Mrs. Ash at 9 West Beecher Street, Osseo, MI. 49266.

To help promote beautification of Charlevoix in the month of May, the Charlevoix High School chapter of the National Honor Society participated in a tree planting ceremony Saturday which was Arbor Day. On hand were, left to right, club advisor Glen Taylor, chapter president Vicki Falting, club representative Anne Biddick and John Campbell of Site Planning Development which donated the tree. The high school campus was chosen as a location for the tree by seniors who wished to leave something to be remembered by. (Photo by Larry Reising.)

Color correcting and contouring in both hair and makeup were the themes presented by owners David and Cheryl Stevenson. This year's unique feature was a dual slide show that gave the audience a chance to see what the models looked like before their haircuts, highlighting and makeup applications. Photography was provided by Jim Jones. Guitarist John Gofill provided the pre-show entertainment and pianist Paul Schaffenberg played background music during the show while Mary Lee Huber commentated. Attending were people from Charlevoix, Petoskey, Boyne City and Harbor Springs as well as from such distant places as Gatesville in the UP and Oklahoma. (Photos by Betty Washburne.)

MAY

Special events planned for Natl. Hospital Week

An evening presentation on hypertension for the public, an all-week blood pressure clinic and a half-day seminar for high school students on health field careers are part of Charlevoix Area Hospital's National Hospital Week observance May 10-16 with the theme "Looking Well into the Future."

Thursday evening, May 14, Dr. Bruce Lindsay will conduct the evening session with questions and answers on the problem of hypertension - high blood pressure - starting at 7 p.m. This is the second of the preventive medicine evenings sponsored by the hospital's Community Health Education Committee for area residents.

The public is invited but because of space limitations, people interested in attending are urged to call the Charlevoix Area Hospital. The first such meeting, in April, had a standing-room-only crowd, for Hospital Dietician Diane Charlebois' presentation "Diets - Facts and Fancy."

The evening presentation on hypertension by Dr. Lindsay will cover causes, side effects and treatment. The physician explained that among the side effects of high blood pressure are cardiac problems, cerebrovascular disease and kidney disease.

He also stated that there are ways of treating hypertension. He explained that it can be hereditary but that diet is an important factor. Studies in Japan have shown that a high salt diet is associated with high blood pressure and strokes; but Japanese who immigrate to the United States and change from their largely salt water fish diets develop lower blood pressure.

"No one should eat an excessive amount of salt. We all like potato chips and pretzels but we should use salt in moderation," said Dr. Lindsay.

"Blood pressure clinics will be conducted during National Hospital Week, Monday through Friday, May 11-15 from 1 to 8 p.m. at the Charlevoix Area Hospital's Emergency Room. Everyone is welcome to have their blood pressure checked for no charge at these sessions. Those found to have high blood pressure will be urged to see a physician of their choice.

All afternoon on Tuesday, May 12, area high school juniors and seniors, selected by their guidance counselors or who have indicated an interest in the health care field will participate in a seminar with hospital staff members.

The students will be given an opportunity to hear first hand from doctors, nurses, repiratory and physical therapists, X-ray technologists, a dietician and an Emergency Medical Technician from a fire department about their work and education. Students from Charlevoix, East Jordan, Boyne City, Boyne Falls, Central Lake and Beaver Island will attend.

The Charlevoix Area Hospital Women's Guild has volunteered to help conduct the blood pressure clinics, provide refreshments for the visiting high school students and serve as registrars for the evening hypertension meeting.

Kingsmen set Benefit Concert

The Kingsmen Quartet will sing a Youth Benefit Concert at the Community Church of God, 202 W. Hurlbut St. in Charlevoix on Saturday, May 9, according to Rev. Walter Hastings, pastor. The one-hour concert begins at 7:30 p.m. and will include all of their old-time favorites including "Noah", "Ezekiel", "Fourth Man in the Fire" and "Daddy Sang Bass".

A free-will offering will be received to help send the young people of the church to the State Youth Convention in Kalamazoo. A pie, coffee and ice cream social will be held afterwards in the church fellowship hall.

The original Kingsmen Quartet was formed about ten years ago. The present quartet still includes three original members: Kenneth Boss, lead; Elmer Engelhart, bass and Mrs. Jeanne Jensen, pianist. Daniel Mort, tenor and Pastor Walter Hastings, baritone, have been singing with the quartet for three years. All are members of the Community Church of God.

The public is invited to attend the concert.

At their April 21 meeting, the Charlevoix Women's Club hosted representatives of several local agencies to whom the club allocated a total of $1,000 in donations. On hand were, left to right, Nancy Murray, club president, Richard Krueger, administrator of the Charlevoix Area Hospital which received $100 for its library; Mrs. Harold Kohn who accepted $150 for the Chip Counseling Center; Sheriff George Lasater who accepted $200 for the Junior Deputy program; Mrs. Bruce Bartlett who accepted $150 for Girls State; Nancy Stewart who accepted $150 for the Womens Resource Center and Mrs. Donald Farrell who accepted $75 for the Charlevoix Humane Society.

A GIFT FROM THE HEART

Link your heart to hers with a heart of diamonds, the most romantic gemstone there is. Over the centuries a mystique has grown around diamond. Nothing can surpass it in hardness. And no other material reacts so spectacularly with light.

Diamond is pure carbon, but it's a far cry from graphite or charcoal. During its formation under enormous heat and pressure, the carbon atoms were packed very tightly. This unique structure is what gives diamond its incredible hardness and allows it to take on such a superior luster. The atomic configuration also allows easy cleavage in certain directions of the stone, so care should be taken not to knock it against a hard surface.

Because of its unique qualities, diamond has come to symbolize love. The gift of a diamond heart ring multiplies the impact of your statement. The heart, of course, is another recognized love symbol. The never-ending circle of the ring band symbolizes eternity. The third finger of the left hand, upon which promise, engagement and wedding rings are traditionally worn, was once believed to have a direct connection to the heart. If you bestow such a ring upon your lady love, there should be no doubt about your feelings.

The heart shape in jewelry, like the diamond, is a classic. It isn't effected by the whims of fashion. At Reusch we're featuring a special collection of diamond heart jewelry that has been designed by some of America's finest jewelry manufacturers. You might say we're promoting love this year. That's something that doesn't go out of style either.

Before...and After

Charlevoix baseball players, from Little League to high school, have little to complain about any more in the way of facilities. Thanks to hours of volunteer work and many generous donations from local businesses and others, the Senior League diamond on Grant St. has never looked better and is perhaps one of the best baseball facilities in the area. Above is a photo of the field taken about three years ago when weeds crept onto the base paths, the players had nowhere to sit and the backstop looked as if it might not stand for long. An initiative to renovate the field started by Dr. Donald Trimper has done much to improve those sad conditions.

Shown below is the diamond the way it appears today. Among the improvements coordinated by Trimper have been a grading and leveling of the field, a top dressing of the infield and part of the outfield, seeding of the top dressed area, repair of the backstop, building of new dugouts and benches, installation of a water supply, repair of the scoreboard, the filling of a large depression in right field, construction of small bleachers and the erection of a shortside line fence.

Contributions for the Senior League renovations have come from the Charlevoix Lions Club, Medusa Cement Company, Charlevoix Gravel, Erber Auto, Kit Carson Lumber and Conrad Klooster, Inc.

Tight defense helps Rayder nine win three

Last week was another good one for the Rayder hardball squad as they swept a pair from Rogers City on Monday and came away with a split against Seault Ste. Marie.

In Monday's first game, Mike Loper started on the mound for Charlevoix and was relieved in the 7th by Jeff Greene. In an excellent defensive battle, according to Coach Pete Spieles, the Rayders managed three runs on two hits for a 3-2 victory.

Rogers City had four hits including a two-run homer in the 7th by Steve Urban that accounted for all the Hurons' runs.

Gregg Whitley had the only two hits for Charlevoix.

In the second game Monday, Kurt Puffpaff held Rogers City to three runs on four hits which was enough to allow Charlevoix to make the sweep with a 5-3 win. The Rayders exploded to score all their runs in the second inning with hits by Buchanan, Kelly, Trimper and two for Jon Spieles. Urban homered again for Rogers City in the 5th but it was not enough to overtake the Rayders.

On Thursday against the Soo, Charlevoix won big in the first game 6-2 to extend their winning streak to six games. Scott Kelly was the winning pitcher. The Soo team was held to two runs on five hits.

Ken Spiegl wielded a big bat for Charlevoix collecting three hits including a home run. Spieles also homered for the Rayders, Buchanan had two hits and Zeitler and Puffpaff each clocked a single.

In the second game, the Rayders finally bowed to winning pitcher LaCoursiere whofired a two hitter to handcuff Charlevoix. Greene started on the mound for Charlevoix but was relieved in the 5th by Craig Klooster. Between them, the Rayder hurlers gave up five runs on seven hits in the 5-2 loss to the Soo.

Charlevoix's only scoring came in the 5th inning when Jon Supernaw homered with one on base for the Rayders.

Garden Club displays wildflower quilt

Delegates to the annual convention of the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan to be held at the Dearborn Hyatt Regency Hotel May 18-20 were named at a recent meeting of the Charlevoix Area Garden Club held at the home of Mrs. Ray Wood.

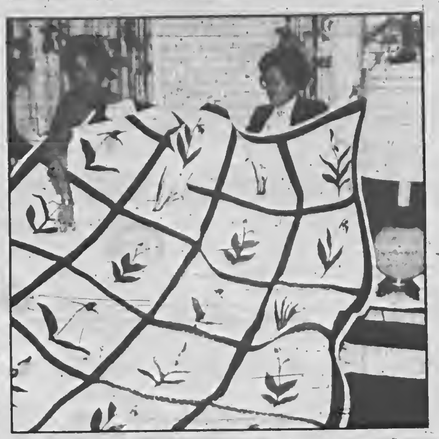
They are Mrs. Robert Close and Mrs. Homer Brady.

At the same meeting, Mrs. Norman Billings, District V director, exhibited the complete wildflower quilt to which each of the 20 clubs in the district contributed a block. The quilt was then assembled. The ladyslipper was selected as the District V flower. Mrs. Donald Swinton appliqued the Charlevoix club's block.

The quilt is a district project to raise funds to offset the $50,000 payment to the Nature Conservancy for purchase of the Green Bay area, an 80-acre tract of land in Cheboygan County bordering on Lake Huron. The purchase is a Federated Garden Clubs project with each of the seven districts making a wildflower quilt on which tickets will be sold at $1 each to raise the neccessary funds. Tickets may be purchased from Garden Club members.

At the recent meeting, Mrs. Jack Beatty presented a lesson on sprouts. Seed packets were distributed tor trial. Earlier, Mrs. Close had presented a lesson on berries.

An excursion to the Green Bay area has been planned for June 5. On May 12, the annual guest breakfast meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Orval Hicks with Mrs. Tai Hie Kang as co-hostess. Mrs. Roy Raymer will present a program on "Herbs from Biblical Times".



Mrs. David Fowler, left, and Mrs. Homer Brady display the wildflower quilt the 20 garden clubs of District V have made as a fundraising project. Each of the seven districts in the state have made wildflower quilts to be given away at the annual convention of the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan to support the purchase of the Green Bay area in Cheboygan County for the Nature Conservancy.

Legal battle looms between township and Castle Farms

by DAVE KNIGHT

Marion Township took one step closer to a courtroom showdown with Arthur Reibel Monday night by authorizing their attorney to initiate legal action against Reibel's Castle Farms Music Theater.

At their regular meeting, the township board introduced as their special counsel Attorney Norman G. Robiner of the Detroit firm of Hoffa, Chodak, Robiner.

Robiner said at the meeting that he anticipated filing a suit sometime this week against Castle Farms. He declined to specify the nature of the suit saying he did not want to discuss strategy before the township board was informed of all options available to them.

By a unanimous vote at the close of the meeting, the board authorized Robiner to institute legal action against Castle Farms for "any and all violations of the township's gathering ordinance."

Advertising and ticket sales, both locally and in other areas in the state, continued this week for the opening concert of the Castle Farms 1981 series, Molly Hatchett. The first concert is scheduled for Sunday, May 24.

Township Supervisor Michael Bonar said that a reapplication had been received from Castle Farms for a summer-long permit to hold the outdoor rock concerts but that it was returned with the application fee. Castle Farms' first application was rejected at an April 21 meeting for not meeting a list of eleven standards recommended by Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater.

The two items on that list with which Reibel has refused to comply are a crowd limit of 7,000 for any one concert and the banning of alcohol consumption on concert grounds.

The question of Castle Farms' status with the state Liquor Control Commission was discussed Monday night with Marion Township Attorney Stephen Graham speculating that, although Castle Farms' liquor license has not been renewed, it would probably not be difficult for Reibel to regain the license by meeting the normal criteria set by the commission.

The board acted on two amendments to their gathering ordinance relating directly to Castle Farms. One would delete the exemption from the ordinance of gatherings sponsored by tax exempt organizations and government agencies and another would require toilet facilities at a ratio of one for every 150 males in attendance and one for every 150 females. Previous ratios were one for every 200 males and one for every three hundred females.

Referendum petition puts hitch in Hemingway Point condo plan

by PEG OHLE

The construction of a condominium complex on Hemingway Point in Eveline Township has been stymied for the time being.

The property was rezoned from R-1 (single family) to R-3 (multiple family) by the township board on April 14, thus paving the way for the condominium development.

However, 123 township electors have signed petitions asking for a referendum vote on the rezoning. Because the petitions were received too late to be included on the May 19 "Proposition A" ballot, it will probably be July before the vote can take place, according to township and county officials.

Before the April 14 action by the Eveline Township board, the project had received the blessing of both the Township Planning Commission and the Charlevoix County Planning Commission.

The developer of the property, Art Gutchess of Petoskey, has proposed the construction of 12 two-story, 28-foot high buildings along the 4,000-plus feet of Lake Charlevoix frontage which is part of the property. Each building would have six condominium units. Construction would proceed in units over a five-year period.

In presenting his plans to the Charlevoix County Planning Commission, Seaborne pointed out the low density of the project, which would utilize only 10 percent of the acreage contained in the parcel. The other 90 percent, according to Seaborne, "would remain in a natural state for future generations to enjoy."

One Eveline Township resident who was active in securing signatures for the petitions asked that she not be identified but volunteered the information that she and others who initiated the petitions "don't want the kind of condominium development that has taken over Charlevoix and Boyne City."

She pointed out that this is the first instance of condominiums being proposed in a rural area around Lake Charlevoix. "This would be a precedent-setting case," she said. "We would like to keep the R-1 zoning. We've had a 24.7 percent increase in population during the last 10 years. It's been a nice, even growth, not high spot growth. Condominiums are speculative, too – many of them are rented. We don't like that aspect of it, either," she added.

There were about 20 residents actively engaged in the petition drive, this source indicated.

Boat Show to feature latest in equipment

A rite of spring, the Annual Charlevoix Waterfront Boat Show, inaugurates the season, starting Friday evening, May 15, and running through Sunday, the 17th.

Sailboats, power boats, yachts, fishing boats, dinghies, sailboards, jet skis and the latest in marine electronics will be on display, both in Charlevoix's waterfront park and in the water at slips facing the park.

Sunday's events will be highlighted by a half hour concert in East Park by the Charlevoix High School Symphonic Band at 2 p.m.

The Coast Guard and Coast Guard Auxiliary will also be on hand during the boat show to discuss and answer questions about the new marine safety regulations which go into effect this summer. Of particular interest to boaters will be information on flares and flare guns and light regulations.

The Coast Guard's 44 foot rescue boat will also be tied in the Round Lake Harbor slip. The public will be invited on board for inspection.

While a Vice President of Kawasaki demonstrates his company's latest model Jet Ski in Round Lake Harbor, several of northern Michigan's best known marinas and marine experts will be there to discuss their boats and marine products.

The show officially opens at 6 p.m. Friday evening and continues through to 6 p.m. Sunday evening.

The boat show is sponsored by Irish Boat Shop, Northern Michigan's largest sail boat marina; Northwest Marine and Brokerage, a power boat sales and service marina; Walstrom Marine, the Harbor Springs-based large power yacht facility; and Fairport Electronics, whose radar, Loran, and other marine electronics equipment is used by both commercial and private boat owners throughout the Great Lakes.

Visitors will have an opportunity to climb aboard such sailboats as the Catalina 27 and the new 5-2 9.2 meter, or new Sea Ray and Glastron power boats, and a 35 foot Chris Craft double cabin yacht.

Visitors may go out for short demonstration rides on some of these craft.

The art of navigating by Loran C will be demonstrated on SOMEDAY, a 41 foot Halberg-Rassey ketch, tied up at a slip edging the grassy slopes of Charlevoix's waterfront park. Radar and other of the latest in marine electronics will be onboard SOMEDAY as well as on shore – including depth sounders, autopilots, VHF radio telephones, recording sounders, hailers, and sailboat electronic wind instruments.

New planner named

Lawrence R. Sullivan, who has been on the Planning Staff of the Northwest Michigan Regional Planning and Development Commission in Traverse City, will assume the duties of Charlevoix County Planner on June 1.

Sullivan is the third person to head the County Planning Department since its inception in 1971. Bill Mercer held the position from 1971 to 1978, and John Hess, who recently resigned, held it from 1978 to April of this year.

The new Planner holds a Bachelor of Science degree from Michigan State University in Urban Planning, and has worked in the fields of Land Use Planning, Coastal Management, Recreation Planning, and Solid Waste Management Planning.

It is in the latter field that Sullivan's experience will be immediately helpful in Charlevoix County, since the County is under a State mandate to develop a Solid Waste Management Plan by January of 1982.

Sullivan is 25 years old and a native of Lansing. He was selected for the job after being interviewed last week by the Personnel Committee of the County Board of Commissioners and a committee from the County Planning Commission. Four other professional Planners were also interviewed at the same time. They had all been selected from a field of over 50 who had presented resumes for the job.

Sullivan will start the job of County Planner at a salary of $16,000.

Towering 105 feet from the ground to the tip of the propeller blade is the newest contributor to the Top O' Michigan Rural Electric Co-op power grid, a wind-powered electrical generator erected Thursday by Ivan Witzhoft on his property adjacent to the Charlevoix Township athletic field. The 10 kw generator, designed by Milville Windmills, Inc. of California, is the first of its kind in this area to be wired directly into the Top O' Michigan system. Witzhoft's firm, Charlevoix Electrical Services, will be local distributors of the design.

Early deadline!

Because of the Memorial Day holiday, an early deadline of 12 noon, Thursday, May 21 has been set for all advertising and news copy for the Wednesday, May 27 edition of the Charlevoix Courier. Every little bit helps at County Humane Society where business has been jumping lately

by PEG OHLE

When Glen's Markets presented the Charlevoix County Humane Society with a check for $1,059.96 last week, they reached a new high in the size of Save-Share checks presented to any organization.

The check, which was accepted by Society board member D'Ann Rothenberger, represented several thousand Glen's Save-Share slips, mostly from the Charlevoix and East Jordan stores.

This was not the first Save-Share check the Humane Society has received, either. Since 1978, a total of $2,907.78 has been turned over to the Society in return for Save-Share slips.

This money has gone a long way to help with the cost of animal care at the Society's Shelter, and to provide the many services undertaken by the Society.

During April, 24 adult dogs went to the Shelter. While only one was adopted, others were returned to their owners, leaving 18 in the Shelter at the end of the month. Sixteen puppies also went to the Shelter, providing nine for adoption and leaving 11 at the end of the month. Also, two cats and 15 kittens entered the Shelter. Two cats and 15 kittens were adopted.

While none of the "left over" animals had to be destroyed during April, there were just too many by the first week in May, according to Vernice Smith, Shelter manager.

Among the other services provided by the Charlevoix County Humane Society are a Lost and Found department, a catalog of people who want certain types of animals (so they have a home as soon as they are brought to the Shelter), a place to buy County dog licenses, and a cross index file of dog licenses to help locate the owners of lost dogs.

The Humane Society has 179 members, who pay annual dues of $5 each. Annual fund-raising activities include a flea market (to benefit dogs, why not?), tag days, a dog show, dog obedience classes, lemonade stands in the park during special events, contribution cannisters placed in stores around the County, and a Christmas Open House, to which guests bring gifts of food and money for the animals.

Other funds come from donations by other organizations, bequests, memoriums, as well as from adoption fees and per diem care charges.

When the Charlevoix County Animal Shelter was opened on August 24, 1975, it was the culmination of several years of joint effort by the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners and the Humane Society.

The County paid for construction of the building and furnishing the kennel part of it. They also agreed to assume the cost of caring for adult dogs and furnishing them with food, heat, water, and electricity. This is done by the Sheriff's Department.

The Humane Society paid for the costs of furnishing their offices in the Animal Shelter and in addition bought other needed equipment for the Shelter. They have complete responsibility for the care and feeding of puppies and all cats and kittens.

Mrs. Smith's salary is also paid by the Humane Society. She has been with the organization since 1977, after moving north from Lansing, where she managed the Ingham County Humane Society for 12 years. She is assisted by two high school students who are working under a CETA training program, and an occasional helper sent to her by the Department of Social Services.

The Animal Shelter is open Mondays through Fridays from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. It is located on the grounds of the Sheriff's Department just off Garfield and Grant Streets.

The Humane Society meets the second Wednesday of each month, alternating between the Charlevoix City Hall and the East Jordan library. The May meeting will be held in East Jordan.

Bill Mathews is president of the Humane Society, Toni Jeffrey is vice-president, Jan Ballard is secretary, and Dick Wheeler is treasurer.

Members of the board of directors are Essie Ross, Millie Mack, Deanne Hurwitz, William Miller, Martha Mathews, D'Ann Rothenberger, Jan Ballard, Martha Annear, Linda Snyder, and Donna Wojan.

They would welcome help from any interested persons.

Vernice Smith and friend.

Fund drive will seek to double size of Mt. McSauba Ski Lodge

by FRAN MARTIN

Plans to increase the size of the Ski Lodge at the Mt. McSauba Ski Hill operated by the Charlevoix Recreation Department have been revealed.

"The increased used of the facility as a ski lodge during the winter months and as a base for the Mt. McSauba summer day camp has made it feasible to enlarge the structure at this time," said City Manager James Brinker.

To support the proposed expansion program, the City Council has earmarked $4,000 as its share with the understanding that the remainder of the estimated $8,000 be raised by public subscription.

Jack Gebott, director of the Mt. McSauba Day Camp for the past five seasons, has been named to head the fund campaign which will be launched this week.

The early snowfall last December plus the addition of the snowmaking equipment at the site has made it possible to extend the ski season, it was explained. The cost of the special equipment was underwritten by private contributions and did much to keep the slopes in operation during the ski season.

Based on season and day tickets sold, it is estimated that as many as 3,000 skiers used the facility last season.

The day camp, which opened in 1976 with 60 campers, grew to 220 youngsters during the 1980 season under a staff of four with Gebott as camp director.

The winter usage includes three ski slopes plus trails for cross country skiing.

During the summer, the 54 acres that comprise the park lends itself to a variety of activities offered at the day camp.

"Other than establishing trails through the property, we have done our best to maintain the park in its natural state which offers an ideal outdoor setting for the program offered by the day camp," said Gebott.

The Ski Lodge, as it is known, offers a base for the day camp operation while in the winter it is the focal point for activities at the winter sports park.

Community support for the proposed construction project will continue to keep the park a community-oriented activity.

When the park came into being in 1956, it was the result of volunteer labor on the part of many and the contributions by many others that made it a reality as a winter ski area on the property that had been owned by the city for many years.

Under the guidance of the late Frank Boss and the engineering expertise of Greg Shadko, the present ski hill was built. A Petoskey-based construction firm contributed heavy equipment and operators at a low cost because it was its off-season. Local residents doanted their time to build the slope, clear the area and cut trails.

The late P.D. Campbell, who owned adjacent property, donated a parcel of land in order that the slope be lengthened.

The project had the support of the Charlevoix Community Chest and these funds plus the private contributions made it possible to build the Ski Lodge. The late Earl Young doanted the classic Onaway stone used in the fireplace and Drew Young constructed the fireplace. Much of the work that did not require skilled labor was done by volunteers during work bees.

Even the original ski tow was a contribution, a time-worn 1½ ton Ford truck donated by Don Parsel. Primitive, yes, but it powered the tow equipment until more sophisticated equipment was possible. In the beginning, it was recalled, a clothespun was clamped to the throttle control to regulate the speed of the tow. After five years this was replaced by the electric tow constructed by Jess Penn and Don Parsel which is still in use.

For the first 18 years it was operated, Mr. and Mrs. Chuck Meier managed the facility, contributing many hours as did volunteers in order to provide a local ski facility for the youngsters of the Charlevoix area.

In 1976 the McSauba Recreation Corporation was phased out and the operation placed under the direction of the Charlevoix Recreation Department which has expanded the facility to its present size.

It is the increased use of the facility in the winter as well as in the summer that has brought about the decision to increase the size of the Ski Lodge.

The Charlevoix Historical Society has already contributed cement blocks remaining from its recent construction project and numerous tentative financial commitments have been made toward the project, said Gebott. He went on to say that when community contributions reach the $2,000 mark, which, with the city's share of $4,000, will represent 75 percent of the total estimated cost, the construction of the addition will begin. It is hoped that it will be completed in time for the opening of the 1981 day camp season which begins in early July.

Contributions may be sent to the Charlevoix Recreation Department and are tax deductible. Further information is available from Gebott at 547-5233 or 547-4272.

A fund campaign will start this week to double the size of the Ski Lodge at Mt. McSauba shown above.

Knight on the Town

Northwest Michigan Live

by Dave Knight

An exciting concept that could do much to further develop a Northwestern Michigan identity was unveiled last week at Brownwood resort and restaurant on Torch Lake.

Television programming for our area originates for the most part from network studios in New York or Los Angeles. That which is not network fare comes from no closer than Traverse City, Cadillac, Alpena or the Soo.

Even the programming purported to be local is mainly news and community service type material. Little or nothing has ever been done in the way of showcasing some of the unique entertainment found in this, one of the Midwest's classiest resort areas.

Coble subscribers are even more insulated from local influence on the shows they are offered. The wider variety they enjoy are only more programs originating from downstate or elsewhere.

This summer, an unusual project will attempt to fill the niche created by a lack of local entertainment programming on television channels not only of this area but in some sizeable market areas downstate.

Sometime in mid-June, Brownwood will close its doors for a couple days and begin production on "Hello Michigan", a series of half-hour entertainment shows filmed on the stage of their cavernous barn-turned-night club.

Few expenses are to be spared in production. A crew of 19 will work on the set with all the latest equipment available. Lights, cameras and sound equipment will all be state of the art.

Around 200 hours of video tape will be laid down thus creating the biggest chore of the project: editing the tape into a few half-hour segments.

To date, sponsorships have been sold to several interests including Antrim County whose county board generously chipped in $2,000 for a spot promoting the county. The exposure they will receive will be in some geographic areas from which they can expect some tangible results.

In addition to the sponsors, the show is also being sold to cable networks downstate. In effect, the flow of television programming in this instance will be reversed and the metro viewers will be watching programming from the North.

And it won't be on fishing.

To give an idea of the promotional job involved, it should be realized that not a minute of the show is in the can yet and won't be until it's debut in late June. All the sponsorships and cable interests sold so far have been sold on the concept. The producers do not even have a pilot.

Obviously, somebody's been doing one heck of a selling job.

But the confidence - and apparently the capital - are there. Time has been bought on all three Northern Michigan major network channels for the half-hour debut of "Hello Michigan" at 11:30 p.m. on June 25.

Venturesome though it may, a project like this can do nothing but good for the Northwestern Michigan scene. It gives us a chance to say "Here we are and here are some of the great things about our area!"

After all, what's wrong with a little chest thumping in these worrisome economic times? Sometimes that's all it takes to get the heart pumping again.

New boating distress signal regulations explained

from the U.S. Coast Guard

The boating season is upon us and Great Lakes Boaters should be aware of the new visual distress signal regulation. Although the regulation is relatively straightforward, a number of misconceptions and questions have surfaced pertaining to this regulation.

In the Great Lakes states, the regulation applies only to boaters on the five Great Lakes and the bays which empty into these lakes, the Detroit River from Lake Erie upstream to the Wyandotte Yacht Basin and the St. Lawrence River downstream from Lake Ontario to Browns Bay. Other bodies of water, even though under joint federal and state jurisdiction, are not affected by this regulation.

All vessels operating between sunset and sunrise on waters to which this regulation applies are required to carry the appropriate visual distress signals. During the daytime, the following vessels are NOT required to carry any signals: manually propelled vessels, any vessel less than 18 feet in length, sailboats of a completely open construction less than 26 feet long with no propulsion machinery and any vessel participating in a marine parade or regatta.

The specific type of visual distress signal used is a matter of personal preference to the boater as long as the signal is Coast Guard approved or certified and the required number of signals are carried. Following are the available types of visual distress signals:

Hand held red flares, three required, accepted for day and night use; Floating orange smoke, three required, accepted for day use only; Pistol projected parachute red flare, three required, accepted for day and night use; Self contained rocket propelled red flare, three required, accepted for day and night use; Hand held orange smoke, three required, accepted for day use only; Pistol projected red aerial flare, three required, accepted for day and night use; Orange flag, (3' by 3'), one required, accepted for day use only; Distress light, (S.O.S.), one required, accepted for night use only.

Vessels noted above which are exempt from the daytime carriage requirement and are operating at night need only carry a device suitable for night use, all other vessels must carry devices suitable for both day and night use at all times or one suitable for night use only and one accepted for day use when carried in conjunction. Prudent boaters may carry additional signaling (approved or nonapproved) to meet their particular boating needs.

Certain nonapproved signaling devices will meet the requirements only until July 1, 1982. These devices are: pistol projected parachute or aerial red flares and orange smoke devices.

When buying visual distress signals, caution should be used. The device should be marked with a Coast Guard approval or certification number. Certain popular advertisements claiming a package of visual distress signals "is the law" exceed the minimum federal requirements or may not be marked with approval numbers.

When traveling to Canadian waters you should have no problems with authorities as long as your pyrotechnic signals are used for what they were designed; distress signaling. Any use of these devices in a non-distress situation or to threaten or endanger any person or property will subject you to fine or arrest in Canadian or any other waters.

Clockwise

A sad, confusing situation

by Bob Clock

The civilized world was plunged into sadness last Monday when word spread that Bobby Sands, the Irish nationalist, had starved himself to death in H-Block of Maze Prison in Belfast.

The grief was not so much for Sands, who only came to public attention two months ago when his hunger strike started, as it was for the senseless and continuing confrontation bewteen Protestants and Catholics in Northern Ireland.

Sands' death probably was felt strongest in the United States by the progeny of Irish expatriots who know from experience that it is possible for the two religious groups to live in blissful harmony once they leave the Auld Sod. My forebears came from both Ulster and the Republic of Ireland; but they somehow managed to marry and have children once they left behind the seething hatred of the mother country.

Today we celebrate St. Patrick's Day and Orangemen's Day with equal gusto -- totally oblivious of the wide gulf that still separates Catholics and Protestants in the Old Country.

I think Americans are particularly confused about the situation in Ulster because in newspictures and on television it is impossible to tell which side is which unless the combatants carry signs.

The slim young Ulster Protestant in blue jeans and T-shirt heaving firebombs in downtown Belfast appears to be a blood brother to the slim young Ulster Catholic in blue jeans and T-shirt heaving firebombs on the other side of the street.

John Corrigan of the South Side Apartments, whose family came from the Belfast area by way of Glasgow, insists that the Irish are the most racially homogenous people in the world.

Then why the problem?

Economics enters into it, to be sure. Protestants reportedly control the job market in Ulster and the best-paying jobs, according to Irish observers, invariably go to Protestants, leaving only menial, poorly paid jobs for Catholics.

I have heard this so often it must contain a grain of truth; but I also know that the businessman who plays favorites with religion is not much of a businessman. Not only does he alienate a good many potential customers, but he also often fails to get the best man to do the job.

It is hard to imagine that "fraternal lodge" mentality is still rampant in this enlightened age in Northern Ireland, but apparently it is. And as long as it persists, Ulster is in for trouble.

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher has come into sharp focus during the Sands affair and presently is being condemned as a murderess or hailed as a champion of law and order, depending on where you stand politically and ecclesiastically. Sands, who was jailed on firearms charges, wanted Mrs. Thatcher to declare him a political prisoner rather than a civil prisoner in order to gain preferential standing.

Mrs. Thatcher declined, saying Sands was nothing but a common criminal.

Something in me says Mrs. Thatcher was right; that recognition of Sands as a political prisoner would mean recognition of the Irish Republican Army (IRA) as a viable political institution.

But something else tells me that the Sands' impasse would have turned out differently if Mrs. Thatcher had allowed her womanly -- perhaps even her motherly -- instincts come into play.

These instincts are among her most unusual assets as Britain's first woman prime minister, and she botched a good chance to use them.

How much happier the world would be today if Mrs. Thatcher had visited Sands at Maze Prison, maybe with a thermos of hot chicken soup in her attache case. Over lunch, she could have enlisted Sands' help in working out a solution to the Irish dilemma and ended his fast at the same time.

Of course, I didn't know Sands; but I do know chicken soup and the miracles it can work.

Weddings

Revoir-Coffield

Vicki Ann Revoir, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Revoir of Charlevoix, and Douglas John Coffield, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Coffield of Durand, were married recently at South Flint Tabernacle Church.

Rev. Glen Fitzpatrick performed the ceremony before an altar decorated with Boston ferns. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a peasant style gown with long sleeves and a tiered skirt. She carried a bouquet of white orchids, ivy and baby's breath with accents of ferns.

Piano music was provided by Ken Fitzpatrick, cousin of the bride. Soloist was Becky Coffield, sister-in-law of the groom, who sang "We've Only Just Begun".

Rhonda Doutve, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a deep rose crepe street length gown.

Dan Coffield, brother of the groom, served as best man and ushers were Greg Revoir, brother of the bride, and Kerry Fitzpatrick, cousin of the bride.

A reception followed the ceremony at the church.

Following a honeymoon to Toronto, the couple will reside in Columbus, Ohio where the groom is attending college. The bride is a 1977 graduate of Charlevoix High School and the groom attended Durand schools.

The groom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner at Wally's Supper Club of Flint.

Missions convention to be held at Church of God.

The Second Annual Faith-Promise Missions Convention will be held at the Community Church of God in Charlevoix this Friday through Sunday, May 15 to 17, according to the Rev. Walter G. Hastings, pastor.

Speakers for the week-end convention will be Dick and Terri Robbins, Louise Bass, the Rev. William Hampson, and James Boocher.

The Missions Convention offers the opportunity to become personally acquainted with missionaries and to become educated about the cause and needs of missions. The Faith-Promise concept is a new approach to raising money for missions, because it is a convenant that a person makes with God to pass on a specific amount of money to missions that God supplies from an unanticipated source in honor of the person's faith.

Project goals for missions total $12,000, and include worldwide missions ministries, projects within the state of Michigan, and local ministries projects. The projects chosen have doubled last year's project goals of $6,000.

The Missions Convention begins Friday with an opening rally at 7:30 p.m. with the Rev. William Hampson as the speaker. "Mr. Dick Robbins will speak at the Saturday morning men's breakfast at 8 a.m., while his wife, Terri Robbins, will speak at the noon luncheon for ladies. Then, Mrs. Louise Bass will speak Saturday night at the 8 p.m. international potluck dinner. The convention will climax Sunday morning with Sunday School at 9:45 a.m. and the 11 a.m. worship service, when Mr. Robbins will again speak. Sunday evening, Mr. James Boocher will show slides of his recent spot-missions trip to the West Indies.

Special music will be presented during the convention by Terri Robbins, who is a recording artist, by Marvin and Candice Booth of Traverse City, and by the Kingsmen Quarter.

Dick and Terri Robbins served as missionaries to the Phillipines from 1978 to 1980, and they will be returning this summer after completing further education. He has degrees in English, Physical Education, School Administration, and in Missions and Bible, while she has a nursing degree.

Louise Bass served as a missionary with Wycliffe Bible Translators in Papua, New Guinea from 1961 to 1979, along with her husband, Jack. When he died in 1979, she moved to Traverse City, and still uses her degree in Art Education by doing Biblical illustrations for Wycliffe.

The Rev. William Hampson graduated from the School of Theology in Anderson, Indiana in 1978, and then assumed the pastorate of the new Delta Community Church of God in Lansing.

The public is welcome to attend all of the special services during the Faith-Promise Missions Convention.

A Mother's Day Fashion and Hairstyling Show and Bazaar was held at Duffy's of Charlevoix on Saturday, May 2. Shown above are models, from left, Lisa Klingberg, Laurie Helms and Cindy Richardson being demonstrated on by cosmetologists Barb McGlinch, Gwen Anderson and Sally Bass, all of Gwen's Harbor View. Other local businesses participating in the show were Orange Blossom Lane, Mettlers, Burnsides, Bahnhof, The Clothing Company, P.S. The Added Touch, Brumm's Studio and Wickerville Station.

East Jordan EMTs to now be specialists

Five members of the East Jordan Ambulance Service have been studying to become Emergency Medical Technologist Specialists, with the cooperation of the physicians and staff at the East Jordan Family Health Center and the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

The five, each already licensed Emergency Medical Technologists (EMTs) have spent 30 hours in classroom study and 29 hours in clinical work at the East Jordan Family Health Center and the Charlevoix Area Hospital. Doctors Bruce Lindsay, Mitchell Carey and Reed Freidinger provided the classroom teaching.

The final steps in their licensing as EMT Specialists is a three-hour state examination which they will take June 1.

The addition of the "specialist" designation to the EMT will mean that the ambulance crew members will be able to administer intervenous medication for shock to patients, establish life lines for victims of cardiac arrest and perform additional medical procedures not permitted for EMTs.

"We are pushing hard to offer this advanced service," Bernie Hammond, Ambulance Administrator for the City of East Jordan recently explained.

Hammond said the EMT Specialist classification was designed "to fill the gap between the basic EMT classification and Paramedic classification."

He explained that in addition to the training for the personnel, the EMT Specialist classification has required the acquisition of a $6,000 radio service linking the ambulances with the health center and hospital.

The radio link, Hammond continued, permits the EMT Specialist to communicate with a physician who may direct him to administer the intervenous medication or apply other life saving procedures.

As of July 1, all ambulances in Michigan will be required to have an EMT on board whenever they are carrying a patient, Hammond stated.

The East Jordan Ambulance Service will become licensed at the higher classification as a "Limited Advanced Service" with the addition of EMT Specialists.

The five crew members who undertook the study are Donald Bowers, Tom Vanderwall, Guy Vallance, Vicky Sutliff and Hammond.

Hammond was appreciative of the cooperation the two medical facilities provided for their training.

"There are just not enough words to praise the hospital for its help. Without the hospital's cooperation we could not have gone into this. We had to have hospital training."

The five aspiring EMT Specialists each spent 29 hours either at the East Jordan Family Health Center or the Charlevoix Area Hospital, working with emergency room staff, learning their techniques and treating those patients who agreed to participate.

This will definitely improve the initial care we can give patients," said Hammond, "We are doing this because we know the patients will benefit in the end."

East Jordan Ambulance Administrator Bernie Hammond demonstrates the preparation of an IV for shock under the guidance of RN Patty Fels at the Charlevoix Area Hospital emergency room. Hammond is one of five members of the East Jordan Ambulance Service who have been studying to become Emergency Medical Technologist Specialists withe the help of hospital staff members. Robin Kraft, hospital receptionist, plays the role of the patient.

In addition to four more wins on their record, the Charlevoix girls softball team have a trophy to show for their week's activities.

On Thursday, the girls picked up two conference wins at the expense of Gaylord by scores of 9-3 and 8-6 and on Saturday they beat Central Lake 8-3 and 15-2 for the first place trophy at the Central Lake tournament.

Thursday's action saw Rhonda Buchanan finally surrender her first hit of the season against Gaylord but it was the only one Gaylord could manage in losing to the Rayders 9-3. Buchanan logged seven strikeouts and six walks in the game.

Offensively Melinda Klooster knocked two hits while Mel Kerridge, Teresa Noirot, Bridget Noirot and Colleen LaBlance also hit safely.

In game two, Gaylord got six runs on three hits off pitcher Melinda Klooster but they were not enough as the Rayders' six hits provided eight runs and the victory.

Kerridge led the offensive attack with a triple and a single, Doretta Anderson had a double and Bridget Noirot, Teresa Noirot and LaBlance also collected hits.

In Saturday's tournament, Charlevoix met Central Lake who had beaten Kalkaska 15-0 in the opener. The Rayders came out on top by a 8-3 margin behind the pitching of Rhonda Buchanan who allowed four hits, struck out 11 and walked four.

Charlevoix's seven hits were amassed by LaBlance, with two, and Bridget Noirot, Klooster, Holly Taber, Brenda Buchanan and Anderson with one hit each.

In the championship game, Charlevoix met Central Lake again and this time left no doubt with a 15-2 victory. Klooster pitched a three hitter and hit a double, as did Anderson.

Also hitting safely were LaBlance, Taber and Brenda Buchanan.

The girls are now 10-0 for the season.

Homers boost Rayder baseball squad to pair of sweeps

Charlevoix remained unscathed in Michigan-Huron Shores conference action last week as the diamondmen picked up four more wins by sweeping doubleheaders from Grayling Monday and Gaylord Thursday.

They now stand 10-1 for the year and undeated in conference play.

On Monday, Kurt Puffpaff, with relief help from Mike Loper in the fourth inning, held Grayling to two runs on five hits en route to a 13-2 shellacking by the Rayders.

Mike Zeitler led the offensive attack for Charlevoix with three hits including a home run; Jon Supernaw socked two hits, one of which was also a homer and Loper smashed a home run to help the cause. Collecting two hits apiece were Scott Kelly and Jim Buchanan and with one hit each were Jeff Greene and Ken Speigl.

In the second game, Charlevoix won 7-1 with Loper starting on the mound to pick up the win with Keg Wojan relieving him in the fourth inning. Loper was as dangerous from the plate as he was from the mound as he hit two home runs for the Rayders to bring his total for the day to three.

Others who participated in Charlevoix's eight-hit attack were Buchanan with two hits, Kelly with two and Speigl and Zeitler with one each.

-Grayling was held to three hits.

In Thursday's first game against Gaylord, the Rayders came out swinging again with ten hits and 14 runs to back up starting pitcher Scott Kelly in a 14-5 victory.

Kelly provided three of the hits himself as did Buchanan. Supernaw had two hits and Zeitler and Loper one each. Gaylord socked nine hits, including two homers, but could only manage to get five across the plate.

In game two, Loper pitched, with relief from Ken Wojan, and again smacked a homer to help seal a 12-2 win.

Collecting two hits each were Buchanan and Spieles; also hitting safely were Kelly, Speigl and Zeitler.

Only a few wild mushroom species are safe to eat says Health Dept.

Every year local health departments throughout Michigan receive confirmation of people becoming ill after eating wild mushrooms. Of the over 2,000 types of mushrooms that grow in Michigan, only a small percentage are of the good and edible varieties.

Scott Olmstead, environmentalist for District Health Department No. 3 which includes Charlevoix County, reminds individuals to use the utmost caution when consuming wild mushrooms. According to Olmstead, "unless you are completely sure that the mushrooms you have picked are non-toxic and safe to eat, throw them out."

Licensed food service establishments are not permitted by law to use any foods that are not obtained from a commercially approved source. Since wild mushrooms are not from an approved source, they may not be used in licensed restaurants.

Marilyn Smith, mycologist (mushroom expert) from Petoskey, is a member of a network of people throughout Michigan who are trained to help identify edible mushrooms from the types that contain poison. She received her training from John Trestrail, Associate Director of the Western Michigan Poison Control Center in Grand Rapids.

Marilyn suggests that "People should be very cautious when eating beefsteak mushrooms. Beefsteaks contain a poison that can cause an adverse reaction if they are ingested in large enough quantities."

She added that "each person's tolerance is a little different. What can be a safe ingested amount for one person may be poisonous to the next."

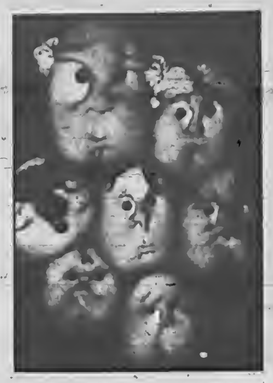
Mushroom pickers do have good sources of information available to them. Local extension offices have, for a low cost, two excellent pamphlets entitled "Don't Pick Poison" and "May Is Morel Month in Michigan."

The true mushroom hunter can also take advantage of a lecture that will be presented by Trestrail of the Poison Control Center. His lecture will be part of the annual Boyne City Mushroom Festival. He has been scheduled to speak in Boyne City on Saturday, May 9 from 3 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Trestrail does have some suggestions for anyone who may develop any of the symptoms of musbroom poisoning (nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, sharp abdominal pains three to 24 hours after eating mushrooms). First, keep a sample of each type of mushroom that you have preserved. Second, call the Michigan Poison Control Center at 800-442-4571. The samples will be preserved best when they are wrapped in wax paper and stored in the refrigerator.

Trestrail could best sum up his feelings about being cautious when eating mushrooms by saying, "There are old mushroom hunters and there are bold mushroom hunters but there are not many old, bold mushroom hunters."

Mycologist Marilyn Smith and Health Department environmentalist Scott Olmstead study an area that will probably produce mushrooms once the temperature increases.



This soft sculpture of some interesting faces by Charlevoix High School senior Sue Smith was one of several pieces displayed Wednesday, May 6 at the annual Student Art Fair. Shown at the Elementary School was the work of Charlevoix Elementary, Middle and High School students.

Inspection permit dictated by new state law

by PEG OHLE

Another law requiring another permit for builders of residential and commercial structures became effective April 6.

According to County Building Inspector Howard Carson, a permit for inspection of the mechanical parts of new and remodeled buildings is now required.

The permit application forms indicate that inspections will cover heating systems, air conditioning units, fans, fuel tanks, air cleaners, humidifiers, chimneys, and gas ranges, among other items.

While a permit for inspection of a new single family residence is listed at $55, partial inspections for remodeling jobs could run even more, Carson says.

He points out that there is a $20 "base fee" for any type of inspection. Then, if a homeowner is installing a woodburning stove and chimney, for instance, those inspections could add another $50.

Inspections under the new Mechanical Code are being made by employees of the State, not the County Building Code Department. Some time ago, the County had the choice of assuming the responsibility of administering the Mechanical Code or letting the State do it, and chose the latter method.

There are now four State codes governing residential and commercial building – the Construction code, the Electrical code, the Plumbing code, and the Mechanical code. The County Building Code Department administers the Construction and Electrical codes, while the State handles the Plumbing and Mechanical codes.

Carson believes that in a year or so it might be wise for the County to assume the responsibility for the Plumbing and Mechanical codes, noting that one County inspector could probably handle both at a lower cost to the builder than the State charges.

"And we would be able to serve the public better because we would have an inspector available all the time," he added.

Memories of the bear recalled

The "Charlevoix Yesterday" picture in last week's Courier showing George Washington Smith and his pet black bear in front of the old Argo mill evoked further inormation about the bear and its owner.

George Washington Smith was the grandfather of Vane Smith, now principal of the Charlevoix High School. He was the skipper of a boat, the "Minnie S.", which ran a ferry service from the Chicago Club, The Inn, and the Belvedere Club to downtown Charlevoix. The bear was a regular passenger on the boat and provided entertainment for young and old as the boat putted from Lake Charlevoix into Round Lake.

Pictures of George Washington Smith and his bear as well as the "Minnie S." appear in Bob Miles' picture history of Charlevoix.

Sr. citizens dinner planned

An invitation has been issued by Clarence Goldstick and Paul Steffan, Post Commanders, to all senior citizens in the immediate area to attend the annual event which is scheduled for 6 p.m. Thursday, May 21.

The hosts consider the Charlevoix School District the Charlevoix area in extending the invitation. It is not neccessary to belong to an organized group to attend.

THE BRIDE WORE WHAT?
Yes, the bride wore white. But white was not all she wore. A flash of sapphire was seen on her finger as she tossed a bouquet of lavender iris. Gracing her neck was a gift from her father, a richly colored amethyst heart.
Brides are choosing colorful accents to add a personal touch to their wedding ensembles. They may select the same color that the bridal party is wearing. The bride mentioned above, for instance, had her bridesmaids wearing blue violet. Her gift to each attendant was a delicate gold filled pendant set with a small blue sapphire.
The contemporary bride wants to dazzle the crowd. That's why she accents her gown with a pendant or choker of pearls, diamonds, rubies, emeralds, or another stone in her favorite color. That's why she curls her hair around feature flattering earrings. Diamonds and pearls are the traditional favorites, but today's bride does not feel confined to these choices.
Although diamond engagement rings still rank number one, birthstones or favorite colored gems are popular alternatives. A combination of a colored stone and small diamonds are a delightful compromise. Wedding bands can be dressed up with any combination of diamonds or colored stones.
Jenjoy consulting with brides to be about their wedding jewelry because they're so enthusiastic and they eyes sparkle at the pieces I show them. This also gives me an opportunity to share my love affair – my love affair with gemstones.

Names In The News

Not much action at county delinquent tax sale

Forty parcels of Charlevoix County property were sold for taxes at the annual tax sale last week.

County Treasurer Anah Potter read the descriptions of 134 parcels on which 1978 or prior taxes had not been paid to a group of only 14 prospective buyers.

The number of would-be buyers has been decreasing in recent years, according to Mrs. Potter.

"We used to get as many as 50 people, many of them from downstate," she says, "but lately the number has been running between 12 and 20."

In January, when the Courier ran a list of Charlevoix County properties on which taxes were delinquent, there were 813 descriptions. Between then and tax sale day, 679 property owners "paid up".

Delinquent taxes on the 40 pieces of property sold last week amounted to approximately $10,000. The purchaser of each parcel of property received a certificate to be held for a period of one year, when the redemption period expires. If the parcel is redeemed by the former owner during that period, the tax sale purchaser will receive his purchase price plus interest. If the parcel is not redeemed within a year, the tax sale purchaser will receive a tax deed to the property. However, after this procedure, the former owner has another six months in which to redeem the property. It is only when this final six months period has passed without redemption that the tax sale buyer can be considered the actual owner of the property.

Beaver Island property drew the greatest interest from tax sale buyers. Ten parcels in Peaine Township and two in St. James Township were sold at the sale. Wilson Township was second in popularity, with ten parcels in that township changing hands.

Only two parcels in the City of Charlevoix were offered at the sale. Neither was sold.

Building permits now total 90

Thirty-nine permits were issued by the Charlevoix County Department of Building Inspection during April, bringing the total so far this year up to 90.

While only eight of the permits were for new residences, 13 of them were for additions to and remodeling of residences, and 10 were for residential garages.

Two of the new houses will be built in Melrose Township and one each in Eveline Township, Hayes Township, Peaine Township, St. James Township, South Arm Township, and Boyne City.

Construction costs of the eight new houses are estimated at $301,383 exclusive of heating and plumbing systems.

In the commercial category, only one building permit was issued – for the Woodland Oil Company station on the north side of Charlevoix.

Norwood luncheon planned

The Norwood United Methodist Women will sponsor a salad-casserole luncheon at Friendship Hall in the village of Norwood from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, May 20.

There will also be flowering spring plants and a display of needlework, Mrs. George Buckler, president of the group, has announced.

Tickets will be $2.50 per person.

Dennis VanGuilder

VanGuilder talks about new position as vice principal

by JOY CHAPMAN

Charlevoix High School teacher and coach Dennis VanGuilder has taken over as acting vice-principal at the high school for the remainder of the 1980-81 school year. He will devote half his time to the vice-principal position and half to classroom teaching. Van Guilder teaches third and sixth hour World History.

Former vice-principal David Smith has taken over as the acting principal of Charlevoix Middle School. The change was made because former Middle School principal Vincent Chew has resumed teaching in the classroom.

The Flash interviewed Van Guilder about his new position.

FLASH: Is being the new vice principal harder than being a teacher?

VANGUILDER: Well, yes, because there is more responsibility involved. As a teacher, you're basically concerned with students' behavior in the classroom but as the vice-principal, you are concerned with the behavior of the entire student body.

FLASH: Have students' attitudes changed toward you since you have become the new vice-principal?

VANGUILDER: During the first week, some students regarded me as a "power figure" and reacted differently toward me. But I'm finding, as the newness of the job is wearing off, it isn't as big of a deal to them.

FLASH: Well, now for the final question. Do you enjoy your new position?

VANGUILDER: Well, I'm still trying to decide. There are rewarding days when I really feel a great sense of achievement, but I still enjoy teaching in the classroom!

It's off to France for two CHS students

by JIM BOGGS and KIM RUSSELL

This summer is going to be a very adventurous one for two of our Charlevoix High School students; they have both been accepted to eschange programs in France.

Lisa Hoffman will leave Charlevois July 10 and Collen Smith soon afterwards to meet in Chicago along with many other eager, French-studying students. From there, Lisa will fly to New York for two days of orientation on French life and customs from the Pacific Intercultural Exchange. Colleen will immediately fly to Paris, France and spend two weeks receiving her orientation and language courses from the Youth for Understanding eschange program.

The girls are going to live with French families and actually experience the French lifestyle. Lisa will spend six weks living in France and she expects to have a lot of fun meeting new people and seeing new places, besides studying to speak and understand the language better.

Colleen, on the other hand, will spend a full year in France. Colleen expects to become fluent in the French language and to become familiar with the culture and customs of the area. Since Colleen will be in France during the school year, she will attend a French high school and graduate with the senior class there.

School ought to be quite an experience since it's slightly different than school in the United States. In France, the kids go to school from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. This may seem like a long time but the schools in France allow two hours for the lunch break. Lunch time in France is the time for the family to get together and the schools recognize this. Another difference in their system is the fact that the kids don't go to school on Wednesdays, yet they go on Saturdays.

That might take some getting used to, Colleen!

Among the things the girls said they would miss the most were their family and friends. Also mentioned were the summer concerts and the soap opera "General Hospital".

Well, there you have it; two Charlevoix students in the news. Good luck Colleen and Lisa!

Blacksmith is latest rock band to form locally

by COLLEEN SMITH

Blacksmith, a newly formed band at Charlevoix High School, consists of Bryan Roloff on lead guitar, Cam Daigneault on drums and Andy Schaefer on bass guitar.

The musicians decided on the name "Blacksmith" for their band because people who work with heavy metal have that name and they work with heavy metal equipment.

The group was formed because they were all friends and they had the same interests in rock & roll music. The three of them started the band at the same time.

Blacksmith plays strictly rock & roll music. They perform songs by popular rock bands such as Led Zeppelin, Black Sabbath and Rush. They also write their own lyrics and music.

Blacksmith provides music for private parties right now but their manager, Mike Bogart, is lining up a possible job at The Pit in Traverse City.

Their plans for the future are to eventually play professionally and cut albums. They do not wear any particular costumes when they play but they will eventually. They usually wear everyday clothes, not anything really fancy.

They practice as often as they can, usually five days a week, as long as their daily schedules permit.

Blacksmith would like to give a special message to a former member of their band. They would like to thank David Krueger, who is an excellent drummer, for accepting the change.

Blacksmith announces that if anyone would like them to perform for a private party, they may contact Bryan Roloff at 547-6169. They will play for as many hours as they are needed and will charge $50. They are looking forward to the summer because they are in big demand to perform.

Bio students go camping

by KATIE CLOCK

Twenty-four advanced biology students went camping and hikiog at Picture Rocks, a secluded area near Munising, Michigan last weekend, May 8, 9 and 10, under the supervision of biology teacher Pete Spieles.

The class left Charlevoix on Friday, May 8, at around 5 a.m. They backpacked on a 12-mile trail carrying only the esseotials in their knapsacks.

For food they ate dried foode (such as Mug-a-Lunch) and drank purified Lake Superior water.

The object of the trip was to reinforce their studies in botany and zoology.

Thanks for the chance

We, the Charlevoix High School journalism class, would like to thank Dave Knight, the Charlevoix Courier staff and the advertisers for giving us the opportunity to print our articles in the Courier. It was a chance for us to espress our talents and feelings, while at the same time, learning responsibility. It's not often that a school is offered an experience like this and we thank you for your consideration.

Does he really care for you,
Are you what he's thinking of?

Does he mean that much to you,

Do you really love him,
Tell me does it show?

Are you the only one,
Does he love you so;
Does he really care for you,
Will you ever know?

French Club makes annual field trip

by KATIE CLOCK

The French Club members made their annual trek to Quebec under the supervision of Mrs. Yvonne Wendt and her husband, Dick, in the last week of April.

The students visited many historical sites including the Parliament buildings and the Chateau Frontenac.

Traveling to Quebec encourages students to speak French as well as to introduce them to a different culture.

The club members stayed at the Concorde, one of the more elite hotels in the city. The students tasted French cuisine, besides enjoying the sheer beauty of Quebec in the spring.

Smith, Greene appointed

Board picks coaches

The Charlevoix Board of Education, at its regular meeting Monday night hired two coaches, approved a resolution to form a Char-Em School Boards Association and heard several reports.

David J. Smith, who has been serving in an administrative capacity since coming to the Charlevoix School System in 1979, was hired as boys varsity basketball for the 1981-82 school year. A graduate of Central Michigan University with B.S. and M.A. degrees, he was a junior varsity coach at Saginaw MacArthur High School for two years before going to Ida High School, a Class B consolidated school in Monroe county where his teams had a 65-43 record during the five years he was there. He came to Charlevoix as assistant high school principal and is presently middle school principal. He succeeds Dave Moyer who was fired following the recent basketball season after serving as varsity basketball coach since 1975.

Smith's appointment was approved by a unanimous vote with Steven G. Smith abstaining.

Van Greene, a teacher in the middle school who has had 17 years experience as a coach, was hired as girls junior varsity basketball coach on the recommendation of the head coach, Henry Wagner, and the curriculum committee. His hiring was approved by a vote of 4 to 3 with Max Novak Smith, Doris Pearl and Elaine Martin casting aye votes and Ardeth Wieland, Kenneth Boss and Michael Gibbons casting nay votes. The latter three felt that a female coach should have been hired because girls need the reassurance and understanding a woman can offer. This marked the third time the issue had been brought to a vote.

The resolution relating to the proposed formation of a Char-Em School Boards Association was also approved unanimously with one member absent. The association has been proposed because the schools within the Char-Em district share so many programs and the students in the district benefit from coordinated planning and improved communications between the boards of education.

In other action, the board gave its approval to Thomas Sothard to take a group of students in the Middle School Honors Program to Chicago in 1982. The students are presently earning money to finance the trip.

Dale Burge, athletic director, reported briefly on a promotion seminar he had attended recently in Ann Arbor.

Doris Pearl advised the board that all shelving ordered earlier was now in use; that older books had been transferred to the lower floor; that the ramp leading to the library proper was being re-vamped and that efforts were being made to repair the bronze statue that had been damaged by vandals.

Elaine Martin reported on the professional study committee and said that among other suggestions, teachers were asking for a uniform policy for grading, attendance, make-up work and suspension throughout the schools.

Yvonne Wendt, French teacher, reported on the recent trip by the French club to Quebec. She said that she felt the trip was very worthwhile, that since French is the language spoken there students were made to utilize their knowledge of the language, that the trip had given them a sense of responsibility and introduced them to a different life style.

Venetian Festival planning underway

Although July 23-25 seems a long way off, planning is well underway for the 1981 Venetian Festival in Charlevoix, the 51st annual observance of the weekend celebration.

General chairman of this year's festival is Phil Loomis, public affairs director at the Big Rock nuclear plant. Loomis has organized the Venetian committee and has been in meetings with the committee since early May.

Two major events of the Venetian Festival are previewed below. Other events will be featured in coming weeks. The general theme this year is Walt Disney.

Parade to start earlier

An earlier start and an emphasis on quality and safety will mark this year's Venetian Festival parade to be held Saturday, July 25 in downtown Charlevoix.

Chairman of this year's parade is Marina LaBlance who announced last week some important changes in the parade format developed by the parade committee.

In order to accomodate the five drum and bugle corps that will appear in the parade, the starting time has been changed from 12 noon to 10 a.m. The drum and bugle corps that will appear in Charlevoix are scheduled to be in Sault Ste. Maries later that day for competition, thus prompting the earlier parade time. Organizers also felt that more people would stay to have lunch at the many food stands downtown if the parade was started before noon.

Another new concept this year will be the setting of parade rules. A general list of six rules was announced by LaBalnce who said they are aimed at making the parade better and safer. Included in the rules are the following:

1. All applications for entries must be submitted to either the Chamber of Commerce or to Marina LaBlance, 301 Nichols, by 5 p.m., Monday, July 13. No entries will be accepted past the deadline.

2. On the parade date, all entires are to report to a registration office at Carpenter and U.S. 31 by 8 a.m.

3. All entries will be given a designated number and corresponding position in the parade.

4. No flowers, candy, samples, literature or anything may be handed out or thrown by parade entries.

5. No motorcycles or two-wheeled powered vehicles will be accepted.

6. Each parade entry will travel the parade route only once.

Pageant deadline June 15

June 15 has been set as the deadline for entries in the Miss Charlevoix pageant to be held Thursday, July 23 as part of the Venetian Festival.

Chairman Georgia LaBlance, a veteran of three years as pageant coordinator, announced that planning for the pageant has begun and that this year's edition proves to be as exciting as ever.

The theme is to be Frontier Days which ties in with Disneyland's Frontier Land and the general Disney theme of the weekend festivities. That theme will be carried out in the pageant's traditional opening number in which all the contestants participate. Dance instructor Pat Carland will be working with all the girls on the opening number along with Lois Hodgson who will work on choreography and costumes.

Master of ceremonies for the evening will be Bill Vogel, another veteran, and pianist Marina LaBlanee will accompany any girl who wishes in the talent portion of the pagenat.

Other entertainment will feature return appearances by the Beaver island Sweet Adelines, the Pine River Quartet and other surprises.

The Miss Charlevoix competition will involve a luncheon interview with the judges, coordinated by Tori Fisher, bathing suit competition, talent and evening gowns. Coaching help is available to any girl who wishes it.

Said Chairman LaBlance, "We will not be sending our candidate to Miss Michigan again but we hope to be able to send her to apother Miss Michigan sanctioned competition where, if she wins, she will then be able to go on to Miss Michigan. She will also represent Charlevoix in the Miss Cherry Queen and will appear in several parades around the area.

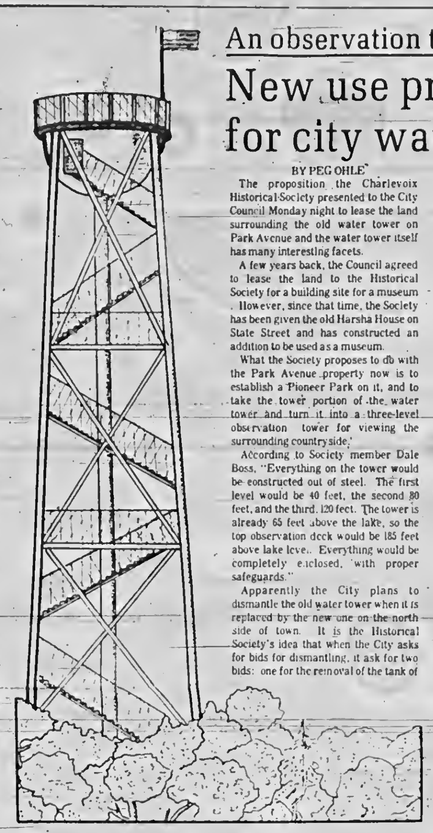
An observation tower?

New use proposed for city water tower



BY PEG OHLE

The proposition the Charlevoix Historical Society presented to the City Council Monday night to lease the land surrounding the old water tower on Park Avenue and the water tower itself has many interesting facets.

A few years back, the Council agreed to lease the land to the Historical Society for a building site for a museum. However, since that time, the Society has been given the old Harsha House on State Street and has constructed an addition to be used as a museum.

What the Society proposes to do with the Park Avenue property now is to establish a Pioneer Park on it, and to take the tower portion of the water tower and turn it into a three-level observation tower for viewing the surrounding countryside.

According to Society member Dale Boss, "Everything on the tower would be constructed out of steel. The first level would be 40 feet, the second 80 feet, and the third 120 feet. The tower is already 65 feet above the lake, so the top observation deck would be 185 feet above lake leve. Everything would be completely enclosed, with proper safeguards."

Apparently the City plans to dismantle the old water tower when it is replaced by the new one on the north side of town. It is the Historical Society's idea that when the City asks for bids for dismantling, it ask for two bids: one for the removal of the tank of top of the structure only, and one for dismantling the whole structure. They believe that the money saved by removing only the tank part of the structure could be used to buy structural steel to "start fabricating the stairways."

The Charlevoix Historical Society has had these plans under consideration for some time, even to the extent of checking into the cost of insurance to operate the tower as an observation facility.

"The Society realizes that they are going to have to raise monies in considerable sums for this project, but we feel this depressed area could use a tourist attraction that would bring people in to town," Society president W. W. Price stated in a letter to the City Council.

The Society, which is over 100 years old, has had a resurgence in recent years, especially with the publication and sales of Bob Miles picture history of Charlevoix, and the acquisition of the Harsha House.

The City Council has tabled the matter for further study.

Hearing Wednesday

A show cause hearing will be held Wednesday, May 20 at 9 a.m. at 33rd Circuit Court, Petoskey, to show why a preliminary injunction against Castle Farms should not be granted. The Marion Township Board is seeking the injunction to stop the May 24 planned concert at the music theatre.

A temporary injunction was denied Friday, pending the show cause hearing on Wednesday.

The board is also seeking a permanent injunction to halt all summer concerts.

The complaint, filed Friday, reads that despite denial by the township board of a concert license, Castle Farms and Pyramid Productions are nevertheless organizing, promoting and planning" for the May 24 concert. This is in direct violation of the township's gathering ordinance, the complaint states.

In a related matter, 24 "no standing, parking or stopping" signs are to be installed along sections of several roads near the music theatre. Upon Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater's request, the Charlevoix County Road Commission ordered the signs for Clark, Venstra, Loeb, Novotny, Pops, Wickersham, Brocks and Shaw roads and Castle View Drive.

The signs are intended to reduce pedestrian traffic along these roads during concerts and reduce the chances of someone getting injured.

Fred Welch, road commission engineer-director, told that the signs should be delivered in the next two weeks.

Stop!

Streets to get signs

City Council voted to place stop signs at the corner of Antrim and Grant streets Monday in an effort to control speeding on Antrim.

City Manager James Brunker read reports from the state police and other agencies indicating installation of the stop signs would not slow traffic and might even increase speeds along certain stretches, but the council voted to try the stop sign approach.

"I think it's worth a try," Second Ward councilman James Block said. "We've gotten a bunch of petitions and a lot of phone calls. We have to do something."

Antrim Street residents have complained about speeders on the through street which is used as an ambulance route to Charlevoix Area Hospital. The corner formerly was controlled by a blinking light. With the installation of the new stop signs it will be a four-way stop corner.

In other action, the council voted to pay 25 percent of the cost of repairing a storm sewer running from Dixon Street to Round Lake. The sewer runs under the Doug Bathey house on the shores of Round Lake. Bathey had said he would pay 50 percent of the cost of relocating the drain.

City officials have maintained the house was constructed on a city easement and that Bathey should pay the full cost of relocating the drain or at least 75 percent.

Council members were split on the issue, with Mayor Sam Supernaw casting the tie-breaking vote.

Suprise party

Nancy Taylor given send off

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

A 150 piece marching, singing, percussion band, of children and parents who have been in Nancy Taylor's nursery school classes during the past six years, gave her a rousing send off last Wednesday afternoon.

The Taylor family is moving to Portage, Wisconsin, in June, where Nancy's husband Charlie has taken a position with the Portage Daily Register.

As the nursery school classroom filled with her admirers, Nancy Taylor sat in stunned amazement. Fourth graders, nearly as tall as their former teacher gave her bear hugs, shy kindergarten students stood in mute admiration, parents applauded, Dave Phillips read poetry, and Charlie and their children, Karen, 17, and Steve, 16, glowed with pride.

The surprise festivities were organized by Mrs. Taylor's fellow-teacher Dorothy Miller, the parents of the Cooperative Nursery and Dave Philipps, with the active collusion of elemeotary school principal Ralph Raymer and St. Mary's Principal Sister Agnes Mary Yeovlak who arranged for the older students to join the party.

Later, Nancy Taylor reminisced about her six years as teacher to some 187 children. She is fascinated by the changes she's observed.

"One of the major things I've noticed is more and more dads are showing an interest and a willingness to work with the nursery," she began.

As a cooperative, the nursery school requires that two parents work as teacher's aides during each class session.

Mrs. Taylor thinks this a major strength of the school. It also presents interesting working conditions for the teachers.

"Everyday we have two new aides," she laughed. "And sometimes it's a grandmother or a neighbor, if a parent can't make it."

"I also see a lot of interest in health and health foods, even though kids get things a bit mixed up at times," she laughed. "One girl asked if her granola bar was 'all natures candy.'"

"I see more broken homes," she continued, saying that becomes particularly poignant during holidays when students make cards for their parents or invite them to school parties.

The influence of TV is something that worries the teacher. Even Sesame

State water quality report at library

Lorenzo Wolgast, chairman of the Northwest Regional Planning and Development Commission, has announced that he has placed in the Charlevoix Public Library, for public review, a draft portion of the Michigan Water Quality Management Plan entitled "Recommended Plan". It has also been placed in four other libraries in the ten-county area served by the commission.

The document is a draft of the recommendations section of a Water Quality Management Plan that the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, Water Quality Management Planning Section, is developing. The "Recommended Plan" presents proposed changes aimed at improving the state's water pollution control programs.

This plan will be the basis for the draft Water Quality Management Plan which the state has scheduled to be available for public review within two months.

Official census count to be released

Official Charlevoix County federal census figures for 1980 are expected to be announced on June 1, according to County Prosecutor Scott Beatty.

Beatty will be a member of the Apportionment Committee which will use the census figures to set up Districts within the County for representation on the County Board of Commissioners.

At the present time, there are 15 Districts, each of which is represented by Commissioner on the County Board.

Some changes in District boundary lines will have to be made because of county population shifts. The Apportionment Committee may decide to continue with 15 Districts or cut the number to any figure down to five, as provided by state law.

Other members of the Apportionment Committee are County Clerk Jane Brannon, County Treasurer Anah Potter, Republican party chairman Walter Hufford, and Democratic party chairman Fritz Allard. They must complete their apportionment work within 60 days following announcement of official census figures.

Book fair planned at CMS

The Charlevoix Middle School will present a book fair at the school located on Grant St. on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, May 28, 29 and 30.

The display of Horizon books and paperbacks will be featured including books by Newberry Award winners and other good books for children.

On Saturday, the book fair, which will be held in the middle school gymnasium, will feature not only the best in children's literature but best selling novels for adults. The fair will be open from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday for the benefit of the public.

In announcing the fair, Mrs. Nancy Naguski said it is hoped that parents and children will take advantage of the fair to provide good reading materials for students during the summer recess.

INPO: Big Rock 'operated, maintained in safe manner'

"It is the (evaluation) team's joint opinion that Big Rock is being operated and maintained in a safe manner by competent personnel who have a great deal of experience and capability," said K.E. "Dennis" Wilkinson, president of the Institute for Nuclear Power Operations (INPO), following a recently conducted audit of the Big Rock nuclear plant.

The evaluation, conducted by 12 representatives of the Atlanta-based organization, reviewed plant management, operations, maintenance, chemistry, health physics, training, engineering and remedial procedures.

INPO was established by the U.S. nuclear industry following the Three Mile Island nuclear plant accident. Its stated purpose is to improve the management, operation and safety of nuclear plants by establishing industry-wide standards in plant operation, management, operator training and emergency preparedness.

According to a press release, the INPO audit directed to senior management of Consumers Power Company in Jackson, owners of the plant, and to plant officials, reported that the plant has an effective maintenance department and program; that radiation and contamination levels are low throughout the plant; that the technical department is well organized with engineering support well managed; that there are no "normal" alarms in the control room and few in the remainder of the plant while at power; that the emergency procedures are easy to use and that evidence of a good rapport with the surrounding communities.

An "area of concern" noted by the INPO staff was the procedures and number of people involved in training. According to Consumers Power officials, steps are being taken to improve the deficiency.

Plant superintendent Cy Hartman said that reports of INPO evaluations of other plants around the country will also be used to improve operations at Big Rock. Big Rock is the second Consumers Power nuclear facility to be reviewed; the first was Palisades near South Haven.

"Likewise," said Hartman, "we would expect that our reports will help other utilities."

"We're (Consumers Power and other utilities) not in competition with each other. We support our sister utilities and provide mutual assistance. INPO is proof of that interaction."

INPO is funded by utilities, both investor owned and publicly owned, that operate nuclear plants or have nuclear facilities under construction. John D. Selby, chairman of Consumers Power, is a member of INPO's board of directors.

The staff of Charlevoix Area Hospital conducted a half-day seminar for high school juniors and seniors from East Jordan, Boyne City, Boyne Falls, Charlevoix and Ellsworth, recently on careers in health fields. The students met with a nurse, doctor, laboratory technician, X-ray technologist, physical therapist, respiratory therapist, dietician, and the hospital administrator. The students heard short presentations on each staff member and had an opportunity to ask questions about the work and education of each. The session was part of the hospital's celebration of National Hospital Week.

Office to charge for special requests

Persons using the services of the Charlevoix County Treasurer's office will now be paying for the services on a revised fee schedule.

Those looking for a description of tax histories will be charged 25 cents per year per description, with a 50-cent minimum.

Those seeking a tax certification on plats will be charged $5.

Those taking up the time of an office employee up to half an hour will be charged $2.60, and those taking up from one-half hour to one hour will be charged $5.25.

"The latter fees represent the salary of our lowest paid employee," Treasurer Anah Potter explained.

"Sometimes we find ourselves so busy with people's special requests that we can't get our regular work done."

Memorial Day services announced; Roy C. Hayes to deliver address

by FRAN MARTIN

The community of Charlevoix will pay tribute to its war dead with the traditional Memorial Day parade and formal ceremony at Brookside Cemetery on Monday.

Roy C. Hayes, local attorney and former Charlevoix County prosecutor, will deliver the Memorial Day address at the program which is scheduled for approximately 10:45 a.m. at Brookside Cemetery.

Also appearing on the program will be Paul Stellan, Post Commander of the Leslie T. Shaplon Post No. 226, American Legion, who will lead the Pledge of Allegiance; Robert Best and a presentation by Charlevoix High School students; a floral presentation by Donald White, Post Commander, Charlevoix V.F.W. Post No. 1153 and Commander Steffan; a gun salute and taps by William Hortaon and Bryan Steelman of the Charlevoix High School Band.

Rev. Roger Ames of Christ Episcopal Church will give the invocation and Rev. Larry Grooters of Community Reformed the benediction.

Music will include patriotic selections and the National Anthem by the Charlevoix High School Marching Band under the direction of Terry Isenbarger.

Clement Olach will be master of ceremonies.

Clarence Goldstick of the V.F.W. and Harry Pearsall of the American Legion will be the parade marshalls.

George Zelker, a veteran of World War I and a member of the American Legion for 61 years will serve as honorary parade marshall.

The parade will form at the intersection of State St. and Park Ave. as in the past at 9:45 a.m.

The parade will begin promptly at 10 a.m. and proceed south on Bridge St. to East Park where the parade will pause briefly while the Auxiliaries of the American Legion and V.F.W. place a wreath on Round Lake and Benjamin S. Gill places a wreath at the U.S. Submarine Veterans of World War II Memorial. A 21-gun salute will be fired, taps sounded and the flags, which had been at half mast, raised to full mast followed by the playing of the National Anthem by the Charlevoix High School Band directed by Mr. Isenbarger.

The parade will then continue to Memorial Park at Bridge St. and Belvedere Ave. where a wreath will be placed at the Memorial and the flag raised to full mast.

Included in the parade will be the color guard and the firing squad composed of members of the two veterans organizations; V.F.W. and American Legion members on foot; members of the Michigan Chapter of the U.S. Submarine Veterans of World War II who will be in Charlevoix for their annual convention; members of the Auxiliaries on foot; the high school band; Boy and Girl Scouts; children on bicycles and horse riders.

In the event of inclement weather, the program will be held in the high school gymnasium.

Proposal A ad misleading

by Dave Knight

Paid advertisements appeared last week and this week in an area newspaper stating that the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners opposed Tax Proposal "A" which will be voted upon Tuesday.

Because this column will be read after the voters have decided the fate of Proposal "A", a discussion of its merits or shortcomings is pointless.

The point I wish to make here deals with the action taken by the Charlevoix County board.

As the advertisement was originally submitted, the only copy read: "The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners goes on record as opposing Proposal "A"."

Later checks with the State Election Commission by the Petoskey News-Review, with which the ad was placed to run Friday and Monday, confirmed that it definitely fell into the category of political advertising and was subject to the same requirements that apply, for instance, to advertising placed by candidates running for office.

That meant a disclaimer had to be added. A disclaimer is the small announcement included on every political advertisement, print or electronic, stating the name and address of who pays for the ad. In this case, the disclaimer, which was added to Friday's ad, read: "Paid for by Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners, Charlevoix County Building, Charlevoix, Michigan."

In the first place, I consider this disclaimer to be misleading.

The commissioners on the board did not pay for the ad. The taxpayers of Charlevoix County did.

And I think that's very wrong.

At their meeting last Wednesday, a resolution opposing, for the record, Proposal "A" passed 11-2 with two members absent. The board often acts on such resolutions when enough members feel strongly about an issue. Whether the board ever really influences anything one way or the other by "going on the record" depends, I suppose, on what is done with the record.

But it's their right and there's nothing wrong with it.

They followed up the vote, however, with a decision to buy the ads described above in the News-Review. The total cost will be over $100.

Cost is not really the point. Even though $100 is a lot to some people, it won't throw the county budget into turmoil. The point is that the Board of Commissioners has no business placing political advertising with county funds.

One reported comment defending the board's action was that the Governor had used state money to promote Proposal "A" so there is nothing wrong with using county money to oppose it. Whether or not Governor Milliken's administration acted appropriately in presenting the complicated tax plan to the voters could be argued forever. When does explanation of a statewide referendum become promotion?

Even if one believes that state taxpayers' money was incorrectly used, how does that then justify mishandling county taxpayers' money?

If those on the board who felt so strongly about Proposal "A" wanted to publicize their feelings, they should have simply taken a collection among themselves for advertising.

Small though it may be, the $100 spent to persuade people to vote the way eleven commissioners felt was a misuse of public funds and should not have happened.

Clockwise

Oliver, Oliver!

by Bob Cloch

IT WAS AN interesting coincidence that both the Charlevoix Elementary School and the Little Traverse Civic Theater decided on the musical "Oliver" as their spring production.

It is even more of a coincidence that some Charlevoix youngsters had parts in both productions —during the same week in May. Their parents should feel "over-Olivered," but no one is complaining.

The abbreviated school production, which was directed by Mrs. Pat Carlin, was excellent. I am perpetually amazed at how our music teachers can bring together a cast of literally hundreds of little kids and have their productions come off almost without a hitch.

The Little T production of "Oliver" was — well, there really isn't a word for it. Judy and I attended the Friday evening performance, and when it ended I was an emotional basket-case. I can't recall ever before feeling so good about this crazy old world and its crazy old people.

My only regret was that "Oliver," directed by Civic Theater vet Janice Smith of Petoskey, had only two more performances to run and both of them were sold out. I would have liked to see it again, and again and again.

As a native Detroiter, I spend a great deal of time at the Shubert-Lafayette and Cass theaters. I saw Maurice Evans play Hamlet, Guy Kibbee in "The Old Soak," Jeanette MacDonald in the stage version of "Bittersweet" and Robert Preston in "The Music Man."

But all of them were rank amateurs compared to Bob Kevoian of Harbor Springs who played Fagin; Gary Albert, also of Harbor Springs, who played the Artful Dodger; Dr. William Zoerhof of Petoskey, who played swashbuckling Bill Sykes; and winsome Bill Casper of Boyne City who played Oliver himself.

And then there were the rest of the kids — as soppy and wholesome a band of vagrants and vagabonds as you'll ever meet.

Although all of the lead roles were played with a professionalism seldom found in amateur theater, I was particularly struck with Gary Albert's portrayal of the Artful Dodger. Gary is a senior at Harbor Springs High School. He not only has appeared in high school productions but has had roles in Little T's "Sweet Charity" and "Shadow Box."

I don't often go out on a limb, but I'd like to predict that the entire country will be hearing more about Gary Albert if he sticks with the dramatic arts.

As far as Bob Kevoian is concerned, he could play Fagin on Broadway — starting tomorrow.

THIS LONG, COLD spring hasn't been without its advantages. I can't recall daffodils ever lingering week after week, as they have done this year.

However, the weather could warm up a mite for the tulips.

RESIDENTS in the vicinity of E. Dixon and Nettleton on Charlevoix's North Side can throw away their alarm clocks. A woodpecker has moved into the neighborhood and begins his rat-a-tat-tatting as early as 8 a.m. every day, according to Rich Kelly of Nettleton Street.

The soley bird's favorite roost is the top of a utility pole in front of Kelly's home. He has started at the top of the pole and apparently intends to whittle it down to the ground. When Woody is dining, the old pole reverberates throughout the neighborhood like a jack-hammer.

Vicki Williamson of Walloon Lake says woodpeckers once tried to eat her home when she lived in Texas. They riddled her redwood siding as badly it had to be replaced. Then the hungry birds started on the new siding.

Exterminators were called it, but they couldn't do a thing. Finally, in desperation, the Williamsons nailed two large rat traps to the siding and set them. After two woodpeckers met untimely ends, the rest took flight and the problem was solved.

Carol Smolinski of Hayes Township says a stuffed owl on the premises would have had the same effect.

Nancy Taylor

Street has its problems in her view.

"It wasn't meant to be watched three times day I find too often that we have to almost sell counting because Sesame Street fires things at them they don't have to respond."

TV watching is reflected in children's conversation, the teacher continued. "You don't realize what they are listening to until you hear a child say, "You know so and so had an abortion on Days of Our Lives,' and the other responds matter of factly, 'yes'"

TV is reflected in play as well, she observed.

"I know who's watching the Dukes of Hazard when the police car, which used to be treated with respect is crashed and battered.

"I've had to reteach respect for police and the law."

She says she worries about children staying up too late and watching inappropriate TV programs. She's also concerned that programs on day-time TV an inappropriate for young children.

On the positive side, the teacher has seen more young children become involved in the gymnastics program, developing more coordination and self-confidence," and turning on the TV for positive programs such as a performance by Nadia Communici.

"I also see more interest in music," she added.

One of the developments that pleases the teacher most is the new awareness children and parents have for handicapped people, as a result of the inclusion of handicapped youngsters in the nursery classes.

"I see sensitivity not pity nor avoidance."

The nursery's cooperative philosophy is carried out in many ways in the nursery classroom.

"I love that we have the children clean this room. They are proud of it being neat and tidy. I'd like to see that carried out all through the school."

Mrs. Taylor and Mrs. Miller decided this year to change the color scheme in the nursery after they reflected how children seemed to over react to too many stimulating colors.

The room which used to be a garrish mix of red, chartreuses and oranges has been toned down. The playhouse at one end has been repainted soft colors.

"When it was bright red we had to have a sign over the door limiting it to four children. They used it as a disco. Now, with the softer colors, we don't need to limit the children and they are using it for quieter activities – reading, talking, socializing," she explained.

Nursery schools will continue to be part of her life, but, she says, "I'm not making immediate plans. I want to be with Charlie through his recovery," she said. (Charlie Taylor recently suffered a heart attack requiring by-pass surgery. He is steadily recovering.)

"Someday I would like to start my own nursery in conjunction with a senior center. We all need each other. We've separated the older people. I'd love to put the children and seniors together. There are too many empty rocking chairs."

Asked what she thought she'd learned from her students she said:

"Never give pat answers.

"Learn to watch a butterfly come out of a cocoon.

"Enjoy snowflakes melting on your tongue."

And there remain some things she hasn't quite figured out.

"We have a class of flashers this year, I've never seen so much underwear. They come into class saying, 'Look at my Superman or Wonderwoman underpants,' " she began laughing.

"You can say that I just haven't made up my mind on this one. I'm bewildered."

An accomplishment Nancy Taylor and Dorothy Miller are particularly proud of achieving is a school policy to only enroll children in kindergarten who turn five on or before September 1st.

"Children are little time capsules," Mrs. Taylor stated. "More parents are realizing their children mature at different rates. Some children are cognitively ready at four – they know their numbers and letters, but are not socially and emotionally ready.

"The problems in this world are not numbers and letters, but feelings and respect," she concluded.

The trials, tribulations of a juvenile officer

BY PEG OHLE

If you're a police officer, you expect to be involved in dangerous situations from time to time. And you carry a gun.

If you're a juvenile officer, you face unknown conditions every time you go out. But you don't carry a gun.

Take the case of Brad Campbell, Charlevoix County juvenile officer. Campbell is 36 years old, five feet ten inches tall, and weighs 160 pounds. Not exactly a hulk of a man, but each week Campbell receives 12 to 15 calls after 2 a.m. to help juveniles who are in trouble.

These calls are in addition to the five or ten calls received earlier in the evening from clients or police agencies. He's on call 24 hours a day, seven days a week, and works an average of 65 hours a week.

Campbell reports being hung at, assaulted, abused, and chased down the street" by relatives and friends of juveniles he has gone to help. His life has been threatened and his residence ransacked.

Last week, the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners heard these details from Brad Campbell, along with his annual report. He told them that during 1980 he had 248 new cases, compared with 122 for 1979, and that for the first four months of 1981, there were 84 new cases. These were cases of children who were either delinquent or who were brought to the court's attention because of abuse or neglect. In 1980, the breakdown was 157 delinquents and 91 abuse or neglect cases.

It was up to Campbell to process all these cases, to interview the children, to investigate their home lives, to set up the proper court procedures, and finally, to make recommendations for the care and treatment of each individual child.

Then there is the follow-up. Some children are placed in foster homes, but they remain under the jurisdiction of the juvenile officer. He must make regular calls on them to check on their progress. Those who remain in their own homes must also be seen regularly, either at home or in Campbell's office, where, on certain days, a stream of children come and go.

And, behind all this, is the nagging worry that the cost of care of these unfortunate children is steadily rising. The bill for foster home care in 1980 was $122,505, while institutional care added another $12,950, and the cost of counseling services was $2,000.

By law, the parents of these children are responsible for whatever part of these costs of child care that they can afford. But there's a hitch. It takes time to assemble the figures, send out the bills, and follow up on them. There isn't that much time in Campbell's overloaded schedule, so the funds are not being collected.

That's why Campbell asked the Bord of Commissioners for an assistant: to help recover some of these funds.

"I'm interested in getting an organization for my office so we can recover funds that are lost because of lack of staffing. We can get money from parents of children in foster homes – about 50 percent can pay something. We get children from all walks of life. We should also recover the restitution costs that are

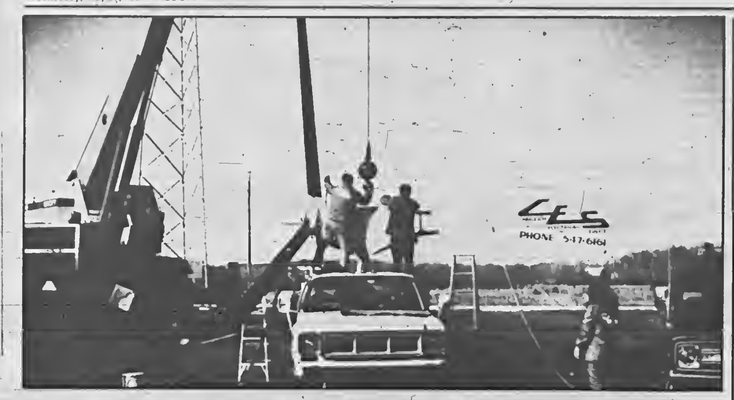
Charlevoix On Film



Co-generation of electricity became reality recently when Ivan Whitthoeft of Old Orchard Road in Charlevoix put his newly installed windmill into operation.

Dan Nelson, Manager of Engineering and Operations for Top O' Michigan Rural Electric Company, gave Whitthoeft the go-ahead to start producing his own electricity with his new 10 kilowatt wind powered induction generator. The windmill was made by Millville Wind and Solar Equipment.

The windmill is interconnected with Top O' Michigan's lines and any excess power produced will be sold back to Northern Michigan Electric Cooperative at a rate of 2.5 cents per kilowatt-hour. This is the first windmill on the Top O' Michigan system, however, there are plans for others in the area. The interconnection was done in compliance with the interim parallel generation rules set up by the Michigan Electric Cooperative Association in conjunction with the Michigan Public Service Commission.

Witthoeft, aided by a few friends, installed the windmill and the 88 foot tower on which it sets.

Nelson said he was pleased with the first wind generator installation and is looking forward to working with Witthoeft in gaining information which may be used for other installations in the future. Nelson added that persons seriously considering windmill generator information should contact Top O' Michigan in order to fully understand all of the necessary equipment, as well as the rules for such installations.

"Safety for the owner and his property, as well as to Top O' Michigan's personnel and equipment, are the prime concerns for these rules," Nelson said.

Weddings

Olson—Armstrong

Westhaven Baptist Church in Port Huron was the site of the April 25 marriage of Candace Penny Olson of Port Huron and Daniel L. Armstrong of Arlington, Texas. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Olson of Charlevoix and and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold R. Armstrong of Port Huron.

The bride was given in marriage by her father in the double-ring ceremony presided over by Hollis Chandler. She wore a dress of white organza with an empire waist, lace bodice with seed pearls, bishop sleeves, deep cuffs of lace, chapel-length train, flounced skirt and a white veil with pearls. Her bouquet was of white carnations and aqua tinted roses with aqua and white ribbons.

The maid of honor was Mrs. William (Sharon) Repper of Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan, sister of the bride. Best man was David A. Armstrong of Port Huron, brother of the groom. Ushers were David E. Dickinson, William Repper and Jeffrey Wagner.

Following a reception at the Fellowship Hall of the church, the couple took a wedding trip through the southern states. They are at home in Arlington, Texas.

Engagements

Pidek—VanLoo

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Pidek, Rt. 2, Box 89, Charlevoix, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Christine, to Darrin R. VanLoo, 101 Eaton, Charlevoix, son of Roxy VanLoo and Mrs. Fay VanLoo of Charlevoix. An August 22, 1981 wedding is planned at St. Mary's Church in Charlevoix.

The bride-to-be is attending Ferris State College where she is in the Criminal Justice program. The groom also attends Ferris State and is studying avionics.

Scholarship offered

Crooked Tree Arts Council of Emmet and Charlevoix Counties is sponsoring a voice scholarship to the Bay View Summer Conservatory of Music for the eight-week session this summer.

Auditions will be held Tuesday, May 26, 1981 at 7:30 p.m. in the Fellowship Room of the First Presbyterian Church in Petoskey.

These auditions are open to high school students in Emmet and Charlevoix Counties.

Applicants must be able to perform selections from the classical, romantic and-or contemporary periods. All music must be memorized. Students will be asked to sightread.

Judges for the audition will be Wilmer Moyer of Petoskey and Fran Tollas of Charlevoix.

often a part of the court orders," he told the group.

There are a lot of children in Charlevoix County, and each year more and more of them come to the attention of the juvenile officer.

"This year we will top 300 cases," Campbell believes. Our child abuse cases are almost catching up with our delinquency cases."

The juvenile court is responsible for children from birth through age 16, and can be kept under court jurisdiction until they are 19 if the case warrants it.

"What we are really trying to do," Campbell explains, "is nip in the bud these delinquent trends. If we can, we will cut down on the caseloads of the other courts."

Unmentioned to this point is another service of the juvenile court - guardianships and adoptions. In 1980, 40 guardianship cases and 19 adoptions went through the local court. In some ways, these were probably the lucky children.

For the responsibilities he shoulders, for the long hours of work, and for the dangers he constantly faces, Brad Campbell, a college graduate, receives $12,500 a year. He hasn't received a raise in almost three years because his salary, which is paid by the state, is set by the state legislature and hasn't been changed for some time. Campbell thinks it would be nice if Charlevoix County paid him a supplement, since most other counties in the state pay their juvenile officers a supplement.

Tennis team qualifies for state

The Charlevoix Rayder tennis team placed second behind Glen Lake in the Regional Tennis meet at Traverse City Friday and Saturday to qualify for competition in the state meet to be held at Kalamazoo Friday and Saturday, May 29 and 30.

Team coach, Cricket Uhrick, said the team played well with the four singles advancing to the finals. The team did not fare as well in the doubles but the 14 points they had earned qualified them for state competition. In winning the meet, Glen Lake had 21 points to top the 10 teams entered.

In Flight I, Dennis Mordridge advanced to the finals where he lost to Joe Gillen of Glen Lake 6-1, 6-2; Rick Rajewski in Flight II advanced to the finals where he lost to Matt Sutherland of Glen Lake 6-2, 6-3; in Flight III, Jeff Morgridge lost a tough match by scores of 4-6, 7-5, 3-6 and in Flight IV, Peter Cockfield lost to Laura Wiesen 6-2, 6-4.

In the doubles division, Pete Dunkelberg and Paul Hoffman lost their first match in a twosome they had defeated twice during scheduled play, Mark Toffolo and Kerry Kruzel of Boyne City. The Ramblers won by scores of 6-2, 7-5.

In Flight II Kris Lignell and Patrice Staley won their first match over a duo from Glen Lake and then lost in the semi finals to a twosome from Manistee Catholic by a score of 7-5, 7-5. In Flight III Lew Kline and Ingrid Wiemer won their first set 6-4 before dropping the next two to a duo from Leelanau 6-2, 6-4.

The team will play out its regular schedule before going to Kalamazoo on May 29-30. Harbor Springs will be here on Tuesday and the team will travel to Elk Rapids Thursday and play in the Petoskey Invitational tourney on Saturday.

Softball team advances in pre-district

Charlevoix's softball team, 17-0 on the season (not including Monday's contest), will travel to Elk Rapids Friday to play the Elks in a pre-district contest.

The Rayders won their first pre-district contest last week crushing Kalkaska, 24-0, on a one-hitter by Rhonda Buchanan. Charlevoix pounded out 22 hits.

Mel Kerridge led the onslaught with four singles, Rhonda and Brenda Buchanan added three singles each, Shari Jones and Doretta Anderson contributed a double and a single while Teresa Noirot, Melinda Klooster, Bridget Noirot and Colleen LaBlance chipped in with two singles apiece.

Rhonda Buchanan also tossed a two-hitter last week as the Rayders bombed Cheboygan Catholic, 27-0. LaBlance and Bridget Noirot had three singles to pace the 20 hit attack. Teresa Noirot, Klooster, Jones, Margo Smith and Anderson added two singles apiece.

In the nightcap, Charlevoix collected just five hits but still won, 8-5. Holly Taber picked up the victory. Klooster led the hitting parade with a double and single.

The girls found themselves up against tougher competition than they have been used to recently in the games with Petoskey.

In the first game, Rayder ace Rhonda Buchanan struck out six and held the opposition to three runs on three hits for the 6-3 win.

At the plate, Colleen LaBlance had a double and two singles, Mel Kerridge a double and a single and Teresa Noirot a single, a subpar performance for a Rayder team that is used to scoring in double figures regularly.

Buchanan continued her dominance from the mound in the second contest, again tossing a three hitter for an 8-5 victory. Rhonda walked five and struck out two.

Mel Kerridge smashed a home run and a single to lead the Charlevoix five-hit attack; Brenda Buchanan, Colleen LaBlance and Melinda Klooster all hit singles.

In Tuesday's action against Central Lake, Mejinda Klooster pitched the 14-0 shutout in the opener allowing only four hits. She struck out one and walked two in the process.

Teresa Noirot smacked a double and a single in the nine-hit Rayder attack; Klooster added two singles, Doretta Anderson hit a double and Rhanda Buchanan, Brenda Buchanan, Holly Taber and Bridget Noirot also hit safely.

In the second game, Charlevoix mounted another barrage from the plate scoring 17 runs on 13 hits. Central Lake was held to five runs on two hits by Rhonda Buchanan with relief help from Mel Kerridge.

Taber led the attack with a triple and a double while Kerridge had a pair of doubles in the game. Margo Smith hit three singles, Rhonda Buchanan had two and Bridget Noirot smacked a double. Colleen LaBlance, Teresa Noirot and Anderson all hit singles.

Lynn DeMoor, above, of Charlevoix, is a member of the women's tennis team this spring at Hope College in Holland, Michigan.

Charlevoix High School's cheerleading squads for next year's football season were announced last week. On the varsity squad (above) are (front, left to right) Linda Joy and Kim Curtis; second row, Janine Browa, Jennifer Juilleret, Kelly Thompson and Trish Morgan; third row, Colleen Wilhelm, Patti Cook and Michele Hollow. Junior varsity cheerleaders (below) are, front, Karen Spegil, seated from left Pam Drury and Carrie Richardson, standing, Debbie Rogers, Becky Wojan and Missy Walker.

Charlevoix's baseball squad split a doubleheader with Rogers City Thursday, losing the opener 7-1 and winning the nightcap 7-5.

In the opener, the Rayders managed just four hits in bowing to the Hurons. Two of the hits were doubles Ken Spiegl. Scott Kelly was saddled with the loss.

In the nightcap, Chris Putman picked up the victory although the Rayders were outhit. Jim Buchanan had two doubles for Charlevoix while Mike Loper added a pair of single.

Charlevoix's baseball squad was drummed out of the unbeaten ranks of the Michigan Huron Shores conference last Monday with an 11-3 defeat at the hands of Petoskey.

Charlevoix scattered seven hits but none for extra bases. Kelly, Jim Buchanan and Jeff Trimper each had two singles apiece and Jon Supernaw had one.

Rhythm of the Northwest

THANKS FOR PROVING US RIGHT.

On May 16, 1980 KHQ became Northwest Michigan's first full-service FM adult contemporary radio station. It was a new idea and you supported us.

Northwestern Michigan wanted more than just another FM music station. People told us they wanted a station that played a variety of contemporary music in great stereo; from their old favorites to their new ones. And we've worked hard to bring them that variety every day. But we didn't stop there.

We put together a staff which included nationally known professionals; a first on Northern Michigan FM. And, we added 24 hour news coverage with the KHQ news center and CBS.

One year ago, a full-service FM adult contemporary radio station was a bold new idea. But, when we put it all together — incredible music, credible information and entertaining personalities — it was an idea that worked. And 1 year later, ARBITRON, the radio industry's research source confirms it's working! In 12 counties of Northwest Michigan, KHQ is rated number one in audience share!* Thanks for your support.

GOLD: AN AWARD OF ACHIEVEMENT

Gold has long been considered the king of metals. This is probably related to man's age old worship of the sun, since the rich metal so beautifully captures the sun's warm radiance. Gold has graced the head of many a monarch, woven prestige into the gowns of nobility and hung from the coats of brave soldiers.

Gold has been used for centuries as an award for achievement in everything from sports to military service. That's why it is an excellent choice for a graduation gift.

It can be difficult to select a gift for young adults, because their tastes can change rapidly. But gold jewelry has an excellent record in the people pleasing area. You also have a wide selection to choose from: watches, rings, tie tacks, cuff links, stick pins, bracelets, pendants, neck chains, and a number of distinctive accessories such as pens and lighters.

Watches are a favorite gift from relatives. The look of gold can be captured here in gold plated, gold filled or solid gold models. There are analog watches, digital watches, pocket watches. The many faces of the watch include polished or enameled metals, gemstone slabs, even sheets of diamonds.

Rings are another favorite gift. The signet ring is a good choice because it is distinctive and tends to appeal to a wide range of personalities. Birthstone rings also have a personal touch.

Come see our complete line of fine jewelry gifts. For many people we've turned out to be a one stop shopping center at

Charlevoix remembers

Charlevoix's traditional Memorial Day observance was greeted by sunny skies midway through as several local residents lined Bridge Street for the parade and filed out to Brookside Cemetery for the annual program saluting area war veterans.

Charlevoix Attorney Roy C. Hayes, right, was the keynote speaker at the cemetery. Hayes paid tribute in particular to the many World War II submarine veterans present saying that the many perilous and lonely months they spent at sea during the war was typical of the high price paid by U. S. soldiers and sailors throughout the country's history to preserve America's freedom.

The submariners, one of whom is shown below saluting the flag in the bright vest and plumed hat worn by most of the group, were members of the Michigan Chapter of the U.S. Submarine Veterans of World War II. The chapter held its state convention in Charlevoix last weekend.

Breighner says show must go on; and it did

It was business as usual Sunday night at Castle Farms Music Theatre as the rock band Molly Hatchet went on as scheduled despite an attempt last week by Marion Township to stop the concert.

Crowd estimates varied from 4,000 to 6,000 for the concert. According to Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater and Charlevoix City Police Chief Jack Mol, the moderate size of the crowd resulted in a relatively smooth night for law enforcement personnel.

Thirty-five general activity complaints were recorded by Sheriff's deputies while Mol said no major problems were experienced in the city other than a brief period of heavy traffic.

Of the complaints logged, four were for trespassing, six for illegal camping, one for malicious destruction of property, two for disturbing the peace, four for minors in possession, five for disorderly conduct, three for illegal parking, one for assault, three for speeding, one for a property damage accident, one larceny, one illegal parking in the parking lot, two for alcohol consumption on a public highway and there was one lost child who was eventually found.

Judge Martin Breighner on Friday denied a temporary restraining order sought by Marion Township to halt the concert. A show cause hearing was held Wednesday at which testimony was heard from both sides in the dispute.

Breighner said in his decision that to have stopped Sunday's concert would have, in effect, threatened the future existence of the Castle Farms concerts and that such action was too severe under the circumstances.

Marion Township's attorney in the matter, Norman R. Robiner of Detroit, had filed to stop the concert on the grounds that Castle Farms was in violation of the township's gathering ordinance.

No seasonal concert permit has been issued to Castle Farms by the township on the recommendation of Sheriff Lasater and the Health Department. The major issues involved are LaSater's recommendations that the crowd size at Castle Farms concerts be limited to 7,000 and that alcohol not be allowed on the grounds during concerts.

Robiner indicated last week that an appeal would be filed before the next planned concert which is set for June 20. A June 6 concert was cancelled by the band involved because of an injury to a band member.

Proposal did no better here

As did all other 82 counties in the State, Charlevoix County last week turned "thumbs down" on Proposition A. The final vote was 1,284 for the proposition and 3,961 against it, for percentages of 24.2 and 75.7.

Precinct by precinct, the voting went like this:

Governor, State Supt. laud local test scores

The Charlevoix Public Schools have been commended for their fine performance in the 1980-81 Michigan Educational Assessment Program tests Supt. Gordon W. VanWieren has advised the Charlevoix Board of Education.

The letter signed by Governor William G. Milliken and Phillip E. Renkel, Superintendent of Public Instruction, state in part: We congratulate the students, principals and teaching staff...for their fine performance on the 1980-81 Michigan Educational Assessment Program (MEAP) test. Buildings having at least 75 per cent of their students attaining 75 per cent or more of the mathematics and reading objectives have been identified as achieving outstanding performance.

Obviously, many people play a part in helping students perform well.

We ask you to extend our congratulations on the accomplishments of the students, to the school staff and the citizens of the community. They have reason to be proud.

The letter called attention to the performance of seventh grade students in the tests. The students attained an 86.9 per cent in reading and 83.2 in math.

Though the ratings for the fourth and tenth grades were not high enough to be qualified as outstanding, they all were several percentage points above the state average.

Visit to the 'slammer' a confining experience for eighth graders

By ANNE KELLY

"Not a very nice place to visit and you certainly wouldn't want to live there."

This was a typical reaction as eighth grade students in Barry Pierce's class visited the Charlevoix County Jail on Grant Street recently. Despite the hospitality offered by Sheriff George Lasater and jail administrator Corine Russell, the tour inspired a feeling of awe – that confinement does actually happen to some people, and that all the comforts of home are not there when it does.

Students were taken through the steps of booking suspects, fingerprinting, "mug-shots", and finally confinement itself in stark cells where barred doors are locked and trays of food are slid through small openings in the cell doors.

Awareness of means of correction is an important step in better communication for the public and as a possible crime deterent for area youth, instructor Barry Pierce commented. Many people are not aware that this jail houses as many as 21 prisoners a day. Some are repeating offenders. Many are misguided youngsters who have dropped out of school and gotten into trouble. Tour guide Corine Russell, informed the students that the jail does have a good percentage of inmates who study in jail and complete their G.E.D. which is the equivalent of a high school diploma.

The visit was a field trip scheduled as part of the eighth grade's curriculum in social science, a mini-course in Practical Law. "Geared towards the age level of the middle school student, the mini-course is designed to briefly survey different aspects of juvenile and adult law and general principles of citizenship," Pierce explained at an earlier interview. "It touches on law enforcement, the courts and corrections." A future field trip was being planned to attend a court hearing.

The city police, sheriff and/or state police are often asked to speak to the class regarding their duties as law enforcers. Occasionally there is the opportunity of inviting an F.B.I. agent to class for this purpose.

Another aspect touched upon is the possibility of careers in law enforcement, or law.

Other mini-courses in social science have been in the areas of American History, Blacks, Indians, Minorities, drug and alcohol abuse. Pierce has been teaching the Practical Law course for nine years.

Eighth grade students peer out from behind bars.

Charlevoix Historical Society to meet June 2

The Charlevoix Historical Society will hold its regular monthly meeting at its Harsha House headquarters, 103 State Street, on Tuesday, June 2, at 8 p.m.

Members and friends are urged to attend this meeting to participate in museum development planning and other activities of the Society.

The program of the evening will continue the theme of the history of Charlevoix families. Mrs. Charles Bellinger will tell about her husband's family. Charley Bellinger's grandfather, Charles R. Bellinger, travelled all around the country repairing clocks and watches, and in 1880 settled in Charlevoix, where he established a jewelry store on Bridge Street. Charley Bellinger took over the business from his grandfather.

A clock on a sidewalk post marked the location of this early jewelry store until a few years ago.

Camp McSauba's 1st session starts July 6

Camp McSauba, the day camp for boys and girls ages five to 13, will hold its first session beginning July 6.

The camp is run by the City of Charlevoix and operates for seven five-day sessions. Children may be enrolled for any number of sessions from one to the total seven.

Sessions operate from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Mondays through Wednesdays, and from 9 a.m. Thursday until noon on Friday, with Thursday night being an overnight activity. Children take a sack lunch, a beverage, their bathing suit, and a towel. Transportation is the responsibility of the camper's parents.

Fees are $25 per camper per session, which include a T-shirt and two meals, for Thursday night and Friday morning.

The camp is located north of Charlevoix on 50 acres of rolling and steep hills, sandy valleys, deep woods, swamps, dunes, and 3,500 feet of Lake Michigan frontage. Activities are scheduled by the campers and their counselors on a small group level, to encourage participation and decision-making by all involved. Regular activities include swim instruction and free swim, archery, BB gunnery, arts and crafts, nature study, games, hiking, camp crafts, singing, skits and stunts, Indian themes, and values training.

ORGANIZERS of the Northwood Symphonette's Charlevoix concert this summer are Fran Tollas, Suzi Reis, Paula Ulmer (of the Symphonette), Keith Morris, Irene Richardson, Joyce Boydston, Edith Gilbert and Joyce Duke.

Symphonette here August 14

BY SARA GAY DAMMANN

The Northwood Symphonette planning committee for Charlevoix met last Thursday with Paula Ulmer, the Symphonette's public relations person, to plan the August 14 concert by the nationally famous orchestra.

The Northwood Symphonette is comprised of 35 musicians from eight states, all of whom "are professional musicians of virtuoso caliber", according to Ms. Ulmer.

The Symphonette's Charlevoix concert will be part of the orchestra's tour of northern Michigan known as "The Festival of the Lakes, 1981". In communities from Charlevoix and Harbor Springs to Mackinac Island and Good Hart, the orchestre will perform a varied program of classical works, featuring many of its world class soloists. The Symphonette is directed by Don Th. Jaeger, conductor and solo oboist who has worked with such diverse orchestras as the Antwerp Philbermonic, the State Orchestra of Thessaloniki (Greece), and the Aspen Festival Orchestra.

The Charlevoix concert will be held on August 14, at 8:30 p.m. in the Community Reformed Church. The Crooked Tree Arts Council is assisting in the coordination of the concerts in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties.

U.S.-31 Sales celebrates 10th anniversary this week

U.S.-31 Sales Co. between Petoskey and Charlevoix will hold a grand opening Thursday through Saturday at its newly-remodeled facility.

The automobile and motorcyle dealership is celebrating its 10th anniversary at its present location on U.S.-31.

The dealership has a selection of 1981 Subaru automobiles that will be available for test drives during the three-day celebration, President Gary Miller said.

The company's line of new Kawasaki motorcyles will also be sale-priced.

The company is staffed with certified mechanics who are specialized in import car repairs. Besides Subaru, the mechanics are also trained to repair other import models such as Datsun, Toyota and Honda, he said.

A good selection of new cars are available and the waiting time for special orders is short, he said.

The company also has a variety of used cars for sale.

The Subaru is equipped with front-wheel drive. The five-speed, front-wheel-drive model has a mileage rating of 32 miles per gallon town end 44 mpg highway.

Four-wheel drive is optional and costs an extra $650 per vehicle, he said. The mileage rating for a four-wheel drive Subaru is 25 mpg town and 33 mpg highway.

Grand opening hours are 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Thursday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday.

Substation at Barnard

There's a new electric substation out in the Barnard area.

Northern Michigan Electric Cooperative and Top O'Michigan Rural Electric Company recently energized a new 7,200 volt station and a newly constructed three-phase electric line to serve western Charlevoix County.

The line was built entirely by Top D'Michigan crews without the aid of outside contractors. Cost of the substation and three-phase line is estimated at over $250,000. In addition to improving service, it is estimated that the new substation will handle the electrical needs of Top D'Michigan customers in that area for the next 15 to 20 years before further expansion is required.

The substation is located at the corner of Barnard and Matchett Roads. The three-phase line, which replaces a single-phase line, runs east from the substation following the general route of Ferry Road.

Jazzercises offered here

A class in Jazzercises will be offered in Charlevoix beginning June 2.

Jazzercise is described as "fitness with a flair, a unique way of body conditioning that uses joyful jazz dance movements and swining music."

It encompasses 45 minutes of bending, stretching, jumping, dancing, and breathing. Students work through a warm-up period to peak performance, then cool down before a big finish.

Jazzercise was recently invited to make a presentation before the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports, and was received with much enthusiasm by members of the Council.

The class will be taught by Jeannie M. Coleman of Petoskey, who was a student in a Jazzercise class in Traverse City and became so much interested in it that she took training to qualify as an instructor.

The classes will be held in the American Legion Hall. The first class, on June 2, will be a free mini class.

Opinion

Clockwise
Proposal A vote surprising

by Bob Clock

I AM SURPRISED at how many of my fellow Michiganders saw fit to shoot down Gov. Milliken's tax cut/shift proposal at the polls Tuesday.

I, for one, was willing to go along with the governor on this one — if only for the promised 50 percent property tax relief. My mortgage payment has increased $115 in the past 17 years — and just about all of that has gone for taxes, since payments on principle remain the same.

The only other item paid from my escrow account is house insurance. To be sure, that, too, has increased, but only fractionally compared to property taxes.

I didn't like Milliken's increase in the sales tax; but I was banking on Shiawassee Drain Commissioner Robert Tisch coming up with another tax proposal in the fall which would have taken care of that little matter.

But tax relief is not in the cards this summer.

You can be sure that Tisch will come up with a humdinger of a proposal in the next few weeks, one that is almost assured of a position on the fall ballot. Tisch has no trouble collecting signatures on petitions and — judging from the response to his last proposal — Michiganders want tax relief, not just the shift that was built into Milliken's plan.

Actually, the increase in the sales tax would have been fairly devastating, particularly considering the state of Michigan's economy.

It would have added another two-cents-a-gallon to the price of gasoline — which is already overpriced — and it would have meant an extra payment for new car buyers.

But the voters in their eternal wisdom — and believe me, they are wise — turned down the Milliken proposal three to one. I guess I am a little ashamed today that I was so eager for property tax relief that I voted the wrong way.

How much better it is to do things right. At least I hope that is what the voters were trying to say by their thundering rejection of Proposal A.

I WOULD LIKE Charlevoix's school band directors — Terry Isenbarger, Mrs. Evelyn Wujcki and Mrs. Ruth North — to stand up and take a bow. They and their young musicians have done a superb job in this year of change.

Judy and I attended concerts by the 6th, 7th and 8th grade bands this week and all three turned in first-rate performances. All of which means Charlevoix's top-rated High School bands will have an ample supply of accomplished musicians to draw from in the years ahead.

It hasn't been an easy year for the band program, with Director Mike Flikins leaving in mid-year, followed by Mrs. Wujcki's maternity leave. But the kids came through like champs, thanks to the assistance of Mrs. North, who has filled in where needed.

I don't know how many of today's Charlevoix school kids will go on to become professional musicians. But they are certainly acquiring talents and interests that will add a new dimension to their lives. And isn't that what education is all about?

THE BANGING garbage can lids was heard througout Ulster again Friday as the fourth Irish Republican Army (IRA) hunger-striker succumbed to the ravages of starvation.

It is a sad reflection on the state of both politics and religion that neither side is able to come up to a solution to the "troubles" that are tearing Northern Ireland asunder.

With every death, a new hunger-striker joins the fast list at Maze Prison, widening the breach between Protestants and Catholics and perpetuating the madness that has become a way of life.

Given the nature of the problem, one hesitates even to suggest prayer as a possible solution. When you pray in Ulster, apparently no one listens.

Judge Fershee receives gift from Janell Sterly

Judge Fershee honored

BY PEG OHLE

It was a bittersweet time for Judge David W. Fershee the other evening when friends and associates gathered to wish him well in his new career.

Judge Fershee is resigning as judge of the 90th District Court at the end of this month to enter into the private practice of law in Charlevoix.

He has served on the bench in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties since April, 1975, when he was appointed to fill the unexpired term of Judge Arthur Reibel, who had resigned. Since that time, Fershee has been elected to the judgeship twice.

When Fershee was appointed judge, he had been practicing law in Charlevoix County for just a short time. At age 30, he was one of the youngest judges ever appointed in the state.

At last week's party, Petoskey attorney Steve Barney, who had been a classmate of Fershee at the Detroit College of Law, revealed "a few secrets of the judge's college days", much to the delight of those who heard him.

Charlevoix attorney Richard Pajtas, who was also an early acquaintance of Fershee, told of the young lawyer's struggles in opening a practice in Charlevoix County.

In response, Fershee thanked his staffs in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties, law enforcement agencies, the county Boards of Commissioners, local attorneys, and the prosecuting attorneys for their cooperation and patience during his terms of office — especially during the early years when he was "learning the ropes".

Members of the judge's staff presented him with a gold watch, appropriately inscribed, and he, in turn, presented them with gold-colored T-shirts bearing the legend, "I served time for Judge Dave".

Judge Fershee will also leave office with an official reminder of his years on the bench in Charlevoix County. The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners recently made him a gift of one of the robes he has been wearing in court.

School volunteers thanked

Letter to the Editor:

On behalf of the Charlevoix Elementary School staff and students, I would like to thank some very special Charlevoix people.

Each year we have some very capable people who donate their time to working with our elementary students. Those who serve as volunteers through our Title I program provide much extra help in math on a one-to-one basis with our students. Many of them are also assisting some of our classroom teachers.

Their enthusiasm and concern is very much appreciated. They make it possible to give our students "something extra".

Thanks fo Mrs. Dorothy Stoel, volunteer for six years; Mrs. Gail Baldridge, volunteer for six years; Mrs. Velma Powell, volunteer for six years; Mrs. Judy Crook, volunteer for four years; Mrs. Charlotte Kline, volunteer for one year; Mrs. Marg Dinwidde, volunteer for one year; and Miss Pam Lamoreaux (high school senior), volunteer for one year.

Unsung heroes

Letter to the Editor:

UNSUNG HEROES OF THE FLSING

For two years now the children in the Charlevoix Elementary School have had "extras" in library use and training because of the dedication of several women of the community. Each school day has found one of these faithful women in the library as a volunteer aiding in the tedious and often exhausting, routines of library circulation.

THANKS" to Pat Leadabrand, a volunteer this year, and to the six who have been with us two years: Pauline Austin, Marilyn Baillargeon, Karen Joy, Joy Raymer, Melody Rutt, and Judy VonSoosten.

Oppose security assistance bill, reader urges

To the Editor:

This is written to urge Courier readers to write to legislators concerning the Security Assistance Bill for FY 1982. This bill would provide the President with a discretionary fund of $150 million in military aid and $250 million of economic aid for political purposes.

The $400 million discretionary fund would enable the President to aid whatever country he wished without scrutiny from Congress.

The $26 million military aid for El Salvador in the Security Assistance for FY 1982 provides Congress its first opportunity to vote for or against Reagan policy in El Salvador.

More than 80 members of Congress have either introduced or co-sponsored legislation to prohibit U.S. military aid to the El Salvador government. This was in response to Roman Catholic, Baptist and Episcopal church documentation of government participation in political killing which took 10,000 lives in 1980.

HR 1500 (the House bill) would amend the Foreign Assistance Act to prohibit military aid to El Salvador. Senate Bill S 728 would prohibit aid unless five conditions were met: 1. Investigation and prosecution of those responsible for the deaths of six Americans (including three nuns); 2. Active U.S. encouragement of a mediated settlement; 3. A continued substantial role for Satradoreao civilians in their government; 4. Investigation and prosecution of those in the U.S. who financed death squads in El Salvador; 5. A written request from the government of El Salvador for military aid.

This information has come to me from Impact, an interreligious network sponsored by 23 Catholic, Protestant and Jewish agencies.

I urge you to write to legislators asking them to oppose the Security Assistance FY 1982 and to support HR 1509 and S 728. Floor votes are expected this month.

Desserts made easy

Charlevoixans learn the art of cooking

The final session of the Creative Cooking Class was recently held in Charlevoix, with summer visitor Sue Kleinpell demonstrating 'Easy and Elegant Desserts.'

A world traveller, she recently returned from Paris where she studied at the school of Michelle Guerard's Cuisine Minceur. She has also taken courses at Cordon Bleu; at LaVarenne in Paris, with chef Jaques Pepin, and with France's famous pastry chef, Gaston Le Notre. She stopped in Charlevoix on her way to the Robert Mondavi Winery in California where she will work with Julia Child and Simone Beck.

The class was held at the home of Lindy and Greg Smith, and for the occasion the instructor created "Crooked Tree Strawberry Tart" in honor of the Crooked Tree Arts Council (see recipe below).

As one participant, Mary Lattimer, put it, "...and I had to go all the way to Paris to learn how to handle puff pastry and make easy and elegant desserts, when I could have stayed right here in Northern Michigan and learned the same thing!"

The class drew 20 participants from Petoskey, Charlevoix and Harbor Springs.

Weddings

Boss-Beatty

Over 400 guests witnessed the marriage of Pamela Sue Boss to Lane Stephen Beatty on Saturday, May 15, at the Assembly of God Church in Charlevoix.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale E. Boss of Charlevoix, and the bridegroom is the son of Dale Beatty of Harbor Springs and Mrs. Melinda Sheehan of Gwinn.

The mid-afternoon rites were performed by Pastor Fred C. Spring. Cedar-twined candlesticks lined the aisles of the church, which was further decorated with a rose-covered lattice arbor, a water fountain, and a rose-covered bridal arch.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown which she re-designed to her taste. It was of white chiffonet with a full skirt, French lace overlay, and long fitted sleeves adorned with seed pearls and pearl sequins. The back featured silk-covered buttons and a full-length train falling from a watteau effect. The chapel length veil, which the bride made herself, was of bridal illusion edged with lace, attached to a Juliet cap adorned with seed pearls. The bride's bouquet was of coral and ivory roses with baby's breath and greenery.

Gloria Markel served the bride as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were three sisters of the bride, Kathy Castelein, Sharon Elzinga, and Diane Boss; also Debbie Boss, sister-in-law of the bride; and Mary Facufak, Charlene Way, and Rosemary Breithaupt.

Their gowns, which were made by the bride, were coral-colored with a sculptured ivory lace floor-length overlay. The long sleeves tied with ribbons to match the waist-line bows, and the sleeves and hemline were trimmed with French lace. They carried feathered fronts with lace coral and ivory roses intermingled, and wore matching flowers in their hair.

Betsey Castelein, niece of the bride, was the flower girl, wearing a white floor-length gown fashioned like the bride's, but with a coral-colored sash. She scattered rose petals as

ICE CREAM COLORS TO COOL YOUR SUMMER

Mint cream, peach parfait, lemon sherbet, grape ice -- the lovely pastels that took a back seat to the bolder colors for several seasons -- have returned to accompany the ultra-feminine styles.

The delectable ice cream colors blend beautifully in the romantic new fashions. Lace and ruffles peek out from under the tailored suit. Fabric is softer-sheer or silky. The higher necklines predominate.

Jewelry fashions follow the trend. The newest designs are simple and delicate. Rings and earrings are dainty twists and curls of gold, accented with pastel gemstones, such as lavender amethyst, watery blue aquamarine, pale pink tourmaline and fresh green peridot. Pendants hang slightly lower to fit over lacy ties and silky bows, but the chains are light and airy. Small diamonds are everywhere - adding flash to the curve of a gold wire or brilliantly defining the outline of a colored gem.

The jewelry ensemble is back. Dainty clusters of sapphires, garnets, opals and other birthstones hang suspended from fine gold chains. Such a suita of colorful jewelry can add life to the most basic outfit.

Reusch has been in business for 36 years, and we have lots of experience with colored gemstones. We can help you make a fine jewelry wardrobe that will compliment your apparel and flatter your features.

Charlevoix welcomes the WELCOME

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

In 1775 trader John Askins commissioned the building of the sloop WELCOME at Mackinaw City. She carried cargo between Fort Michilimackinac and Detroit until 1777 when the American Revolutionary forces began making life uncomfortable for the British around the Straits of Mackinac. Then the WELCOME was pressed into military service. One of her major jobs was carrying cargo from the Fort across to Mackinac Island where a new fort was under construction. After the war she returned to civilian life, again becoming a trading vessel, until she disappeared in 1781, somewhere between Fort Michilimackinac and Cheboygan.

In the early 1970's, maritime historian Victor Hogg found records of the WELCOME and convinced Mackinac State Park Assistant Director David Armour to build a replica of the sloop for display at the fort. Armour approached naval architect Frederick Ford who studied old plans and consulted drawings at the National Marltime Museum in Greenwich, England, and the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, D.C.

Ford brought his plans to Charlevoix boat builder C.T. "Ted" McCutcheon, who has since overseen the construction of the replica. McCutcheon's job was not only to construct the replica but to do it as much as possible in the manner of the original, with no power tools. A shed was constructed at Fort Michilimackinac and from 1973 while she was launched last year, with the help of Michigan Supreme Court Justice Mary Coleman, crews framed and built the WELCOME.

When the rigging is complete and the sails on board, the 56 foot long new WELCOME will return to Mackinaw City to be part of the maritime museum there. The ship, properly termed a British armed Sloop, is actually cutter rigged, carrying a jib, foresail, top sail, crossjack and gaff rigged main. She has been built of pine, cedar and Douglas Fir, most of which had to be brought to Michigan as native woods no longer exist in enough quantity to do the job. The new WELCOME is powered by two modern diesel engines, in addition to her five sails.

When the rigging work is completed, about June 1, McCutcheon and crew will test sail her, before turning her over to the park commission. McCutcheon acknowledges she won't sail well into the wind with her five square sails, but she can't help but be a stunning sight running before the wind.

Davenport guest speaker at Rayder sports banquet

Charlevoix High School seniors who have earned varsity letters in any sport while in high school and their parents will be honored at the senior all-sports banquet at the American Legion at 6:30 p.m. Friday. Dr. Donald Trumper, president of the Sports Boosters, sponsors of the event, has announced.

Dean Davenport, athletic director at Ferris State College and a 1953 graduate of the Charlevoix High School, will return as guest speaker.

Chuck Wright of the coaching staff will be master of ceremonies. The Rev. Earnest Knight will give the invocation.

Besides the senior athletes and their parents, special guests will be all members of the coaching staff and their spouses or guests, junior letter winners who have been invited as special guests and members of the administration.

Davenport, who has been associated with Ferris State since 1970 and who has completed his second year as athletic director, is credited with being the guiding force in the upgrading of the college's athletic programs and facilities. In fact, the recent re-vitalization of the college's intercollegiate athletic program carries the distinct mark of his efforts and versatility.

Prior to becoming athletic director at Ferris, Davenport served as assistant basketball coach, coordinator of athletics, and coordinator of the recreation and career activities department. During that time, he helped establish a recreation administrator major in the School of Education and Learning Resources which now numbers 100 students.

After two years as acting division chairman for health, physical education, recreation and athletics, he ascended to the athletic directorship in 1979. He now directs Ferris' 17 varsity sports, an extensive recreation sports program and the college's athletic facilities.

During his Ferris tenure, he has taken a leading role in the initiation of a grant and aid program for athletics (1977), the ascension of hockey to NCAA Division I status (1980) and the recent addition of varsity women's sports in track and cross country.

The Big Rapids campus has also gotten an athletic facelift in recent years with the construction of the Ferris Ice Arena and an addition to the arena (by fall, 1981) which will house areas for sports medicine, volleyball and wrestling. He also was instrumental in enabling Ferris to acquire an indoor racquet facility, ideal for recreational and instructional use for college and the community and the home for the growing Ferris Varsity tennis program.

A holder of two degrees from Central Michigan University where he starred in basketball, Davenport built a strong foundation of experience prior to his arrival at Ferris. He had been athletic director and head basketball coach at Iowa Wesleyan University and formerly was assistant cage coach at California State University at Northridge and Central Michigan University. In the high school area, he coached at Traverse City, Petoskey and Grant.

He and his wife, the former Joyce Cunningham, have three children. The couple maintains a summer home here.

Mrs. Richard Tillen is general chairman of the banquet. She is being assisted by Mrs. Arnold Loper, Mrs. Conrad Klooster, Jr., Mrs. Condit Drury, Dr. and Mrs. Trimper.

Sophomore boys and girls in the athletic program will serve the dinner.

Need coaches

The Charlevoix Recreation Department has issued a plea for coaches for Peanut, Pontyail and T-Ball league coaches.

Dwight Boss, city recreation director, said that youngsters were registering for these programs and the season will open shortly but that coaches are needed. Anyone interested is asked to call the Recreation department office in city hall at 547-4272.

Baseball squad just gets by Kalkaska in pre-district

The Rayder baseball squad squeaked by Kalkaska in a Pre-District game Friday played on Charlevoix's home diamond.

Mike Loper was the winning pitcher holding Kalkaska to two hits to preserve a 2-1 win. Loper went the distance for Charlevoix on the mound.

Jim Buchanan led the offensive attack with two hits including a home run that provided the margin of victory. Other hits came from Greg Whitley, who smashed a double, Scott Kelly and Jeff Trimper.

In a regular game played Thursday, Kelly handcuffed Grayling tossing a two-hitter and helping the Rayders log a 4-2 win.

Kelly also had two hits in the game but the hottest bat for Charlevoix was that of Jon Speigl who went three for three including two doubles. Jon Supernaw iced the contest in the fifth inning with a three-run homer to break a 1-1 tie. Buchanan and Mike Zednicek also hit safely in the game.

In the second game Thursday, the Rayders came out on top of Grayling 10-4 behind the pitching of Chris Putman. With two hits apiece were Buchanan and Speigl who hit his third double of the day. Also hitting safely for Charlevoix were Kelly, Supernaw, Whitley, Zednicek and Putman.

The sweep left the Rayders with an 18-5 regular season record.

Softball Team advances, too

In Pre-District softball action Friday at Elk Rapids, Rayder ace Rhonda Buchanan tossed a four hitter in a 15-4 Charlevoix victory over the Elks.

Charlevoix gathered 11 hits including a double and two singles by Holly Taber, two hits apiece for Colleen LaBlance and Rhonda Buchanan, a double for Bridget Noirot and singles by Teresa Noirot, Mel Kerridge and Margo Smith.

Buchanan recorded six strikeouts and four walks en route to the victory.

Trackmen second in conference meet

The Charlevoix Rayders placed second in the Michigan-Huron Shores conference meet Thursday with 92½ points. Rogers City won the meet with 175 points including 85 in the field events.

Charlevoix had only one first in the meet, Van Sloan in the 220 yard dash in a time of 23.7.

Other point winners were:

Shot put: Ross Carey second, Joel Schnackenberg fourth and Gary Drury sixth.

Long jump: Scott Shepherd fourth.

Discus: Mark Beaudoin fourth.

Pole Vault: Bill Ranger sixth.

100 yard dash: Shepherd, second.

880 yard relay: Charlevoix second (Shepherd, Carey, Tim Louiselle, Sloan).

Mile relay: Charlevoix second (Swartwout, DAve Buday, Jeff Drury, Sloan).

The Charlevoix girls did not fare as well in the conference meet as they placed last with five points. Cheboygan won the girls title with 142 points.

Charlevoix placed in only two events, the 440 and 880 relays. The team of Tanya Ford, Lisa Pischner, Sally Westenbroek and Carrie Richardson placed fourth in the 440 relay and sixth in the 880.

THIS FOURSOME, the Charlevoix eighth grade 440 yard relay team, not only won the event in the annual Petoskey Relays last Tuesday but broke the record another Charlevoix team had set in 1975. The new record of 48.4 topped the old record of 49.31. The team, coached by Jerry Puhl, is composed of (back, left to right) Doug Sloan, Jim Martin (front, left to right) Kyle Smith and Jim Kenney. Wieland, Farm Bureau, back economic plan

Tom Wieland, gresident of the Charlevoix County Farm Bureau, has called for all-out grass roots support of the four-point "economic recovery and inflation-fighting plan" now before Congress. Wieland says a abowdown vote on the economic package is expected later this month.

"For more than two decades, Farm Bureau members have been maintaining that inflation, over-regulation by government, and excessive federal spending have had a negative effect on agriculture and the national economy," Wieland continued.

"Congress now has an opportunity to change the direction of the country's economic drift and get it back on the road to recovery."

The economic package now in the hands of Congress has four major points that would: cut personal income taxes and accelerate business depreciation; reduce spending by eliminating waste and streamling the bureaucracy; reduce unnecessary federal regulations; and restore stability to the nation's monetary system.

Vocal groups to perform at high school

The vocal groups in the Charlevoix schools will present a concert at the high school auditorium Thursday, May 28, their director, Steven Stargardt, has announced.

The high school vocal group will include in its concert such selections as "I hear a voice a-prayin'" and "I may never pass this way again" while the middle school group will sing, among other numbers, "Boogie Woogie Bugle Bay" and "Killing me softly."

Stargardt will serve as accompanist as well as director.

The public is invited to attend this event.

Home Church Groups started in this area

Many Christians in the Charlevoix area are participating in a new experience called Home Church groups, in which a small number of persons meet together weekly in homes for Bible study, prayer, and fellowship. Rather than being a breakoff from the traditional church structure, participants see their involvement in these Home Church groups as being a supplement to their local church activities, instead of a substitute. The Home Churches function on an interdenominational basis.

"Actually, the Home Church concept is not new, but just a new experience for many of us," states James Jensen, who is one of the Home Church leaders and a chemstry teacher at Charlevoix High School. "The concept is as old as Christianity itself, since the early Christians did not have church buildings, but met in the homes of believers for worship and instruction. We are once again finding the tremendous strength and personal support that can come from the closeness of a small group of ten or fifteen persons who love and trust one another."

At least five Home Churches are now active in the Charlevoix area, and members of these groups welcome others of all faiths and church affiliation who desire this small-group experience to join them. Interested persons are invited to contact one of the following persons who are Home Church leaders: Mr. and Mrs. James Jensen, phone 547-9480; Mr. and Mrs. James Boocher, phone 547-5387; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Britton, phone 547-9559; Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Mathews, phone 547-9896; and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Whitley, phone 547-6465. Home Church groups presently meet on Wednesday, Thursday or Friday evenings.

Summer Solutions In Men's Wear

Color Him In Pastels... In Cool Comfort

By Mary Lee Huber

In keeping with today's active lifestyles, summer sportswear for men is cool and comfortable and infused with color especially pastels. With sherbet colors, preppie colors and a sprinkling of bolder hues, there's a shade for every shade of adventure.

Men are becoming more adventuresome in their dress, they're no longer afraid to experiment a bit, whether that means wearing a new color, a new shape or a new combination of clothes.

Color is one of the easiest ways to re-do a tired wardrobe. For example, leisure clothes are an obvious area where color has taken over, especially in fitness orientated outfits. Shorts can be khaki, but why not blue or yellow? T-shirts and knit tennis shirts are available in a myriad of colors. (Thank heavens they are finally available without stitched on logos.) Why not brighten up a blazer or jacket with a warm pink or yellow T-shirt worn without a tie. It's a very comfortable look. T-shirts that button are now being worn buttoned, but you also have the option of leaving them unbuttoned.

In dressier more classic clothing, color is more subtle, but still important. Tweedy blazers with flecks of color are an example. Or for those of you who enjoy a bolder approach, madras jackets are back, but this time in warm pastels as well as the bright traditional colors.

For most men, it will be a relief to know that the silhouette has not changed drastically. Collars, ties and lapels have stabilized between two and three inches. Moderation is the key.

Seersucker has surfaced again. The distinctively crinkled fabric that's been a favorite among men as well as women, long praised for its lightweight approach to summmer's informality. Seersucker, too, has broken away from tradition by refreshingly veering toward softly shaded patterns.

Since cropping up a few seasons ago, lightweight warm-weather sweaters for men have undergone an evolution. Once ultra-traditional, these fashions now reflect designers venturing beyond the basics, with exciting experimentation in color, texture and neckline. For example, some styles are even short sleeved and variations of the polo shirt. Despite such innovations, warm weather knit wear can still inject fresh and comfortable touches into more classic looks by doubling as a shirt under a blazer. It strengthens your investment buying by expanding your wardrobe.

Accessories are being summoned to inject individuality and vigor to men's dressing. As always, the smallest finishing touches are the most telling. Watches can be utilitarian, sports-orientated or individualistic in styling. Belts add spark to dressing and now span the color spectrum while tightening their hold on such detailing as quilting and braiding. In addition, buckles are still being offered in the basic styles but are also handcrafted and styled by many artisans to add a distinctive flair.

Footwear is stepping into the 80's embracing a classic stance, although the timeless moccasin retains its stride.

As for jewelry, men are investing in "good pieces", such as watches, bracelets and rings in silver, gold and diamonds as a hedge against inflation.

All in all, this season's variety in men's wear offers choices in color, styling, and comfort. Take advantage of the big three. Next season one of these key elements may be missing.

Next month: More on the footwear of the 80's and a feature on wine.

On The Charlevoix Spring Dinner Dance

By KATHY CORNELL

Laura Carey and Alicia Christoph of Charlevoix

Phil and Barb Kluczynski of Charlevoix (Photos continued on page 2)

The Charlevoix Dinner Dance is becoming a signal of Spring as natural as the first sailboat in the harbor, the purple Martins settling back into Last Park and of course the smell of the first batch of fudge being made.

The annual dinner dance at the beautiful Belvedere Club Casino in Charlevoix attracted more guests than ever this year - a total of 230 in all.

The formal affair brought out finers that ran the gamut. Long formal designer gowns, short attractive evening dresses, bright nauticals, tuxedos and casual two piece tailored suits.

The annual dinner dance is sponsored by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce and organized by Jacquie Merta. As usual Jacquie surpassed herself. Until next spring we will be remembering the great food catered by Grey Gables, the music by "Attraction", hoping they'll be back again next year, and I'm sure some of us will never forget the "alligator".

BAYSIDE TRAVEL

Summer travel is traditionally a time for family travel and the summer months of 1981 will be filled with many family treks of every description.

Those involved in the business of travel are well aware of this seasonal tradition and offer some fine family travel buys and some unique travel opportunities during this sunny season.

As we mentioned in last month's article, there are some budget priced packages offered to Florida which include very low rates for children. These packages are offered by the airlines which specialize in Florida travel, Eastern and Delta.

The airlines are not the only ones who are attempting to entice the traveling family. The newly formed Harley Hotel chain is offering a number of package programs including hotel accommodations, and admission and concession tickets to various family oriented attractions near their hotels. For example, they offer a delightful and modestly priced package including admission and ride tickets to the traditional family park of the Midwest -- Cedar Point.

For those who want a more unique vacation idea, there are some wonderfully exciting travel experiences including everything from white water river rafting in the West, to bike touring in the East.

Let us give you an example of one such exceptional travel package.

Take a wagon--and a little imagination--and discover life as it was on the Oregon Trail. It's 1840 once again, and you and your family are emigrants headed west.

You'll spend action-packed days in your prairie schooner, lumbering across the tall grass of the Nebraska prairies. You'll encounter the Pony Express and be attacked by a band of Indians. You'll circle your wagons to prepare the evening meal, and enjoy a campfire songfest or square dance and then "bed down" under the stars. You will experience first hand the hardships, laughters and tears of forefathers who settled the West!

The wagonmaster for this memorable vacation activity are life-long natives of western Nebraska, Gordon and Patty Howard, whose Oregon Trail Wagon Train is featured on the cover of the new National Geographic Book, Trails West. This remarkable travel adventure with four days of travel and all meals included is $295.00 for adults and $236.00 for children under 12 years of age.

Whatever your family travel plans may be -- a quick weekend trip to Cedar Point, or taking advantage of that great airline fare of $275.00 adult round trip fare from Detroit to Los Angeles (children only $98.00 round trip), or taking an historic wagon train, your money spent will be an investment in the future. We have come to know for a fact that family travel means treasured family memories which last a lifetime.

Control Skin Aging

By Gerianne Santek

Now for the first time, skincare goes beyond advertising hype and enters a new phase of scientific research. The theory of skincare has been redefined and restructured, not locked into the past but based on a new approach that combines clinical knowhow with common sense basics. A whole series of products have been developed to work with the skin's own natural properties to repair, refine, and rejuvinate. Now two of the leaders in the cosmetic industry have introduced their skincare systems and made them available to you locally.

Country Casuals, representing the Estee Lauline, and the Merle Norman Cosmetic Studio located in David's Place are ready to help you choose a skincare routine perfectly suited to your needs. A routine that not only preserves the natural properties of your skin but can actually smooth away the wrinkles and dryness that come with aging.

Estee Lauder, the undisputed doyenne of the beauty industry, has taken years of scientific research and created the Swiss Age-Controlling Skincare Program, a daily regimen designed for every age, every skintype.

Scientific Breakthrough Helps Control Skin Aging

Fourteen formulas in all have been designed to work together to enhance the skin and retain the supple, moist feeling that younger skin has. Cleansers for super clean skin without destroying the natural acid mantle. Refiners to buff the skin and clear away dead cells and debris. Protectors to neutralize the effects of ultraviolet radiation and the environment. Nourishers to seal in moisture and encourage the skin to actually look and act younger.

At the foundation of the Estee Lauder program are her two superstar performers-Swiss Performing Extract and Age-Controlling Creme. Swiss Performing Extract is a blend of European oils and natural soluble protein to help restore resiliency, tone, and moisture retention for normal to dry skin. Age-Controlling Creme contains Sodium-RNA (Sodium Ribonucleic Acid) to actually speed up the skin's natural cell renewal process and a natural protein collagen which is essential for elasticity and moisture retention.

Merle Norman, the name synonymous with those fabulous make-overs, has developed the Skin Renewal System, a 3-step program that combines surface cleansing, deep cleansing, and protection all designed to fight the visible signs of skin aging-fine lines; wrinkles, enlarged pores. Step I is a cleansing technique formulated for your skintype that whisks away impurities and leaves skin moist and supple. Step II utilizes Miracol, the deep cleanser that is the basis for the Skin Renewal System. Miracol saturates the cells beneath the skin with moisture and, at the same time, removes excess oil and dead skin cells. The skin is actually pumped up with moisture minimizing fine lines, dryness, and enlarged pores. Protective Veil, the third step locks in the moisture with an oil-free formula that helps the skin maintain that fresh look of vitality usually found only in younger skins.

While nothing can stop the aging process, these new products are proven effective in controlling the condition of aging skin, a research breakthrough which is quickly being recognized as the new scientific direction in skincare. There are no replacements for the basics of exercise, good diet, and plenty of rest, but these formulas are designed to work with you, and for you, because you shouldn't let your skin announce your age.

Charlevoix Teen Tells of Pageant Experiences

By PEG OHLE

When Amy Sanborn of Charlevoix saw an ad for contestants to enter the Michigan National Teenage Pageant, she thought it would be fun just to try.

So she wrote for information and returned the application blank along with a picture. Shortly thereafter she received word that she had been selected as state finalist -- one of 122 out of 1,600 applications.

Thus it was that Amy went to Plymouth in early May to participate in her first-ever contest.

She paraded down a long ramp and onto a stage for the evening gown competition; wrote, memorized, and recited a 100-word speech on "What's Right with America"; and was interviewed individually by all the judges.

She knew how she was being judged--one-third for poise and personality, one-third for appearance, and one-third for scholastic and civic achievements.

All the girls wore the same type of outfit for their introduction sessions: blue shorts, long sleeved white shirt, and white boots or white shoes with white socks, and red scarf.

Amy describes her evening gown as "Lavender chiffon with polka dots, fashioned with a V-neckline, full skirt, spaghetti straps, and lace waistband with white pearl buttons down the front."

Her "interview dress" was of navy blue nylon, also with white polka dots, an elastic waistline, V-neckline, and short sleeves.

When it was all over, Amy did not place in the winners' circle. However she reports she "had a lot of fun and got a lot of good experience." She also says that she made many new friends and has a book full of their addresses.

Also, in the back of Amy's mind is the idea that she might like to participate in the contest again next year.

"A lot of girls go back three or four years in a row", she explained.

If she decides to enter the contest next year, Amy will automatically be in the state finals. She admits to having been "a little nervous" this year and would like to work more on her speech-making ability. She would also like to become more involved in civic activities and to continue the jazz dancing lessons which she is now taking.

In the meantime, Amy will enter her junior year at Charlevoix High School next fall and looks forward to wearing her "pageant dresses" to school dances and other social activities.

Looking back on the complete experience, Amy remembers how happy she was when members of her family turned out to see her perform in the pageant, and how, win or lose, it was fun. She has the address of pageant headquarters for anyone else who would like to have the pageant experience.

"Saving Grace"

Resource News...
By Mary Lee Huber
Clip and Save

Before I offer this month's tips, I would like to invite readers who have favorite proven remedies, to mail them to me at the Charlevoix Courier, 405 Bridge St., Charlevoix, Mi. 49720, and as space permits, I will be happy to publish your name and your "saving grace."

Basic Cleaning tips for jewelry....

a Remove tarnish with a prepared jewelry cleaner or by using soap and water mixed with a few drops of ammonia. Brush with a soft bristle brush. An old toothbrush is perfect. After the soaping, simply rinse with lukewarm water and allow to dry.

b Grease can be removed from karat gold jewelry by dipping the jewelry in plain rubbing alcohol.

How to care for your Karat gold jewelry....

a Always separate your gold jewelry in a compartmentalized jewel box. This protects against scratching and tangling.

b Remove all jewelry before showering or cleaning. Soap can cause a film to form on karat gold jewelry, making it appear dull and dingy. By preventing the formation of this film, you immediately reduce the occasions your pieces will need to be cleaned.

The following are a few miscellaneous suggestions and tips for you to try.

New panty hose last longer when wrapped, in plastic and put in freezer for three days before wearing.

To remove ink or lipstick from fabric, spray with hairspray before laundering.

To iron in sharp crease, or iron out stubborn creases, use a cloth dampened with a mixture of half vinegar and half water.

'All differences settled' say Mol, officers, council

by DAVE KNIGHT

Just as suddenly as it had arisen, the controversy surrounding Charlevoix Police Chief Jack Mol was officially quenched Monday night with a unanimous vote of support for Mol by the City Council.

Over 120 persons crowded the council chambers anticipating a debate that never quite happened.

The issue heated up last Saturday when the council met in special session to discuss morale problems within the police department. Some council members espressed concern about alleged complaints from some of the officers.

Subsequent news reports quoted at least one council member, Third Ward representative Shirley Roloff, as saying the council was contemplating either firing Mol or asking for his resignation.

When the council declined to take action at the Saturday meeting, at which Mol was not present, the matter was placed on the agenda for Monday night's regular meeting.

By the time it was brought up at Monday night's meeting, following a 45-minute recess, a standing-room-only crowd had packed the council chambers.

During the recess, which was called by Mayor Sam Supernaw because regular business had been finished ahead of schedule, a meeting was apparently taking place elsewhere in City Hall involving Chief Mol, the other officers on the force and Attorney Roy C. Hayes.

When the council was eventually called back to order, Supernaw announced to a stunned audience that "all differences had been settled" and that Mol had the full support of the rest of the police department.

Mrs. Roloff agreed to endorse the settlement and moved that the council give a "vote of confidence to our chief and our department."

Council member Earl Muma, who has advocated in the past turning the city's law enforcement over to the Sheriff's Department, seconded the motion saying, "I shook hands with Jack Mol tonight and buried the hatchet forever. I give my whole support to this department."

The motion passed on a 6-0 vote.

Officer Sam Alexander, who had reportedly considered resigning, indicated at the meeting that he was staying on the force. Said Alexander, "Everything's been resolved."

Mrs. Roloff defended her role in the matter saying, "I felt that there was a problem and that it should be dealt with. I do not feel I owe an apology to anyone."

Mol, who was congratulated by several audience members after the meeting, refused to comment on the alleged complaints that precipitated the controversy.

Said Mol, "It's all over. There's nothing more to say. It's all in the past now and I have no further comments."

In other business, the council:

- Referred to the Planning Commission a request by some downtown property owners to be included in off-street parking exemptions granted to other Central Business District property owners.

- Suggested to neighbors of a boathouse under construction on Ferry Ave. that they work out complaints of the building's planned 24-foot height with the owners. Plans approved by the council had indicated a 16-foot wall height but the actual height of the building's roof peaks at 24 feet.

- Unanimously approved an airport improvement project to extent the runway.

- Accepted a bid of $37,535 for a bucket truck from Cannon Engineering and moved to check with local dealers for possible 1980 or 1981 model pickup trucks available.

Enlarged spent fuel pool at Big Rock okay, EIS not needed according to NRC staff

by DAVE KNIGHT

A May 15 Nuclear Regulatory Commission staff report endorsing expansion of the spent fuel storage capacity at Big Rock nuclear power plant and recommending that an environmental impact statement for such expansion is not neccessary was announced this week by the Consumers Power Company, owners of Big Rock.

Hearings are still to be held on the proposed modification because of interventions filed and are tentatively scheduled for later this year.

The two-part report was in response to a request filed originally in April, 1979 by Consumers Power to increase the spent fuel storage capacity at Big Rock from the present 193 fuel rod assemblies to 441. The proposed expansion would allow operations at the plant to continue through 1992. Without the expansion, spent fuel rod storage capacity would be full by next year.

Spent fuel rod assemblies are stored underwater within the containment sphere at Big Rock. With the plant in a 12-month refueling cycle, spent fuel rods are added to the storage racks annually.

The first part of the NRC document dated May 15, 1981, a Safety Evaluation Report, concluded that the expansion as proposed would "preclude criticality" (prevent a dangerous chain reaction from occurring), would cool spent fuel rods sufficiently and could be implemented safely.

It also found that the design and materials involved in the modification are adequate, that the chance of an accident involving heavy loads near the sepnt fuel storage pool is slight, that increased storage capacity would not make the consequences of an accident more dangerous, that there would be no signifficant increase in radiation exposure to plant workers and that the plant's waste water treatment systems would not be affected.

The second part of the NRC staff report, an Environmental Impact Appraisal, concluded that the expansion of the spent fuel capacity "will not significantly affect the quality of the human environment", thus making an environmental impact statement (EIS) unneccessary.

An EIS was sought by local intervenors opposed to expansion of the spent fuel pool.

Said Christa Maria, one of the intervenors, "The Environmental Impact Assessment (EIA) is only one component of many studies that are considered for final approval of Big Rock's spent fuel compaction. Even the EIA shows a significant change of items to be improved upon from Consumers Power's orlginal application. The purpose of intervention and hearings is to introduce studies and research that have not yet been implemented by either nuclear utilities or the NRC."

The expansion project as proposed by Consumers Power would entail building new storage racks at an offsite location and shipping them to Big Rock. The existing racks would be removed from the pool, decontaminated and stored on site. The only contaminated solid waste product to be removed from the site, a pool filter, amounts to less than what is removed from the site in a typical refueling operation, according to the NRC report.

The report also concludes that no significantly increased radioactivity would occur in either waste water or other plant systems. An increase in temperature of three percent in peak heat loads is expected to occur in the cooling water discharged into Lake Michigan but the NRC report terms such an increase "negligible".

Millages now face voters

by FRAN MARTIN

Voters of the Charlevoix School District will go to the polls Monday, June 8, to vote on the renewal of 12.25 mills for operational purposes and to elect three trustees to the Charlevoix Board of Education. (See accompanying story.)

The millage request is a renewal of existing millage that espired in December, 1980. Also facing local voters will be a request by the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District in their biennial election for an additional .8 charter millage.

In discussing the Charlevois School District's request for renewal of the current operating millage, Superintendent Gordon VanWieren said that operating millage in the school district has been lowered by one full mill since 1977 and remains well under the average of the surrounding districts as well as being considerably lower than the state average.

He went on to say that staff reductions have been made and will continue to be made to adjust to declining enrollment. To date, it has not been neccessary to "pink slip" present personnel because of teachers leaving the system or going to half-time positions.

He explained further that the balance on hand, increased State Equalized Valuation and the curtailing of major purchases such as busses should enable the Board of Education to maintain the present education programs.

However, VanWieren continued, if it should become apparent at a later date, when more detailed information is available, that funding is not adequate, then a decision must be made to, one, make additional cuts; two, increase the millage or, three, a combination of the two.

In the meantime, a renewal of the present operating millage will assure that school will get underway in September, he said.

In the case of Char-Em's millage request of .8 mill in addition to the 1 mill now assessed for special education, indications from adminstrators have been that staff and programs aimed at the handicapped youth of the district will definitely face cuts if the millage is not approved by the voters.

Intermediate educational districts have taken an especailly hard beating by state funding cuts. Although several layoffs and staff sacrifices have already been made at Char-Em, further reductions are in the offing if the millage request fails.

Polls at the Charlevois Elementary School on Division Ave. will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday, June 8. Absentee ballots may be obtained at the Central Office at 208 Clinton St. or by calling the office at 547-6573.

Five candidates vie for three school board seats

by FRAN MARTIN

The names of five candidates who are seeking election to the three seats on the Charlevoix Board of Education will be on the ballot in the annual School Election scheduled for Monday, June 8.

Three candidates are seeking election to the two four-year terms and two others to the two-year term resulting from a resignation.

Candidates for the four-year term are C. Max Novak and Doris A. Pearl, incumbents, and Michael Bonello. Robert Drenth and Thomas G. LaBlance are candidates for the office being vacated by Michael Gibbons who was appointed to the office last fall and who is not a candidate for election.

In brief interviews with the candidates, each was asked what he or she felt were major problems facing the schools right now.

Novak, who is seeking election to a third term, said that he thought finance and the uncertainty of what the state is going to do is probably of greatest concern. He added that Charlevoix had done some long-range planning and was not in the financial bind that some school districts have found themselves.

If the millage request on Monday's ballot is approved, he said, the school district can ride out the economic crunch. Said Novak, "If the legislature mskes more cuts, which I think they will do, we may have to make some changes but for the moment I think we are on top of the problem." Novak is a native of Charlevoix and a former teacher and school administrator who is now retired.

Mrs. Pearl is a resident of Norwood where she and her husband, John, operate a beef farm. She was appointed to the board last fall to fill a vacancy.

She listed schoool finance as the major problem at the present time. The uncertainty regarding state funds and the need to study every expenditure to make sure the money is well apent is her concern.

"With children in school I have had a growing interest in the school and my short exposure to the operation of the schools has made me feel that I want to do what I can for young people," said Mrs. Pearl when asked of her reasons for running.

Bonello was employed as ski coach at the high school for six years. He resigned the position earlier this year but said he had close ties with the students and, as a coach, had done some counseling and guidance.

"This exposure made me want to start helping kids at an earlier age (than high school) and I felt I wanted to give some input into the foundation and development of youngsters. Working with the board of education was one place I felt I could do this," he explained.

Bonello is chief anesthetist at the Charlevoix Area Hospital. He attended Ferris State College and is a graduate of the University of Michigan with a B.S. degree and from Hurley Medical Center in Flint.

Candidates for the two-year term are Drenth and LaBlance.

Drenth, a long-time resident of the school district, conducts his own plumbing business. He has had three sons graduate from Charlevoix High School and a fourth will be a senior next year.

He said he has always had an interest in the schools but, until now, has been involved in the church and other interests and has not had the opportunity to devote much time to the school district.

"I think it is everyone's duty to get involved and that is why I have decided to be a candidate at this time." Finance he sees as a problem at this time. Drenth said he would like a chance to see that "we get the most for our money."

LaBlance, a graduate of Charlevoix High School, is also a graduate of Northern Michigan University and has his own insurance agency in Charlevoix.

He sees discipline as a problem.

"The board has made great strides in bringing this under control," said LaBlance, "However, there are those who become such problems that they are interfering with the educational process. I think more drastic means are needed to bring this under control." LaBlance currently has five children in the school system.

Nominations filed for city offices

With the filing deadline but a day away, nomination papers were still arriving at the City Clerk's office Monday for several local elective offices to be decided in primaries this summer and the general election in November.

For the office of mayor, City Clerk Deanne Balch said she had received completed nomination forms from present City Council member Earl Muma and Ken Staley. Incumbent Mayor Sam Supernaw indicated that his nomination papers would be filed Tuesday.

In the First Ward, incumbent council member Jeff Porter was, as of Monday night, the only candidate to file.

Current Second Ward council member Robert Timms will face at least two candidates who had filed nominations by Monday night. Hugh Mason and former council member Ivan Whitley.

In the Third Ward, Planning Commission chairman David Strawbridge had filed nomination papers for the council seat now held by Shirley Roloff.

Potential candidates have until 5 p.m. Tuesday to return completed nomination forms. Mrs. Balch said that several nomination petitions given out by her office were still circulating as of Monday.

High school gets good report card

Charlevoix High School Principal Vane Smith announced recently that the school has successfully retained accreditation from the University of Michigan following an April 27 onsite evaluation.

Dr. Ray E. Kehoe, consultant for the University of Michigan Bureau of School Services, authored the accreditation report in which he praised Charlevois High School in several areas including the foreign language curriculum, library-media center and counseling services made available to students.

Wrote Kehoe, "The...accreditation visitor found the...visit to Charlevoix High School to be a most enjoyable and and profitable educational experience. The range of curriculum offerings that were available to students was impressive when one takes into account the relatively low enrollment level of 588 students."

Kehoe went on to praise the courtesy and appearance of students, the organization and teaching methods of the faculty and the contribution of the new addition to the high school.

In his suggestions for improvement, Kehoe recommended an expansion of the vocal music program, the need for an auxiliary gym and locker room, the need for a full-time vice principal, two full-time counselors and a new office practice laboratory.

Said Smith of the accreditation, which Charlevois High School has received every five years since 1902, "I think the community should be complimented for what they have provided us with. By this measure, we are way beyond most schools our size in what we offer the students."

Charlevoix High School is also accredited by North Central every seven years.

Castle Farms okayed by Health Dept.

Castle Farms Music Theatre was granted approval for their sanitary facilities by District Health Department No. 3 on April 28, 1981. It was reported in the Courier last week that such approval had not been granted.

Outdoor run sought by Humane Society

William Matthew, president of the Charlevoix County Humane Society, appeared before the Board of Commissioners last week to ask for assistance in building an outdoor run at the Society's shelter on Grant Street.

The cost of the run is estimated at $1,000. The request was referred to the Sheriff's Committee.

V.F.W., Auxiliary, install new officers, honor members for service

Slates of officers for Charlevoix Post No. 1133, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and its Auxiliary headed by Donald White as post commander and Mrs. Joseph Seidel as president were installed at a joint installation ceremony recently.

Kenneth Staley, past commander, and Ellen Barger of Traverse City, District president, were the installing officers.

The new officers will assume their duties in July.

Commander White then administered the Obligation of membership to members who had not taken the obligation including Clifford Johnson, Jospeh Seidel and Sgt. David Goldstick who is stationed at George Air Force Base, Cal. and who is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Goldstick.

Mrs. Barger commended the Auxiliary for its fine work during the year, the support the group had given her and for their efforts in helping to keep the 13th District in first place in the Department of Michigan most of the year. She was then presented with a gift from the Auxiliary.

At the business meeting Mrs. Seidel, Mrs. Clarence Goldstick, Mrs. Jack Warner and Mrs. Kenneth Staley were named delegates and Mrs. White, Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. John Gilding alternates to the state convention to be held in Southfield.

The Auxiliary honored Mrs. Goldstick for her work on behalf of the Auxiliary for many years by presenting her with a Life Membership to the V.F.W. National Home for Children which the group had gone on record as supporting.

The Auxiliary also gave its support to the proposed monument to all veterans including those of World Wars I and II, the Korean Conflict and Vietnam to be constructed at the Capitol Building in Lansing. A contribution will be made in honor of local service people.

It was announced that East Jordan will host the next District 13 meeting in August.

Mrs. Jacqueline Smigiel, president of the Beta Sigma Phi chapter of the Kappa Sigma sorority, presented a check for $250 to Oren Schroeder, director of the Chips Counseling Center as a donation by the chapter to Chips. The money was raised in a raffle held in April. Money from the raffle also provided prizes of $100, $50 and $25 in goods and services from Phillips Standard Station.

Trees in the Memorial Garden at Mercer Blvd. and Dixon Ave. are presently in full bloom. The garden is one of several projects sponsored by the Charlevoix Area Garden Club. Here, Mrs. Marge Dunwiddie checks the flowering crab trees.

Memorial gardens in bloom

The Charlevoix Area Garden Club is dedicated to beautifying the community in many ways.

Foremost among these is the establishment of a Memorial Garden in the islands of Mercer Blvd. at the end of East Dixon Ave. Established several years ago, the garden now boasts numerous plantings made possible by contributions to the club in memory of a loved one.

The landscaping and maintanance as well as the planting of small trees and shrubs has been made possible by contributions in memory of Frank Webb, John Uhrick, Joseph Uhrick, Daniel Schoelberger, Elsie and Edward Clagett, Arlo Wickersbam, Harley and Mildred Ochs, Curtis Burlin, Mr. and Mrs. Porter Francis, Hubert Olach, Raymond Close, Hubert and Mildred Paddock, Doris Ochs, Mrs. H.H. Voder, Kenneth McLean, Irene Young, Anthony Stabnick, Albert Sutton, Marian Purdy, Trina Nelson, Frank Novotny, Edward Golden, Velma Gibb, Gordon L. Freedman, Mabel Cromwell and Mrs. May C. Smith.

This year the Memorial committee of the Garden Club is concentrating on raising funds to to replace a Weeping Red Jade Crabapple tree which was destroyed last year by vandals. A garage sale on June 20 is planned to raise funds for this purpose.

Anyone interested in donating a living memorial to a loved one may do so by contacting Mrs. Robert Close at 201 Cherry St.

Baptists name new pastor

Rev. Robert K. Smith, right, has been called to be pastor of the First Baptist Church in Charlevoix and will begin his duties on Sunday, June 14. Smith was raised in Painyra, N.Y. and entered the ministry after being inspired by evangelist Billy Graham. He graduated from Northeastern Bible Institute, Essex Falls, N.J. and received a Bachelor of Science degree in theology from Nyack Missionary College, Nyack, N.Y. B.I. to lose plane

The U-6A DeHaviland Beaver Aircraft which has been on Beaver Island since 1974 for use as an ambulance plane will be put up for sale.

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners last week voted to advertise the plane in the publication "Trade-a-Plane".

The plane was secured for the use of Beaver Island residents by the Charlevoix County Emergency Services Department. It was excess property of the United States government and cost the County only the expenses of taking the plane out of mothballs, putting it in flying condition, and bringing it to Michigan from Arizona, a total of slightly more than $4,000.

Former Emergency Services Director Alice Tunison, who was in charge of getting the plane, said it was ideal for use as an ambulance plane because it had removable seats and could carry three litters along with a pilot and co-pilot.

During the first nine months the plane was on the Island, it transported seven persons to mainland hospitals and also participated in some water search and rescue activities. According to Colleen Martin, deputy clerk of Peaine Township, the plane was used "only a couple of times" during the last year. Both she and St. James Township clerk Vivian Visscher say that better service and larger planes now available through McPhillips Flying Service in Charlevoix make it more practicable to use that commercial service rather than to take the DeHaviland out of its hangar.

Building the hangar was a community project in the winter of 1975, when the men of the Island donated their time to work on it and the women encouraged them with hot meals served on the job. One Island resident, Ed Wojan, even donated a sizable portion of his winnings from the State Lottery toward the purchase of materials.

The County's contract with the United States government stipulated that the plane would become the property of the County at the end of five years.

To seek record for underwater chess

An attempt to break the world's record in the "Longest Underwater Chess Session" will take place Thursday and Friday of this week at The Lodge in Charlevoix.

The event is being sponsored by the Modern Upholstery Company, which is inviting the public to witness the unusual happening and participate in the chess games.

All proceeds derived from the event will be donated to the Bergmann Center.

On Saturday evening, the Modern Upholstery Company is celebrating its Fifth Anniversary with a party at the Rod & Gun Club, to which all "friends, relatives and business associates" are invited.

Building trades open house set

Charlevoix Public Schools and their Vocational Education Department will host an open house at the house on Old US 31 South constructed during the 1980-81 school year by the junior and senior students in the building trades classes.

The open house will be held from 3:30 to 9 p.m. Thursday, June 4. David Anderson, the instructor, and his assistant, Carl Price, will be at the house from 3:30 to 6:30 p.m. and Barry Anderson, Vocational Education director, from 6 to 9 p.m. to show the house and answer any questions.

The house will be offered for sale following the open house.

Anderson, under whose direction the house has been built, said that in addition to regular construction, it was built to be an energy-conscious house. The students were shown ways to save on energy such as the position of the house with the main part facing south with a two-foot overhang which allows the winter sun to enter and the summer sun to be shaded. The garage is placed at the northwest corner to serve as a windbreaker.

The house has a full basement with 12-block high walls; 2" Thermax insulation with all seams taped and 1" Thermax on the inside ceilings and walls which are also taped adding to the energy saving features of the house. Also, all of the windows are triple-glazed with foam insulation around them and around all plumbing and electrical outlets in exterior walls. The bond or rim joist has loose and rigid insulation.

The one-story house has three bedrooms, two full baths, kitchen, dining coye, living room and two-car garage.

Cancer donations ahead of last year

Although all the monies are not in, the Charlevoix County Unit of the American Cancer Society has reported that crusaders have already collected almost as much as was collected all of last year.

County Crusad Chairman Joanne Curtis of Charlevoix and Unit Treasurer Hugh Mason, also of Charlevoix, told the unit's board of directors on May 18 that $9,246 had been collected at that point compared with a total collection of $10,464 last year.

They also told board members that all communities have shown an increase in residential collections over last year.

Board memebrs noted that those county residents who have not been able to give to the Cancer Society may still do so by mailing their donations to P.O. Box 304, Charlevoix.

Unit President Joan Hoffman announced that she, along with Mary Terryberry, supervisor of the Charlevoix Area Hospital obstetrics department, will be conducting a breast examination seminar at the hospital at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, June 18.

The seminar, entitled "How to Examine Your Breast for Cancer" is open to all area women. It is part of the monthly public education seminars hosted by the hospital.

Opinion

Knight on the Town

Just a regular guy

by Dave Knight

Joel Schnackenberg shoots a lot of preconceptions about straight-A students right in the you-know-what.

Schnackenberg, for those who have been away the past couple years, is an 18 year-old Charlevoix High School senior who has won just about every scholastic accolade this side of the Rockies and who is, by consensus, just about the smartest kid ever to shake a beaker in a CHS chem lab.

In addition to sharing valedictorian honors with Shari Cook, a fellow 4.0 and brilliant in her own right, Schnackenberg has won a full ride to Michigan State University where he will enroll this fall.

The Distinguished Alumni Scholarship recently awarded to Schnackenberg is the result of a careful screening process and grueling test that eliminates all but ten out of some 14,000 incoming freshmen each year. It's stipend extends well into five figures. Suffice it to say that Joel won't have to flip burgers at McDonald's after classes if he doesn't want to.

For all his academic brilliance, though, Schanackenberg is an amazingly unaffected young man who, if he wasn't so smart, could be passed off as a stereotypical eighteen-year-old anywhere.

Jeans, tee shirt and sneakers. Hair frazzled. Hangs around with the jocks in the lunch room. Answers to "Snack". Can be found at football or track practice after school. Never studies. Eats cold cereal for breakfast.

Sound familiar, parents?

Mothers and fathers who wonder what the secret is to raising a brilliant student will get no easy answers from Joel Schnackenberg's example.

"I don't know why; I've just always liked school and I've always been able to do well," says Joel. "When I can't I just fake it."

The fundamental question, one that about 350 million high school students would give their best Calvins to know, is how to score a 4.0 without studying. Schnackenberg claims he doesn't even take notes in classes.

"No, I don't have a photographic memory," he claims, "I just seem to understand stuff. I guess I really waste a lot of my spare time but I've never had to study much."

One thing he does much is read. Always has. In the early grades, Schnackenberg developed a voracious apetite for books and magazines. He can still be found, between field events at a track meet or waiting for a ride to the dentist in the school parking lot, reading.

He likes science magazines and science fiction novels the best. For someone who plans to major in physics that is only logical.

He is on delightfully easy terms with his parents whom, he says, have never put extra pressure on him to excel but have always supported his ambitions. The Schnackenbergs are a family of diverse individuals, says "Joel, and everyone has been encouraged to do his or her own thing.

"I don't think I am a perfectionist," he ventures, "I just like to do things right."

At first that sounds contradictory but he explains.

"When I get interested in something, I enjoy getting involved with it totally. But it doesn't bother me if I sometimes I can't."

By the way, Schnackenberg does not live by books alone. Over the course of his high school career, he found time for a couple years of band, four years of football and four years of track. And he didn't just put in time; as a lineman on last fall's Rayder grid team, Schnackenberg won an All-Conference honorable mention.

Call him "Egghead" and he just may ruin your day with a forearm.

As a media personality, however, Joel is unfortunately a dismal failure. He has no eccentricities, no quirks. Of all the attention he's been getting lately, says Joel, "It's embarassing."

He doesn't party too much, is not into politics or big business and doesn't even know, really, what he wants to be eventually. He respects teachers and says he will sincerely miss high school and Charlevoix when classes start in Lansing next fall.

But another challenge awaits like a new issue of "Popular Science" just waiting to be plucked off the magazine rack.

"Success?" says Schnackenberg, "I don't know how to explain it. I suppose it's doing what you can do best. That's what I've done and I guess I've been successful so far."

I guess.

Lefever's double standard

by Bob Clock

I hope members of the U.S. Senate are strong enough to stand up for their convictions on the confirmation of Ernest Lefever as assistant secretary of state for human rights.

To support a man who endorses a double standard of conduct on the part of the United States in such an important area would be unconscionable.

Lefever, in essence, believes the United States should treat its friends (translate "rightists") and its enemies (translate "communists") differently when it comes to human rights violations.

If Russia, for example, chooses to exile a liberal spokesman to the wilds of Siberia, we should cry havoc and fuss and fume until Lenin spins in his grave.

If West Germany, El Salvador or Japan tries a similar trick, we should handle the situation with so-called "quiet diplomacy," working behind the scenes to help our friends see the error of the ways.

"Quiet diplomacy," incidentally, is just another way of saying "no diplomacy" since neither our friends nor our foes will ever know where we stand on human rights violations.

President Reagan, who nominated Lefever to the sensitive post, should have been more alert to the importance Americans and their friends around the world place on human rights. True, we elected him over human rights champion Jimmy Carter in November; but that was chiefly because of Carter's economic policies — or lack of them — not his stand on human rights.

If Carter's re-election had depended solely on human rights, he probably would have defeated Reagan hands down.

But elections don't ride on one horse, and economics was more important to Americans last fall than human rights. So we elected Ronald Reagan (who hasn't done such a hot job economically, either, but that's beside the point.)

What bothers me most about Lefever's appointment is that America stands to lose no small amount of respect among beleagured peoples around the world if we adopt a double standard on human rights. Can you imagine what it would be like to live day after dreary day in South Africa, Poland, the Philippines, Communist China or in one of the Central American dictatorships without the daily knowledge that the lamp of freedom still burns brightly in North America?

If Lefever is allowed to fill this important post, the lamp of freedom will be dimmed for millions.

WHILE ON THE subject of confirmations, I wish the Senate had taken a longer, harder look at James Watt, the Reagan nominee now calling the shots for the Department of the Interior. Just as Lefever appears to be an enemy of human rights, Watt seems to be an enemy of the environment.

One of his latest outrageous proposals would be to open the nation's hard-won land preserves to mineral exploitation — on grounds the parks belong to everyone, even high-powered commercial interests.

Earlier, Watt suggested turning the operation of national parklands over to concessionaires, allowing them to turn a profit on our national heritage.

If the present administration finds that it is impossible to operate national parks on its present budget, then it should close them until a more sensitive administration is at the tiller.

I am afraid if the concessionaires take over, Yellowstone, Yosemite and Sleeping Bear will become new Disneylands. Which is not exactly what Teddy Roosevelt had it mind.

Letters: Thanks for the help

Crusade was success

Dear Dave,

On behalf of the Charlevoix County Unit of the American Cancer Society, I would like to thank the dozens of Cancer Society volunteers who took part in the April residential and business crusade in Charlevoix County.

We would also like to thank the residents of our county for opening doors — and their pocketbooks — to contribute to our drive and receive our educational material. A special "thank you" also goes to you and the Courier for allocating valuable space to news of our activities.

While all our monies are not in, everyone will be happy to learn that the raidential crusade has been an increase in donations in every community in Charlevoix County over last year's figures. That's particularly gratifying, particularly when one considers the state of today's economy.

But, those donations will help thousands in this county, state and nation fight this killer. This year, 805,000 Americans will be diagnosed as having cancer, and approximately 405,000 will die. In Michigan this year, some 31,000 residents will be diagnosed as having cancer, and approximately 16,000 will die.

A more positive note, however, one third of those who get cancer this year will be alive at least five years from now. There are over three million Americans alive today who have a history of cancer ... two million of them with diagnosis five or more years ago.

More proof that Crusades and sonations are working: Three fourths of the vi tms of Hodgkiss's disease, whose cancer is detected and treated promptly, are expected to live normal life spands. Five years ago, osteogenic sarcoma, a form of bone cancer, killed four out of five of its victims. Today with chemotherspy, four out of five are surviving.

Putting it another way: 10 years ago, acute lymphocytic leukemia killed nine out of 10 of its victims. Now, half to three-quarters of these people are free of the disease five years after diagnosis.

Again, a sincere "thank you" to all who played a part in this year's success effort.

Joan Hoffman, President
Charlevoix County Unit
American Cancer Society

Thanks for the party

To the Editor:

Congratulations to the American Legion and V.F.W. for the excellent party they sponsored for senior citizens. Charlevoix should be proud of these organizations.

On behalf of the kids

To the Editor and Citizens of the Charlevoix Area:

In this busy day and age and time of recession, you hear so many complaints and so few compliments. Well, this time I am going to comment and compliment.

We have the Nine Mile Point R.V. Park out on U. S. 31 north of Charlevoix and had a great number of boys and girls from the concert out at Castle Farms stay at our park. These young people were polite, courteous and mostly well-mannered. They camped at the lake and had fun. They were not fighting, they did not destroy anything and even helped clean up the litter before they left.

It was wonderful to see so many young people all having a good time. Americans and Canadians alike. So many times, a few spoil it for the majority and the good times are not mentioned. So keep it up, youth of today. We are proud of you!

4-H Notes

Summer doesn't stop 4-H

BY LEAH GREEN
4-H Program Assistant

4-H is NOT something that ceases to a grinding halt when school lets out! In fact, some 4-H club members experience their busiest time during the summer months. Others continue their 4-H activities by choosing summer events that take place while their club has a rest. A number of clubs continue to meet year round by adopting their projects to the season.

Special events seem to be really cropping up just now. 4-H Exploration Days — with over 200 choices of learning options — is a memorable and valuable experience for 4-H'ers 12 and over. Charlevoix County will send a delegation of 23, including five leaders, to Lansing for, this event which attracts upwards of 5,000 4-H people each June. Charlevoix people will be atayingin MSU dorms, enjoying the campus, meeting new friends, and sampling new skills. Their option choices cover a wide range — BMX Bicycle, Dairy Food, Leisure Activities, Astronomy, Cartooning, Sketching, Leatbercraft, Ribbon Christmas and Macrame crafts, Navajo weaving, Horse Training, Nature Exploration, Bowling, Photography, Solar Energy, Personal Grooming, and Dog Care.

Following this super event, the 4-H members and leaders will use what they have learned to improve themselves and 4-H in Charlevoix County. Maybe next year YOU can go!

Boys and girls interested in being certified babysitters — get this. Charlevoix County 4-H's second summer event will be a Babysitting Workshop, in Charlevoix, on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, June 23, 24, and 25. We will have five sessions something like this:

1. What Do Babysitters Really Do and What Makes a Successful Babysitter?
2. Nutritious Snacks, or Would You Like to Help Mix This?
3. Emergency Procedures, or No Blood!
4. Safe Toys, Games and Activities, or What's a Babysitting Bag?
5. Panel of Parents: Information and Questions, or THAT Cake is for a Party!

Each session will last two hours. Times are 9:30-11:30 a.m. and 12:30-2:30 on Tuesday and Wednesday, with a sack lunch, and 9:30-11:30 Thursday with a simple picnic to follow. We will be meeting in the basement of the Charlevoix Public Library (or out on the lawn when we can). This workshop is open to the youthful public — you need not be a 4-H'er to be included.

Once you are certified, your names will be publicized as good bets for parents needing this service. If you are going into 6th grade or above, you may want to take advantage of this.

Call the Extension Office to be included in this workshop, 582-6232, before June 19.

4-H Summer Camp will be held on Beaver Island the week of July 27, 1981 for children age nine and above. Details will follow in this article in June. Information can be obtained from the Cooperative Extension Office in Boyne City at 582-6232. The Charlevoix Public Schools Lighthouse property is a lovely spot and we look forward to a neat camping experience.

Both 4-H Market Livestock and Horse Club members are gearing up for a busy summer. Members of 4-H Horse Clubs that ride will be competing in their choice of at least two out of four 4-H sanctioned shows held in Charlevoix County. Two of these will be sponsored by the Range Riders 4-H Horse Club of Boyne City on June 20 and the Eastern Star of Boyne City on June 21. The others are Charlevoix Wranglers on July 18 and Charlevoix Farms on July 19 at Charlevoix Farms. In addition, there is a full schedule of out-of-County shows in surrounding areas — Gaylord, Cheboygan, Petoskey, etc. in which many local 4-H'ers will take part. A Fall Achievement closed horse show will culminate the summer 4-H horse schedule. The results of the season will then be used to determine which young 4-H horse member will attend the State 4-H horse show at MSU on August 25.

Charlevoix County 4-H Market Livestock members have a lot to do before the Emmet County Fair the last week in August. Just now they are busy keeping track of the nutrient content of the feed they give their steers, hogs, and lambs, and checking to insure proper weight gain. Their animals need to be at good selling weight in time for the Fair Auction. They will be working hard with their animals throughout the summer. All of the stock has to be led and handled properly for show and sale. These young people have a daily committment to the animals and to the fair. They are also presently out soliciting potential bidders for their animals. Businesses, private persons or groups of people are invited to attend the auction and bid on animals. The Extension Office can put you in touch with a member club or sign up for a project that will really help to round out your summer and put you on the road to a lifelong skill. Give me a call at 582-6232 and let's talk it over.

Notes from Ron

It was an exciting day recently for four local young people when the postman delivered letters from the White House to Dawn and Mindy Gennett and Paul and Jennifer Sumner of Charlevoix.

The cards were acknowledgement from President Ronald Reagan for get-well cards sent by the youngsters following the attempted assassination.

The message from Reagan read: "I am so happy to receeive your get-well message! Knowing of your friendship and prayers encourages me daily. From the bottom of my heart, thank you for caring, Ronald Reagan."

Dawn, 14, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mas Gennett, Mindy the daughter of Lyle Gennett and Mrs. Diane Gennett and the granddaughter of the Max Gennetts. Paul and Jennifer are the son and danghter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sumner and also the grandchildren of the Max Gennetts.

Thirty-two boys and girls celebrated their first communion on May 17 at 8:30 mass at St. Mary's Church. Following mass they were honored at a reception given by the Parish Club. Included in the group were, above, first row left to right, Shannon Dreyer, Alison Boyer, Kendra Olinger, Mindie Willett, Rebecca Rautio, Erin Dailey, Michelle Carlson, Tracee Smith, Barbara Skrzeckoski, Jennifer Puhl and Tracy Grunch; in the second row are Father Dale Magoon, Jennifer Superman, Stacey Skeel, Theresa Kaskey, Tana Egger, Daniel Terryberry, Kevin Campbell, Eric McElroy, Jason Parrish, Tim Ebenhoe, Peggy Oleksy and Sister Agnes Mary; in the third row are Eddie McLemon, Guy Gengle, Paul Wakulat, Ryan Celaschi, Brad Carlson, Scott Campbell, Cory Furgeson, Denis Maillous, Bobby Jo Givens, Greg Seese and Brandon Jess.

Your June utility bill may be the most important one you'll receive all year.

When you open the envelope containing your June utility bill you will find a very important booklet for you might receive it as a separate mailing.t

It describes the new Michigan Residential Conservation Services program featuring a Home Energy Analysis.

The new service is offered by eight major Michigan utilities and meets the requirements of the Michigan Public Service Commission and the 1978 National Energy Act. It's available to all homeowners and renters who pay energy utility bills.

Even if you and your family are already conserving energy, the Home Energy Analysis can show you how to save more.

For a $10 fee, you will get a complete inspection of your home by an energy specialist from your utility. You will learn how effective your present insulation, weatherstripping, caulking and other energy cost saving measures are, and you will be provided with information on specific things you can do to reduce energy waste.

You also will receive a written computer analysis giving you estimates on how much recommended improvements will cost and how long they will take to pay for themselves. Information on contractors who can do the work, details on financing, tax credits and Home Weatherization Grants for low-income persons also will be provided. After the work is completed, you may have it inspected by your utility.

Some of the recommendations may cost very little or nothing at all. Some you may be able to do yourself. Others will require the services of a contractor. In any case, the Home Energy Analysis puts you under no obligation to carry out any of the recommendations. However, you probably will want to do at least some of these, because now you will know a great deal more about how to make your home energy efficient.

Whether or not you decide to have a Home Energy Analysis, please read the booklet that comes with your June bill or by a separate mailing. It lists many things you can start doing right now to save energy and money. The booklet also tells you about assistance you can get from your utility to help you make your home more energy efficient — with or without the Home Energy Analysis. Lists of contractors and lenders, as well as do-it-yourself information also are available from your utility.

You can sign up for your Home Energy Analysis by returning the post card in the booklet or by getting in touch with your utility. The sooner you sign up, the sooner you can start reducing energy waste in your home.

The Michigan Residential Conservation Services program is conducted through the utilities listed below. You can select any one of which you are a customer to perform your Home Energy Analysis.

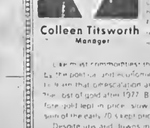
FASCINATING FACTS ABOUT GOLD



Colleen Titsworth, Manager

We all know the price of gold changes, but who decides just how much one ounce is worth? Tuesday's price for 1 troy ounce of gold was $___. The metal can be mined, minted, bought and sold in many forms, but the price is the same all over the world.

Gold prices fluctuate daily on the London Gold Market. The world's largest gold dealers meet in London to set the local gold price.

Like most commodities, the current value of gold is affected by the supply and demand. Just one of many factors that is known to influence the price of gold is inflation. Gold's sharpest rise in the cost of gold since 1977. But do you remember how just before gold leapt in price, slow economic growth and the recession of the early 70's kept prices low?

Despite ups and downs in prices, the United States is now leading the world's gold market. More gold futures are traded on the Commodity Exchange in the three traditional trading centers, London, Zurich and Hong Kong combined.

It is surprising to learn that all the nations in the world, great and small, own only half the earth's gold. Companies, private banks and individuals own the other half, an equal share!

Another piece of trivia: Gold, for gold at the moment, its value has been acknowledged by governments and individuals for thousands of years. It has never been easier for the individual to own gold than it is today. Krugerrands and Credit Suisse are available in most markets. Each of these coins and bars contains one troy ounce of gold, the precious metal that has been traded and valued for centuries.

The serving line, above, wound its way around a beautifully decorated table.

Braille printer

There is now a braille printer in the Charlevoix Public Library.

The printer was given to the Charlevoix Lions Club by Sue Montague of St. James. The Lions, in turn, donated it to the library so that it would be readily available to anyone in the community wishing to use it.

The Charlevoix Library also has available a special reading service for those who cannot read standard print due to a visual or physical handicap.

This service is provided by the Michigan State Regional Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped in cooperation with the Library of Congress. Reading materials are available in recorded form, in large print, and in braille. This FREE library service provides the handicapped with access to nearly 26,000 books and 100 magazines.

More information and Certificates of Eligibility may be obtained by calling the library at 547-2651.

Weddings

Puffpaff-VanDeSteene

Arrangements of lilac hydranges and lighted tapers graced the altar at Christ Episcopal Church for the Saturday, May 23 evening wedding of Ann Marie Puffpaff of Charlevoix and Thomas VanDeSteene, Jr. of Conway.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Fritz A. Puffpaff of Charlevoix and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas VanDeSteene of Conway.

Rev. Roger Ames officiated at the double ring rites in the presence of 250 guests. Jeannie Lignell, at the organ, played a program of traditional love songs and accompanied Dr. John Lignell who sang "Always and Forever".

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father. For her wedding she wore a gown of white crystal organza with a flounced hemline and train. Alencon lace created a Queen Anne neckline and bodice and shadow sleeves highlighted with pearl accents. Her bridal bouquet was of purple and white earnations, white roses and violets.

Debbie Puffpaff of Virginia Beach, Va., was her sister's maid of honor. Her cousins, Linda Briedenstein and Renae Briedenstein of Boyne City and Maureen Crinnion were bridesmaids. Her sister wore a purple and lilac print gown fashioned with short sleeves. The bridesmaids wore matching lilac dresses with lace trim. They carried bouquets of purple and white carnations, white roses and violets.

Jennifer Briedenstein of Boyne City, cousin of the bride, and Jamie VanDeSteene of Conway, sister of the groom, were flower girls. One wore a lilac dress and the other a lilac floral print dress made by the bride's aunt, Mrs. Sue Briedenstein. Noelle VanDeSteene of Conway, sister of the groom, lighted the altar candles and attended the guest book.

Duane Krueger of Alanson was best man and Kurt Puffpaff, brother of the bride, Terry Kabol of Indian River and Jeff DelMotte of Detroit, cousin of the groom, were groomsmen. John VanDeSteene of Detroit, cousin of the groom, and Andy Schaefer seated the guests.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Puffpaff wore a full length gown of lavender Quiana. Mrs. VanDeSteene, mother of the groom, wore a powder blue gown.

A reception, hosted by the bride's parents, followed at the American Legion post home catered by Joseph Etienne.

Following a week in Florida, the couple took a cruise to Saint Thomas before returning May 31 to make their home in Midland.

A rehearsal dinner hosted by Mr. and Mrs. VanDeSteene was held at Duffy's of Charlevoix on the Friday evening before the wedding.

Girls win District softball title

With a sparkling season record of 25-1, the Charlevoix girls softball team added another jewel to their crown Friday when they won the District championship at Kalkaska.

In the first game, the girls faced Traverse City St. Francis and strolled to a 23-6 easy victory and in the finals they got a late inning scare after leading by ten but salvaged a 13-10 win over Roscommon.

Against St. Francis, pitchers Rhonda Buchanan and Melinda Klooster combined to hold TC to four hits. From the plate, Margo Smith hit for a double and two singles, Mel Kerridge a double and a single, Colleen LaBlance, Rhonda Buchanan and Bridget Noirot each with two singles, Teresa Noirot with a double and Brenda Buchanan with a single.

The second game with Roscommon saw Rhonda Buchanan return to the mound for the win. Charlevoix led comfortably 13-3 going into the seventh when three walks, a two-run error, and a frustrating string of base hits and errors brought in a total of seven runs for Roscommon.

It was not enough, however, to catch the Rayders whose 13 runs came on a double and single by Bridget Noirot, two singles apiece by Kerridge and Klooster, a double by Smith and singles by Rhonda and Brenda Buchanan and Teresa Noirot.

On last Tuesday against Gaylord, the team split a double header with a 12-6 win and a 6-2 defeat. Rhonda Buchanan pitched the victory in game one with help from the plate by Teresa Noirot who hit a home run. Others hitting safely were LaBlance, Rhonda Buchanan, Kerridge, Klooster, Holly Taber, Bridget Noirot and Doretta Anderson.

The Rayders' usually potent offensive attack was handcuffed in game two, however, as they were held to only two hits, a double by Smith and a single by Teresa Noirot.

Mel Kerridge took the loss for Charlevoix.

In drawings held this week, Charlevoix was matched with Breckenridge for a 10 a.m. game Saturday at the Regional tournament at Clare. Sanford-Meridian will play Tri-County (Howard City) at noon. The finals will be at 2:30 p.m.

Slowpitch softball results

In Charlevoix slow-pitch action last week:

Captains Corner lost to V.F.W. 12-7. Harold Thomure was the winning pitcher, Bill Gauthier the losing pitcher. V.F.W. led in total hits 16-8.

The Landing swamped Small Engines Unlimited 10-1 behind pitcher Jaek Niswander. Greg Revoir was the losing pitcher.

The Landing also shut oot the Flight Deck 12-0 again with Niswander on the mound and Chris Denio picking up the loss.

Slebe Construction forfeited to Captains Corners for lack of enough players.

They did have enough, however, to roll up Jerry's Carpets by a 15-4 margin with Tim Bruce pitching for the win and Clyde Left the losing pitcher.

Flight Deck beat Wojan Aluminum 5-0 with Denio pitching the victory and Gary Balch taking the loss.

V.F.W., behind Harold Thomure on the mound, beat Small Enginex 10-2 with Revoir taking the loss.

Jerry's Carpets forfeited to Wojan because they did not have enough players.

The Charlevoix Sports Boosters hosted all senior athletes of Charlevoix High School at the annual Senior Athletic Awards Banquet Friday night at the American Legion Hall. Keynote speaker for the night was Deano Davenport, below, Charlevoix native and athletic director at Ferris State College. Fifty-one student athletes were honored at the banquet, some of whom are shown at the right.

Rayder baseball squad stopped

After winning their first game in heroic style at the District finals in Grayling, the Charlevoix Rayder baseball squad fell with a thud to a powerful Rogers City team, thus ending their hopes for further tournament action this year.

In the first game Friday, Charlevoix played Alcona even for nine innings with the score tied at two apiece. Scott Kelly ended the game with a timely home run in the ninth to hand the Raydera a 3-2 victory.

Kurt Puffpaff started on the mound for Charlevoix and was relieved in the fifth by Mike Loper. Between the two of them, Alcona was held to two runs on six hits. Charlevoix accumulated only four hits, three of them by Kelly who had an excellent game at the plate. Ken Speigl added the fourth hit for the Rayders.

Whether tired out by the extra inning game or not, Charlevoix could not keep up with Rogers City in the key game, allowing them 13 runs on eight hits. Errors spelled defeat for Charlevoix whose defense all but collapsed in the sixth inning to oust them from contention. The Rayders could manage only five runs on five hits.

Charlevoix went through four pitchers including Loper, who started, Kelly and Puffpaff who came in in the sixth and Chris Putman who came in in the seventh.

Hitting safely for Charlevoix were Loper and Jon Supernaw who slugged home runs, Speigl, Mike Zednicek and Putman.

The Rayders were leading 2-1 going into the fatal sixth when eight Rayder errors led to nine runs for Rogers City. Charlevoix made a slight comeback effort in the bottom half of the inning but the three runs they scored, making the score 9-5, were not enough as Rogers City put four more on the board in the seventh to ice the win.

In regular season action last Tuesday, Charlevoix swept two from Gaylord 2-1 and 1-0. In the first game, Jeff Greene started ort the mound and was relieved in the fifth by Puffpaff who logged the save in nine innings.

Loper went three for four from the plate and Zednicek two for three. Also with hits were Puffpaff with a double, Kelly, Supernaw and Greg Whitley.

Game two saw Kelly hurl the 1-0 victory with relief from Putman in the third.

Speigl drove in the only run of the game and had the only Charlevoix hit in a pitchers' duel.

Middle School girls win but don't get trophy

The Charlevoix Middle School girls track team, coached by Henry Wagner, won the Petoskey Invitational track and field meet Saturday, edging Grayling by a margin of 140-139.

However, due to an error in tabulation, it was the Grayling team that was recognized as the champions immediately following the meet and presented with the trophy. The team will be recognized as the title holder and presented with a championship trophy at a later date Bud Neidheimer, Athletic Director at Petoskey, has advised Wagner.

The Charlevoix Middle School boys, however, finished second behind a strong Cheboygan team that swept the meet with 135 points. Charlevoix had 113 followed by Boyne City with 112. Other teams in the meet were Gaylord (53); Inland Lakes (51) and Petoskey (32).

In winning the title, the Charlevoix girls had only four first places with Missy Sandahl the only dual winner. She took first in the high jump with a jump of 4'7" and the shot put with a throw of 24'9". Other first were by Brenda Currier who had a time of 12.42 in the 100 yard dash and Kathy Dohm a time of 14.64 in the 100 yard low hurdles.

Middle School boys win track title

The Charlevoix Middle School boys returned home from Gaylord Friday with the Michigan-Huron Shores Junior High track title after scoring 63 points in the seven-team meet.

The meet was an exciting one, with three new records being set, two of them by Charlevoix's Doug Sloan. In both instances, the records he broke had been set by him last year as a seventh grader. His first was in the long jump, with a leap of 17'9", over his previous record of 16'11½". The second was in the 220 yard dash, which he covered in 25.58. His old record was 25.78. He also had a first in the 880 yd. run, with a time of 2:19.19.

Charlevoix had six of the 15 firsts in the meet, with Sloan taking the long jump, the 880 yd. run and the 220 yd. run; Jim Martin the mile; and Jim Kenney the 100 yd. hurdles and the 440 yd relay.

Finishing behind Charlevoix were Gaylord with 49 points; Cheboygan with 47; Rogers City, 37; Boyne City, 28, St. Ignace, 23; and Petoskey, nine.

Meet results for Charlevoix follows:

Long jump: Sloan, 17'9"; high jump, John Pearl, 2nd; 60 yd. hurdles, Pearl, 3rd; Andy Brumm, 4th.

Garden Club plans trip to Grass Bay preserve

Plans for an excursion to the Grass Bay Preservation on Lake Huron in Cheboygan County by members of the Charlevoix Area Garden Club have been completed.

Plans call for the motorcade to depart at 11:30 a.m. Friday, June 5, and drive directly to the site. Information regarding the trip may be obtained by calling Mrs. David Fowler or Mrs. Homer Brady.

The Charlevoix Area Garden Club is a member of the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan, Inc., which made possible the purchase of Grass Bay by the Michigan Chapter of the Nature Conservancy. As if arriving from a different era, the Welcome unfurled her new sails for a shakedown on Lake Charlevoix last week before departing for her home port of Mackinaw City. The Welcome spent several weeks in Charlevoix while local boatbuilder Ted McCutcheon finished her rigging and sails. The classic sloop will now be turned over to the Park Commission and will be on display at the maritime museum at Mackinaw City.

Pearl, Novak, Drenth win board seats; millage requests split

Two incumbents and a newcomer will join the Charlevoix Board of Education following Monday's school election.

Doris A. Pearl, with 748 votes, was the top vote-getter in the school board races. She, along with fellow incumbent C. Max Novak with 630 votes will assume a new four-year term on the board. The third candidate for the four-year term, Michael J. Bonello, collected 512 votes.

In the race for the single two-year term up for election, Robert Drenth outpolled Thomas G. LaBlanc 607 to 455 to win the seat.

Charlevoix District Schools request for the renewal of a 15.25 mill tax limitation for operating purposes was easily approved by voters of the district 705-407.

Candidates for the two six-year terms on the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate District Board, Beverly Sobleski and Gloria C. Wilhelm, received 608 and 676 votes respectively.

The Char-Em Intermediate School District's request for a .8 mill for special education lost by almost a 500-vote margin district-wide, 3,547-3,092.

Of the twelve school districts included in Char-Em, only three, Beaver Island, Boyne City and Petoskey approved the millage request. In the Charlevoix School District, the Char-Em millage was defeated 466-649.

E.D.C. looking for development sites

by DAVE KNIGHT

Anxious to initiate an aggressive search for new business, industry and jobs in Charlevoix County, the county's newly established Economic Development Corporation (E.D.C.) has begun an extensive inventory of potentially attractive development sites in the county.

A nine-member board of directors has been meeting regularly since the E.D.C. conceept was approved by the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners in March. According to board treasurer Don Voisin of Charlevoix, much progress has already been made toward mounting an effective campaign to create more jobs in the county.

Labor statistics have ranked Charlevoix County's unemployment rate among the state's highest over the past year.

The E.D.C. was formed to assist local governments in attracting economic development through the use of tax exempt revenue bonding.

A two-year grant of $10,500 by the Private Industry Council was recently announced to the E.D.C. board by Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce Director Jacquie Merta. The grant is to be used to develop an industrial brochure for the county.

Such a brochure will be available to any business or industry considering expansion in Charlevoix County. At present, there is no single reference source listing development sites, demographics and other information sought by interested firms.

To facilitate the development of the brochure, the E.D.C. has recently sent letters to officals of all cities and townships in the county asking them to list potential commereial or industrial sites within their boundaries. Included in the data being assembled are the locations of such sites, their acreage and existing building space and their present use.

Property owners in the county who have or know of available commercial or industrial sites are encouraged to contact either their local government or the E.D.C. board.

Board members include, from Charlevoix, Lee Moerland, president, Oscar Ward, James Hater and Voisin; from Boyne City, Casimir Toton, vice president, Ray Towne and Arthur Rouse; from East Jordan, Dennis Jason and Charles Sherck.

Program aimed at teens in trouble

by PEG OHLE

A little-known agency is providing assistance to children in Charlevoix County who, for one reason or another, are in trouble.

It is the Youth Diversionary Program, funded by the State Office of Criminal Justice Programs and Charlevoix County and administered by the Department of Social Services.

The program is now in its third year, and its activities for the quarter ending March 31 were recently reported to the County Board of Commissioners by William Aten, program worker.

The report indicates that during the quarter, 59 young people received services under the program and 21 had services terminated after receiving an average of 27 weeks of services.

Thirteen young people were removed from the program because they were determined to have stabilized their problems; two were referred to another agency for service and remain active there; three cases were closed after court involvement; two were adjudicated on abuse and neglect petitions; and one was adjudicated for a repeat offense.

Of the 17 young people entering the program during the quarter, four were referred on property damage complaints, three on physical harm complaints, two as being neglected and/or abused, seven as being incorrigible, and one for an unspecified reason.

One of the 17 new program members was under 10 years of age; three were 11 or 12 years old; five were 13 or 14 years old; four were 15 years old; three were 16 years old; and one turned 17 during the period.

One of the 17 was referred to the program by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department, one by a city police department, two by the Probate Court, two by the Department of Social Services, five by the schools, five by parents, and one by himself.

Fifteen of the 17 new program members were boys and two were girls.

Fifteen of them had been attending school regularly, while only two were irregular in attendance. Their general family environments were described as: excellent, two; good, seven; fair, six; and poor, two. Fifteen were first offenders and two were repeat offenders.

Sixteen of the 17 were entered in counseling programs and seven were supplied with legal assistance.

During the quarter, Aten visited 39 young people weekly at their schools, as well as another 20 young people who required only monthly counseling visits.

He also attended parent-teacher conferences at Boyne City and East Jordan schools as a means of working directly with teachers of young people under his jurisdiction in the program.

Among the "fun" activities provided by the Youth Diversionary Program were two winter camping trips to Wilderness State Park, as well as day-long skiing trips.

Three primary races shape up on city ballot

City voters will be faced with choices in the mayoral race, Second Ward and Third Ward council seats following the closing of nominations last Tuesday.

Three candidates, F. Earl Muma, Kenneth A. Staley and incumbent Samuel C. Supernaw will be on the primary ballot for mayor.

Seeking the Second Ward council seat are incumbent Robert N. Timms, Evan Whitley and Hugh E. Mason.

In the Third Ward, the seat being vacated by Muma will be sought by four candidates, Theodore S. Felter, Barbara Ann Kane, Joseph G. Morris, Jr. and David J. Strawbridge. It was incorrectly reported by the Courier last week that Council Member Shirley Roloff's seat was the one up for re-election and that she was not running. Mrs. Roloff's seat does not come up for election this year.

In an August 4 primary, the two candidates in each race with the most votes will then advance to the November 3 general election ballot. Facing no opposition are First Ward Council Member Jeffrey L. Porter and City Clerk Deanne Baleh.

Probe B&E, theft from safe at Oleson Food Store

Police are investigating a breaking and entering and robbery that occurred either late Sunday night or early Monday morning at the Oleson Food Store in Charlevoix.

Store manager LeRoy Buchanan said Monday that approximately $900 in cash was missing from the store's safe which was found battered open early Monday morning. The discovery of the robbery was made by a bread delivery at about 4 a.m. Monday.

The safe, located in the store's front office, had a cement lined door about five inches thick. Early speculation was that explosives may have been used but that was not confirmed as of Monday evening.

Entry to the store was apparently gained by flipping back a air vent fan on the roof which opened into the men's bathroom.

No other damage or theft other than the contents of the safe was reported.

Charlevoix County 4-H (Cooperative Extension Service) is sponsoring a babysitting workshop of five sessions to be held on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, June 23, 24 and 25.

The classes will be held in the basement meeting rooms of the Charlevoix Public Library and are open to any young person in the county who is entering sixth grade or above.

Hours will be from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. and from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. on Tuesday and Wednesday, July 23 and 24, and from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. only on Thursday, July 25.

Certificates will be issued and the names of persons completing the workshop will be publicized in order to alert potential employers.

Sessions will include "The Successful Sitter", "First Aid in Minor Emergencies", "Toys, Games and Activities", "Nutricious Snacks" and a panel of parents who will talk and answer practical questions about kids and babysitters.

Locally, there are as many opportunities for summer babysitting as any other job for young people. Completing this workshop, having a certificate and some publicity may help many local youth gain experience and subsequently earn some needed funds.

For more information, those interested should contact Leah Green at 582-6232.

New market to feature specialized produce

There's a new business in town—Northwest Produce.

It's located at 117 Antrim Street, at the corner of Antrim and State Streets, and it's being operated by John Murray of Norwood.

Northwest Produce will provide not only the community, but the area, with quality fresh fruits and vegetables and special gourmet items, Murray said of the business. At the present time, the fresh fruits and vegetables are being brought in twice weekly from the Detroit Eastern Market. However, as fruits and vegetables become available locally, these items will be brought in directly from the farm or truck garden for sale at the market, Murray added.

Murray said he would be accepting special orders from area residents and restaurants for fruits and vegetables not grown in Michigan or not available at this time.

At the present time, the market is offering a line of fresh vegetables plus California strawberries, a choice of apples, fresh peaches, pears, a choice of grapes, avocadoes, and other fruits not found in this area at this time. A wide variety of vegetables are also available.

Northwest Produce will be open from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. daily Monday through Saturday, and from 12 noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

Murray is a 1978 graduate of the Charlevoix High School and graduated from Northwestern College in Traverse City. He resides in Norwood with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Murray. He is being assisted in the operation of the market at the present time by his father.

Charlevoix High School senior Joel Schnackenberg, co-valedictorian of the Class of 1981 that graduated Sunday, was presented last week with Michigan State University's most coveted academic award, the Alumni Distinguished Scholarship. On hand for the presentation were his parents, left, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Schnackenberg and Charlevoix Mayor Sam Superman, an MSU alumnus. Based on "superior intellectual performance and potential," the award is worth more than $15,000. Schnackenberg is the only Charlevoix graduate to have ever won the award.

Twelve from city named to assist Plan Comm. with comprehensive plan

The Charlevois City Planning Commission will have some citizen help in putting together its Comprehensive Community and Econognic Development Strategy Plan.

Twelve men and women were recently named to a committee to assist the Planning Commission and its hired professional planner by stating local ideas.

Committee members are Frank Ochs, Jack Urban, Lou Mettler, Randy Carey, Jacquie Merta, Craig Wise, Ed Beutner, George Richardson, Bob Lieberman, Hal Hill, Dave Julliretel, and Tom Carter.

The City recently hired Ronald Nino and Associates of Grand Blanc, professional city planners, to do the research and actual writing of a Comprehensive Plan. The need for such a plan has been expressed many times in conducting City business, especially in connection with applying for federal grants, zoning, and encouraging new businesses.

At its next meeting, the Charlevois City Planning Commission will consider the "Goals and Objectives" portion of the Comprehensive Plan. The meeting will be held June 22 in the Community Room of the Charlevois City Hall.

Present members of the Planning Commission are Dr. David Strawbridge, chairman; June Cross, Barbara Feis, Thomas Duke, Clement F. Olach, Joseph G. Morris, and William Bellows.

Charlevoix physician Dr. Dennis Joy and his wife Karen, above, and three young children embarked Saturday on a dream trip. The Joys set out on their 35-foot sailboat for a 4½ month voyage that will take them eventually to Chesapeake Bay. Joy said that, depending on their rate of progress, the trip may take them as far up the Atlantic Coast as Nova Scotia. They plan to leave the boat at their destination and travel by car back to Charlevoix in mid-October. The Joys were given a send-off party Saturday at the Charlevoix municipal docks

School budget hearing set

The Board of Education of the Charlevoix Public Schools will hold its annual budget hearing on Monday, June 15, at 7:30 p.m. in Charlevoix High School. Copies of the proposed budget are available at the Board of Education office at 208 Clinton St.

Co-op nursery school being organized

by ANNE KELLY

An alternative for parents and their nursery school aged children will be offered this fall by the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix.

The nursery will be cooperative, which means that both teacher and parents participate in the sessions. As such it will be enrolled for membership in the Northern Michigan Council of Cooperative Nurseries (N.M.C.C.N.)

Centering its focus on total development of the young child, the new nursery plans to incorporate principles of Christian training in its program. It hopes to stress the importance of family participation and derive enrichment from the local senior citizenry.

Judy Cockfield, local mother of three boys has been hired as nursery teacher by the organizational group. A graduate of the University of Illinois in elementary education, Judy taught the first grade for two years and Sunday School for 12 years.

For the last eight years in Charlevois, she has been a substitute teacher with the Elementary School in Charlevoix and has volunteered her services as a parent aide for the neglected and abused children through the Department of Social Services.

Eligible for the forthcoming nursery program will be children who are three, four and five years old by Sept. 1. Two year-olds who will be three by Dec. 1 will be considered on a provisional basis in the two day a week and only after consultation with and observation by the teacher.

Classes will be offered in both two and three day week sessions, mornings only. Tuition has been set at $110 per semester for the two day week and $150 per semester for the three day week.

Registration will be held in Fellowship Hall at the First Congregational Church, corner of State and Park Streets on Thursday, June 11, 1981 between 7 and 8 p.m. There will be a $1 registration fee to accompany the registration form.

Those interested may contact Mary Lee Campbell at 547-2478 or Phyliss Hess at 547-4245.

New county planner on the job

Lawrence A. Sullivan, new Charlevois County Planner, assumed his duties on June 1 and attended his first County Planning Commission meeting on June 4.

At a news briefing last week, Sullivan indicated that he is now engaged in preparing a Solid Waste Management Plan for the County as mandated by the State, and soon hopes to meet with township and city Planning Commissions to become acquainted and to offer his assistance in planning matters.

Sullivan will also soon start work on updating the Charlevoix County Comprehensive Plan and will work closely with the new Economic Development Corporation in a campaign to encourage new businesses to locate in Charlevoix County.

Sullivan comes to Charlevois County from the Northwest Regional Planning and Development Commission in Traverse City, where he was engaged in several phases of planning, including Land Use, Coastal Management, Recreation, and Solid Waste Management.

Knight on the Town

A night to remember

by Dave Knight

The annual Charlevoix-to-Boyne City overnight sailboat race was held this past weekend. The following is a log taken on one participating boat which shall, along with the crew, remain nameless.

7:17 p.m. As we pull out of Round Lake berth, skipper asks, "Okay, does everyone know what to do in case a man goes overboard tonight?" In the ensuing silence, I glance back at the receding dock. Already too far to swim.

7:36 p.m. Spinnaker is flown for practice before race start. As previously assigned, my job is packing the spinnaker each time it is brought in. I am told it is much like packing a parachute; if dyne wrong, consequences may be fatal. A twisted spinnaker can cost a race. Crewmember inspects my work. He repacks the spinnaker.

7:57 p.m. Intensity builds as race starting time nears. Skipper is yelling. Foredeck man is yelling. Winches grind and sails billow as boat nears starting line. The complex strategy of a good start tells on skipper's scowling face. A chaotic jibe finds us in perfect position to cross line just as starting gun sounds. We proudly lead the fleet toward the first mark.

8:02 p.m. Word comes from committee boat that we crossed line too early. We circle back to start again as foredeck man is restrained from boarding committee boat with malice. Luckily, start officials are upwind and cannot hear his suggestions to them. We humbly trail the fleet toward the first mark.

8:21 p.m. We round the mark as skipper's family waves from shore. How, he wonders aloud, will he later explain to his young sons why Daddy was behind everyone? Suggestion is made that he tell them we were on our second time around the course while everyone else was still on their first.

9:14 p.m. My first solo packing job on the spinnaker is on the line. It goes up smoothly. For the first time, I notice that it is actually a rather pleasant evening on Lake Charlevoix.

10:48 p.m. As darkness descends, a tragic discovery is made. Bagels, 30 of them, are still ashore having been left in a car trunk in the pre-race excitement. A sullen crew ponders the gruesome prospect of Fiddle Faddle and cream cheese rations the rest of the night.

11:31 p.m. Lights of Boyne City twinkle ahead. We near the last mark before the free-for-all home. We have steadily gained on the fleet and are, for all purposes, definitely still contenders. Wind has diminished and turned what had started as a rambunctious match of speed into a silent duel of wits. As each boat gets its "private air" from an occasional gust, it advances through the fleet like a slot track race horse. Several boats are still in sight, both ahead of and behind us.

12:30 a.m. No boats are in sight, neither ahead nor astern as we set course for home. Lake Charlevoix seems quiet as a desert. Where did everybody go? The competitive edge, razor sharp only minutes before, mellows under a crescent moon. Winch handles are still as popping-beer cans punctuate the night's calm.

2:04 a.m. Digital knotmeter reads 0.03. Foredeck man is asleep below. Crew yawns and congregates near the cooler as skipper rants about raising a lighter sail. "C'mon guys! I know this will work!!" he pleads. I cannot help but wonder what difference a lighter sail will make when there is no wind at all. But what do I know?

2:11 a.m. Lighter sail is up. Knotmeter reads 0.01. We calculate our ETA in Charlevoix as sometime around mid-September.

3:26 a.m. A small motor craft approaches off port beam. Manned by four young males, one young female. Naturally they are curious as to why a boat is sitting in the middle of Lake Charlevoix under full sail in the middle of the night. We are curious as to what one young female is doing on a boat with four young males in the middle of the night. It is obvious from the girl's speech patterns that it has been Miller time for her since much earlier in the evening. As they roar off, I draw comfort in the thought that I know of at least one person who will feel worse than me the next morning.

4:15 a.m. Skipper bounds onto the deck from below after napping and finds the boat pointed toward Boyne City, 180 degrees off course. Crewmen manning the tiller says, "I guess I pushed it the wrong way." Skipper goes back to bed.

5:08 a.m. The eastern horizon is aglow as we approach the finish. No one has waited up to see us ease around the last mark. The only sound is the foredeck man snoring below.

5:41 a.m. Sails are furled, lines wrapped and decks cleared as we nestle up to the dock. Foredeck man is still snoring so we leave him below, secure the hatches and trundle up to the car where a hearty breakfast of 30 stale bagels awaits.

Letters: Sports banquet thanks, election correction

To the Editor

As General Chairman of the Charlevoix All-Sports Banquet Committee, I want to take this opportunity to thank the following people and organizations that helped make our banquet a success: Charlevoix Sports Boosters members, Charlevoix High School personnel, American Legion, Leslie T. Shapton Post, Oleson Food Store and the following 12 members of the sophomore class: Erin Campbell, Linda Joy, Kelly Thompson, Kathy Boal, Kim Curtis, Connie Berths, George Smith, Mark Oostermeyer, Steve Keller, Steve Schmidt, Matt Peterson and Tim Bergmann.

Their cooperation was greatly appreciated.

Wrong seat named

To the Editor:

In the most recent Charlevois Courier there was an article stating that I was applying for election to the City Council representing the Third Ward replacing Shirley Roloff.

That information was in error as I have sought election to the seat vacated by Earl Muma who is running for Mayor.

I might add that both Shirley Roloff and Earl Muma agreed to sign my petition for election indicating at least tacit approval of my candidacy.

Letters: Castle concerts, council meeting

Cooperation is key

To the Editor:

The fact that the first concert (illegal and without permit) went off with "relative calm" is a credit to Marion Township officials and none other. Mr. Reibel's comment about there being more cooperation since the latest lawsuit is very true, and let's see where that cooperation is coming from.

As I read the paper Castle Farms has made a number of adjustments for this first concert. Dennis Porte was hired to be in charge of security, parking and first aid, additional staff was put on for security and traffic control, walkie talkies were added, a loud speaker announcement was made asking for more personal control, if the concerts are to be continued.

Further, that a twenty-five foot high berm and security lights would be added around the stage area. Future improvements were also aluded to. This brings a question to my mind, "Why is all this being done NOW?"

The Castle Farms group claims that if they were closed for the season they would lose hundreds of thousands of dollars and if this is true, how come it took them so long to "cooperate"? Seems to me that if this were voluntary cooperation it would have started long ago and not after another lawsuit. "More cooperation on the highway" may just be due to the smaller crowd and the additional staff of Castle Farms. I should make note here that many of the changes made this year were requested by Sheriff Lasater in his letter to the Marion Township Board.

Now it occurs to me that the lawsuit and the accompanying publicity may have caused the concert attendance to be off by a thousand or two and at ten dollars a ticket that could amount to ten or twenty thousand dollars. When you multiply that by ten or twelve concerts, that's one heap of money. It's probably more money than it would cost Castle Farms to hire those additional security and traffic control people and install those lights, etc.

I believe that complying with the ordinance is in Castle Farms own financial interest, for if it stays in the news, attendance could continue to be smaller.

To sum up I would say that the lawsuit by marion Township was not a waste of taxpayers' money but money well spent as I, for one, believe that this "cooperation", two or three years overdue, would not have come voluntarily.

It makes more financial sense for Castle Farms to comply with the ordinance and in addition they will have safer concerts, Charlevoix County will be safer and everyone will benefit.

We can see the cooperation coming, now let's go "all the way", it makes more sense and it costs less to accede.

Martin Bieganowski
Charlevoix County Commissioner

How about public?

To the Editor:

I wonder how many of the 120 persons attending Monday's (June1) Council meeting now realize how much their opinion is considered by the present City Mayor and Council. Perhaps the Mayor and Council members were afraid they might learn something if people present were allowed to speak before "morale" problems were declared solved.

The way the meeting was shotgunned through did nothing for the "public morale".

Ivan Whitley

Clockwise

Real world not so rosy

by Bob Clack

Another fleet of high school graduates has been launched upon the sea of life amid considerable popping of beer bottle caps and earnest supplications by commencement speakers "to shoulder the burden of a free America and carry it into a glorious future, ever mindful of your magnificent heritage in this land of opportunity."

You've heard the speech a dozen times and so have I. It used to make sense, but I wouldn't want to be the fellow who had to deliver it in the spring of 1981.

How in God's green earth could anyone stand up before this season's freshly scrubbed graduates and yammer so optimistically about a future that has never appeared more bleak or more foreboding?

For example, how do you explain to a fellow just starting out in life that he probably will never be able to own a home in his native land?

The Census Bureau and the Department of Housing and Urban Development announced last week in Washington that the average price of a new home in the land of the free and the home of the brave had reached $84,000. This means that only three percent of all Americans are in a position to own their own homes.

I haven't seen figures for other countries, but that percentage has to be one of the lowest in the world.

Uneducated peasants in the backwaters of Asia undoubtedly stand a better chance of owning "a little place of their own" than their brethren in the United States.

I just don't think I'd have the nerve to stand up before a gymnasium packed with graduates and their parents in the wake of such dreadful news. I'm afraid I'd be stoned.

Or how could a graduation speaker even suggest to any assemblage of high school seniors that the future belongs to those who continue their educations at seats of higher learning?

If you have checked the cost of tuition and room-and-board at your old alma mater recently, you already know they are high enough to bankrupt Peter Pinchbottle — not to mention Joe Sixpack.

Furthermore, the federal government is in the process of tightening up on eligibility for student loans, so I wouldn't advise anyone to bank too heavily on Uncle Sam.

Besides, many parents are beginning to wonder about the wisdom of saddling their youngsters with massive debts to pay for their education — even before they draw their first full-time paycheck.

Is an educational loan really worth the high interest and the incipient ulcers? I doubt it, particularly when the recipient has no guarantee of employment after completing his prescribed course of study.

I believe there are few adults among us who have the nerve to try to pass off yesteryear's platitudes about the future to today's young people.

We are turning them loose in a financial quagmire of skyrocketing inflation, usurious interest rates and massive unemployment that so far have defied all of our time-tested solutions.

I think if I were called upon to address today's graduates I would use only two words:

"I'm sorry."

ON A BRIGHTER note, the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee Friday almost restored my faith in representative government by voting 13 to 4 against President Reagan's nomination of Ernest Lefever as undersecretary of state for human rights.

Lefever, who would like to ignore with "quiet diplomacy" human rights violations committed by our right-wing friends, subsequently withdrew his nomination and the president appears in no hurry to fill the post.

Which is certainly a wise move. It is better to leave such a chair vacant than to put the wrong man in it.

Grandvue Aux. officers slated

The nominating committee of the Grandvue Medical Care Facility Auxiliary, headed by Agnes Darbee, recently presented a slate of officers on which the membership will take action at its June meeting. Nominations will also be accepted from the floor at that time.

The slate includes Lucille Dolwick of Boyne City, president; Joanna Gunn, Charlevois, president-elect; Betty Yenni, Boyne City, vice president; Jean Korthase, East Jordan, recording secretary; Joanne Schenck, East Jordan, corresponding secretary; Phyllis Malpass, East Jordan, treasurer; Edith Chamberlain, Charlevois, aergeant-at-arms; Lola Steinbrecher, Boyne City, historian. Other members of the nominating committee are Pauline Arnott of East Jordan and Leva Cole of Boyne City.

Teresa Noirot, a 1981 graduate of the Charlevois High School, was named the recipient of this year's nursing scholarship offered annually by the Ausiliary. Mrs. Schenck, chairman of the committee, made the announcement at the recent meeting. Other members of the committee were Mrs. Arnott and Mary M. Geiken of Charlevoix.

Richard Tillen, Director of the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services and secretary of the Grandvue Board, presented plans for constructing a fence and planting shrubs from the west door to the service entrance at the Facility, including the gazebo, and also repairing the roof of the gazebo. The auxiliary has been asked to finance the project. The membership voted to earmark the proceeds from the Tag Day sale to the project.

Tag Day in the county has tentatively been scheduled for July 10.

Kay Peck, residential supervisor of the Residential Care unit at the Facility, spoke on her duties in this capacity. She also praised the volunteers and singled out Mrs. Malpass, who shops and does errands for all the persons at the Facility every week. Twice weekly, the patients in the Residential wing attend Senior Citizens dinners at the center in East Jordan and otilize the services offered by the occupational therapy department.

Mrs. Malpass presented a financial report and said that the recent games party and bake sale had netted $168.65.

Mrs. Yenni reported on the recent MAHA meeting held at Aipena.

Local Brownie troop advances to Jr. Scout status in ceremony

A formal ceremony marking the advancement of Brownie Troop 264 to Junior Scouts was held at the Charlevoix Public Library Thursday evening.

Tamara Cosgrove, Kendra Olinger, Sonja Wilhite, Lisa LaFave, Jennifer Frabis, Stacy Russell, Rachel Meyers, Kallie Washburn, Colleen Rosenquist, and Chrissy Dillon were given the traditional Girl Scout wings and hand shake by their leader, Carolyn Olinger, when they flew up to Junior Scouts.

Awards given included Well-Being badge, Puppet badge, and Girl Scout Cookie Sale credits, which they earned during the recent cookie sale.

As part of the entertainment for their parents who attended the bridging ceremony, the troop members, who have been studying the history of Charlevoix, presented a skit that depicted a scene from 1837.

Each member presented a carnation to her mother and gave her father a hug and kiss in appreciation of the help and support they had received from their parents during the year.

Mrs. Olinger was presented with a rose bowl by the troop.

The troop members and their leader also acknowledge the publicity given their troop by the newspapers during the year.

Fascinating Facts About Gold

If the ring or chain you have on is gold, it is probably 10 karat 14 karat or 18 karat but do you know what this means? This is a system used exclusively for jewelry to denote the percent of actual gold content. Twenty four karat is pure gold. Hence 14 karat is 14.24 pure or 58% gold while 10 karat is 42% and 18 karat is 75% gold.

But if 14 karat is only 58% gold, what makes up the other 42%? You might think there are a wide range of things that are mixed in. Actually through the thousands of years that gold has been made into jewelry only four important alloys for gold have been found. These are silver, copper, zinc and nickel.

Despite the use of so few alloys the results are extremely varied. Did you know that there are four colors available in karat golds? Not only is there the yellow and white gold that most everyone is familiar with but there are pink and green golds too! And mixing gold with iron will produce a beautiful purple color. Unfortunately it is so brittle that it can't be used for jewelry.

Not only are many colors available, but the type and mix of alloys and additive agents can produce hard golds and soft golds. "Hard" golds are made where strength and durability is required such as in pins or earring backs. "Soft" golds are needed when workability and flexibility are required such as in handmade hammered finishes and wedding bands.

Jewelry has always been a source of beauty and creativity and many fine jewelry stores specialize in designing and creating beautiful pieces that use all the qualities and colors that are available by mixing different alloys and gold to make karat golds.

One of the many other interesting qualities of one particular karat gold is that when it is allowed to air cool after melting it will be "hard" or rough to work. But that very same karat gold when cooled quickly by quenching in water will become soft or easy to work. Each method and every karat gold has its advantages and purposes in the making of fine jewelry.

Hospital scholarship winners named

Roy Bruneel, Charlevoix Area Hospital Board of Directors member from Boyne City, presents the Charlevoix Area Hospital Scholarship to Dayle Gill, who is holding her daughter, Christy, two, of Boyne City, while Dr. John Lignell has the honor of presenting his daughter, Kristen Lignell, her Peggy Carey Northway Scholarship. The scholarship winners were announced this week, after a competitive selection process, by the Hospital Board of Directors.

Dayle Gill of Boyne City and Kristen Lignell of Charlevoix are the winners of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Scholarship and the Peggy Carey Northway Scholarship, respectively, it was announced this week.

The two scholarships, administered through the Charlevoix Area Hospital, are presented on a competitive basis to area students entering nursing careers.

Mrs. Gill, 25, won the $700 Charlevoix Area Hospital Schoolarship which is supported by the family of the late D. D. Walker of Charlevoix. She is studying at North Central Michigan College in Petoskey, where she will receive her R. N. degree in two years.

Kristen Lignell, 18, who graduated from Charlevoix High School last week, is planning to pursue the same course of study toward a Bachelors of Science in Nursing as did the late Peggy Carey Northway of Charlevoix, in whose name the scholarship is annually given. Miss Lignell will enter the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, this fall. She will receive $300 from her scholarship each year for her four years of study.

Peggy Carey Northway was a nursing student at the University of Michigan when she died of leukemia in 1977.

Miss Lignell, whose father, John Lignell, is a staff physician at Charlevoix Area Hospital, admits she has always been interested in the field of medicine.

Diamondmen drop finale

The conference champion Petoskey Northmen baseball team hung a season-ending loss on the Charlevoix Rayders last Tuesday by a 4-2 score.

Charlevoix thus ended the season with a respectable 22-7 record and even higher hopes for next year.

With only one senior, Mike Zednicek, on this year's squad, Coach Pete Spieles is looking forward to the spring on '82 when, if nothing else, he will have an experieced crew to work with.

In Tuesday's game, Jeff Greene started on the mound for Charlevoix and was relieved in the fourth inning by Kurt Puffpaff who took the loss.

Petoskey scored its four runs on five hits while Charlevoix racked up six hits but could only get two runners across the plate.

Jim Buchanan led the Charlevoix offense with two hits while Ken Speigl, Jon Supernaw, Jon Spieles and Mike Loper each had one apiece.

Two points for tennis team

The Charlevoix - Rayder Tennis Team, one of 19 teams participating in the State meet at Kalamazoo last week, finished the meet with two points, Coach Cricket Uhrick has reported.

University Liggett of Detroit won the meet and repeated as State champions.

Charlevoix's No. 1 and 3 doubles teams accounted for Charlevoix's two points in the meet. The No. 1 doubles team of Peter Dunkelberg and Paul Hoffman, playing super ball that kept them on the court for three hours, according to Coach Uhrick, defeated Williamston 6-0, 6-1 before losing the next two 6-4, 6-3. University Liggett eventually won the match.

The No. 3 duo of Lew Kline and Ingrid Wiemer accounted for the team's second point after defeating Williamston 6-3, 6-3. They then lost to University Liggett, which took the flight.

The singles, Dennis Morgridge, Rick Rajewski, Jeff Morgridge, and Peter Cockfield, lost their first rounds; as did the No. 2 doubles, Kristen Lignell and Patrice Staley.

University Liggett won five of the seven flights.

The team concluded the season with a record of eight wins and two losses in regular season play.

Regional spells defeat for girls

Charlevoix's girls softball team had its season come to an abrupt end Saturday when an opportunistic Breckenridge team won a 4-1 Regional tournament game at Clare.

Freshman pitching ace Rhonda Buchanan struck out ten and issued four walks in a six-hitter but the Rayder's usually potent offense was held to only three hits by winning pitcher Evelyn O'Boyle.

The first run in the game came in the fourth when Teresa Noirot smacked a triple and Melinda Klooster singled her home. Klooster was subsequently thrown out at second.

Charlevoix held it's 1-0 lead going into the seventh when Breckenridge scored on a long ball to left field by the leadoff batter.

The 1-1 deadlock lasted until the 8th inning when Buchanan walked the first batter, an error put two runners on, the third batter sacrificed but the fourth walked to load the bases. Then Carrie Clark hit a double for Breckenridge that brought in three runs and iced the victory.

Holly Taber had the only other hit in the game for Charlevoix.

The Charlevoix Middle School girls track team captured the Petoskey Junior High Invitational title recently edging Grayling by a margin of 140-139. Immediately following the meet, Grayling was declared the winner and was presented with the trophy. However, a check of the results gave Charlevoix the win by a one-point margin. Shown above with their coach are: front row, left to right, Tessa Culver, Cheryl Aull and Michelle Gagnon; second row, Cheryl Hartnett, Kathy Crinnion, Toni Eakes, Brenda Currier, Linda Ciuk, Cathy Shepherd, Heidi Seli and Leslie Miller; in the back row are Coach Henry Wagner, Ann Wagner, Molly Baldus, Jennifer Joy, Maureen Buday, Diaha Loder, Sharon Martin, Kris Austin, Sandy Wenek, Kathy Dohm, Alida Ford and Wendy Olinger. Missing was Missy Sandahl.

The team set six new records during the season: Shot put: Linda Ciuk, 27'11"; 220 dash: Dana Loder, 28.28; 440 dash: Toni Eakes, 1:08.50; 440 relay: Currier, Ford, Wagner, Eakes, 1:59.36; Mile relay: Wanek, Shepherd, Martin, Aull, 4:42.45.

The Charlevoix girls softball team, which finished its season Saturday with a record of 26-2, is shown above with the District trophy won the week before. In the front row, left to right, are Chris Mitchell, Rhonda Buchanan, Teresa Noirot, Brenda Buchanan, Mel Kerridge, Doretta Anderson, Manager Darsi Spencely with the trophy and Colleen LaBlance; in the back row are Shari Jones, Melinda Klooster, Holly Taber, Chris Wojan, Bridget Noirot, Margo Smith and Coach Mary Gengle.

Charlevoix's girls softball team took time out from its tournament schedule to log one more regular season victory at Petoskey last week Tuesday.

The 6-3 win boosted the girls' record to 26-1 for the year.

Rhonda Buchanan pitched a two-hitter for her fifteenth victory of the season, not bad for a freshman. She recorded five strikeouts and eight walks in the game.

Charlevoix strung together seven hits including two doubles by Teresa Noirot, two singles by Colleen LaBlanc and one single each by Rhonda Buchanan, Mel Kerridge and Melinda Klooster.

Yeas: Councilmembers Wood, Muma, Block, Porter, Timms, and Roloff. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Philip Kluczynski of 108 Terrace appeared before Council to protest the height of the Gleason-Tallberg boat storage building on Ferry Avenue. He stated that the building blocks his view of Lake Charlevoix and that the structure approved by the City Planning Commission was only 18 ft. 6 inches high, as opposed to the 24 ft. structure under construction. Mr. Kluczynski further stated that his property would lose value if the structure remains at the present height. He also stated that he had not been notified of the Council meeting when a side yard variance for the structure was approved. The City Manager stated that the building plans had evidently been changed between the time the Planning Commission reviewed the matter and final approval was given by the Council. He also pointed out that a height of 35 ft. was allowable under the present zoning. Robert Cook, another property owner in the area, also objected to the height of the building. The building owners offered to meet with the concerned parties to attempt to reach a compromise on the matter.

The following Resolution was offered and moved for its adoption by Councilman Wood and supported by Councilman Timms.

The City Manager reported on an MPPA meeting he had attended and stated that each City's dues to that organization would be increased to finance a study to compare the cost of the members buying into various power plants.

Proposed 1981-82 school budget termed 'austere'

by FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix Board of Education, at its regular meeting Monday night, approved a tentative budget of $3,641,897 for the 1981-82 school year.

The proposed budget represents a 6.5 percent increase over the 1980-81 budget of $3,405,152 according to Vincent Olach, district business manager.

Anticipated revenue to support the proposed budget will include $3,564,972 in local monies ($3,529,972 in taxes and the remainder from other sources); an estimated $72,249 in categorical aid and $5,187 in federal funds. Categorical aid is earmarked for transportation, vocational education, special education and court-placed children. Federal funds come from re-distribution of vocational education funds.

Olach said the 1981-82 budget could be considered an austerity budget, he went on to say that when the 1980-81 budget was approved, the district anticipated $144,000 in categorical aid. However, until now that amount has been cut back to $36,000 with the possibility that the district might receive another $5,858.

How did the district manage with such a loss of anticipated funds? Explained Olach, "We quit buying. We made only major repairs that had to be made to operate. We saved by converting our buses to propane gas and cut back on monies for teachers to attend conferences. When they did attend, they attended at their own expense."

Olach also called attention to the fact that the cost of living increase was 13.5 percent while the State Equalized valuation of the school district increased 11.8 percent. The loss of state and federal funds has resulted in the school district supporting the major portion of the operation of the schools in the district, he added.

In other action, the board approved the payment of debt retirement obligations which are due July 1. The payments include $120,334 to the National Bank of Detroit on bonds dated July 1, 1968 (K-5 school) and $56,634 to the City National Bank of Detroit on bonds dated April 1, 1959 (high school). Millage is levied annually to meet these obligations.

The board accepted with regret the resignation of Mrs. Geraldine Goss for the purpose of retirement. Mrs. Goss has taught physical education at the K-5 school full time since 1969 and from 1947 to 1969 on a part time basis with the exception of one year when she taught the fourth grade.

Administrative contracts for Gordon W. VanWieren, Vincent Olach, Vane Smith, Dennis VanGuilder, David Smith and Ralph Raymer were extended for one year.

The appointments of Mrs. Jeanne Heininger and Mrs. Florence Wojan to the Public Library Board for terms of three years were approved.

Approval was also given to the recommended adjustment of line items to meet budget needs.

David Anderson, instructor for the building trades classes offered at Charlevoix High School, presented a new format for the class which would result in the construction of a building trades house in three semesters rather than the two semesters now utilized. He said that he felt the new schedule would permit him to do a more comprehensive teaching job with the students. he also said he felt this would allow the students more time for implementing classroom instruction thus resulting in more knowledge of the trade when the course was completed.

Anderson also presented plans for houses that would utilize solar heat. He felt that every effort should be made to introduce this energy conservation method into a house built by the class. It would also expose the students to the theories behind it and how to implement them.

Members of the board asked numerous questions prior to approving his recommendations.

The need for a suitable area in which to teach Middle School band students has been under discussion for some time. At Monday's meeting the board took action on the matter and decided that first hour band students would be taken directly to the high school for class and then bussed back to Middle School while the last hour band class would be taken from the Middle School to the band room prior to leaving school for the day. It was felt that this would be a more effective use of the band room. Steven G. Smith of the Building and Site committee reported on the decision.

A recommendation by the Curriculum Committee regarding new textbooks was approved. The books recommended were for Algebra I and II at the high school level and Middle School science.

Mrs. Christine Bentley, who is in charge of the Title I program, presented a detailed report on the "Learning to Read Better" program introduced in the school system at the elementary level last fall to assist children in overcoming reading difficulties. Mrs. Bentley said that the program was very successful and urged that it be continued.

Mrs. Doris Pearl of the Library Committee reported that efforts to have the statue at the library, which was severely damaged by vandals, repaired were continuing. She also reported that the ramp at the library was receiving some attention in order to make it more usable.

The organizational meeting of the Board of Education for the 1981-82 school year was scheduled for Monday, July 6.

Roof coming down to save lake view

by DAVE KNIGHT

While a controversial boat storage building is getting a new roof design apparently after an amicable agreement between the builders and neighbors, the City Council retraced its steps in the matter and gave approval Monday night to a new site plan for the project.

Gary Gleason and Craig Tallberg have agreed to lower the height of a boat storage building they are constructing on Ferry Ave. which, at the 24-foot height originally planned, would have blocked the view of Lake Charlevoix by several area residents.

Work was reportedly proceeding last week to dismantle portions of the roof that would have blocked the view. Gleason and Tallberg have agreed to redesign the building's roof so that it is no higher than 18 feet, five inches.

When the Planning Commission and council first approved the building's site plan some months ago, it was their understanding that the overall height would be no more than 16 feet and that the building would be no higher than adjacent structures.

The actual design, however, called for a peaked roof reaching 24 feet high thus causing concern among neighboring property owners whose view was endangered by the structure.

With only council member Shirley Roloff dissenting, the council voted 4-1 to accept the new site plan for the building which is to be used strictly for boat storage. It was also reported that Gleason and Tallberg's request for a tax abatement plan had been withdrawn.

Acting as the Board of Appeals, the council heard two variance requests Monday night. They approved one but tabled the second.

William Marme requested that his property at 208 E. Carpenter be split into two lots since there are already two homes built on the property. Council members gave their unanimous approval to his request.

A variance was also sought on behalf of Mrs. Bernie Ward, Sr. for a bathroom addition to her home at 803 Grant St. that would require a setback three and a half feet over the setback limit of the zoning ordinance. It was reported that the City Planning Commission had recommended approval of the variance because Mrs. Ward's age and health made it difficult for her to climb steps to an upstairs bathroom.

Citing at least one letter that had been received in opposition to the variance request from a neighboring property owner, the council tabled the request until more information can be obtained.

Another letter that was discussed Monday night was from Michigan Ave. resident Donald Berlage who expressed concern over the city's marking of a public walkway along his property from Michigan Ave. to the Lake Michigan beach. The City of Charlevoix retains rights to a four-foot right-of-way providing access to the beach at that location and has, in the past, marked the walkway with a sign. The sign has reportedly been removed.

A motion passed without opposition to replace the sign after the council discussed methods to better police the area for litter and debris.

Signs were also the topic of a request by Paul Welke of Welke Aviation to erect a large sign for his business near Highway 31 South and a larger sign on the Welke office building at the airport.

Welke indicated that he would like to put up a 60 square foor sign near the Like fresh produce? Pick your own!

by ANNE KELLY

It's 7:30 one beautiful morning the last week in June in Northern Michigan. The day is still fresh and cool but already the dew is starting to evaporate off the strawberry plant runners. Lazy little daddy long legs stroll around oblivious to the intrusion of my fingers as I reach around a sprig of daisies for the first berry.

The ambitious picker is not afraid of heights.

No matter how long a berry picker has been at it, there's something about popping that first perfect specimen into his mouth that makes it all worthwhile. Maybe it will take two or three hours to get enough for freezing, jam and just plain enjoying by the family for a few days.

Maybe he won't want to look another strawberry in the eye until next June after an afternoon of pulling off stems. But, maybe, as I have, he'll be hooked on the smell of the earth, the stain of the berries, the feel of the morning sun on his back. Maybe he'll be compelled to join the ritualistic "Return to the Patch" again next year. Or be conned into awaiting the ripening of the next fresh fruit basket in hand.

The price of seasonal fruits and vegetables has been as inflationary as any other produce item, if not moreso. Consumers may have little choice when it comes to stocking up on many grocery staples. But the thrifty, creative, crazy-for-freshness homemaker can make the most out of the Michigan growing season and have fun as well.

Just where does a prospective picker go?

Word of mouth recommendations are reliable sources of "where to go" information. Area friends and acquaintencesare usually willing to pass along tips and direct you to the best berry patches and orchards. Unlike mushroomers, who tend to stake a claim on their secret territory, produce pickers are more reasonable. They know there is more where theirs came from. Radio and newspaper advertising is used seasonally by many farms and orchards. "Pick your own" signs are often hung out along the road for summer cruisers. Or you can always ask a produce clerk at your local grocery store where his goodies come from. Maybe his mother has a farm and won't mind your coming out to pick.

The tools of the trade are simple. For cherries and berries, all that is needed are some quart containers, some insect repellent if you're susceptible to mosquitoes and the determination to pick more than you eat. As for later crops like sweet corn, peaches, pears and apples, you may want to bring bags or boxes.

Let's say you are a fresh produce connoisseur who enjoys partaking in the cornucopia without actually engaging in the harvest. You may want to skip the "hands on" experience but still cut the cost by going directly to the supplier.

There are many privately owned stands along the road between Charlevoix and Traverse City which specialize in fresh fruits and vegetables, but be careful. You may end up paying more at these stands than at the supermarket.

There's nothing like getting into the spirit of the season whateve the produce. And picking your own or going directly to the farm assures you the ultimate in freshness and outdoor goodness.

I am convinced, however, that the real motivation for the pick-your-own enthusiast is spiritual. I am absolutely hooked on the serenity of the strawbery patch before 8 a.m., the bliss of plucking juicy raspberries from the bush, the fun of donning burlap-strapped cherry buckets with my kids and disappearing into a cherry tree for a while...chomping on a Macintosh apple just this morning.

For those who live in town, the joy of picking your own can be a taste of the country. And the taste of country berries, cherries and other farm fresh produce right off the vine, bush or tree, is a treat you may want to include in your summer recreation agenda this year.

A melancholy mouse, above, and a fiddle-spoons duet, right, were only two of over 30 acts presented recently at the Elementary School talent show coordinated by Pat Carland and featuring Charlevoix elementary students in a wide range of musical and entertainment acts.

Edward Shanahan, right, the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club's member on the Camp DAggett Board of Trustees, is shown above presenting a check to Tom Caldwell and Carol Madison of the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District. Due to cutbacks in funds for the intermediate district this year, it was feared they would not be able to hold an annual special session at Camp Daggett this summer. Service clubs in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties, however, have pledged enough money to the district, so that the special session can be held June 29 through July 3 this summer.

Dog run faces stiff opposition

By Peg Ohle

Neighbors of the Charlevoix County Animal Shelter next to the Sheriff's building on Grant Street are unhappy about the possibility of an outdoor run being added to the Shelter.

Three neighbors, Mrs. Raymond Sutter, Mrs. Shelby Goss, and Mrs. John Peterson, appeared before the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners last week and presented a petition asking that a run not be permitted. The petition, circulated by Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Kleiber, was signed by over 20 homeowners along Grant, Carpenter, State, and Garfield Streets.

The Charlevoix County Humane Society, which shares operation of the Shelter in connection with the Sheriff's Department, recently requested that the outdoor run be provided to facilitate the cleaning of indoor cages during daytime hours.

Objections to the run centered around increased noise from barking dogs, which was described as "just another nuisance added to the ball games". The area is not far from the city softball fields.

Councilman James Block also reported that he had received 11 calls from area residents objecting to the run.

Both the request from the Humane Society and the petition from the neighbors have been referred to the Sheriff's Committee of the Board of Commissioners.

Youth job program to hire 40

Forty young people in Charlevoix County will have jobs this summer working under a Youth Employment and Training program.

The jobs will be with public and other non-profit agencies such as schools, cities, parks, and hospitals.

The 40 young people have already been advised of their selection and will begin work June 15.

Tim Calloway, who directs the program in Charlevoix, Antrim, and Emmetm Counties, reports that he had twice as many applicants for jobs as there were jobs available.

Those selected are between 16 and 21 years of age and are members of families with minimum incomes. Sixteen and 17-year-olds will work 32 hours a week, while older boys and girls may work 40 hours a week. They will be paid the minimum wage.

Some of the young people are still enrolled in school, some have graduated, and some are dropouts.

"The program is for economically disadvantaged children", Calloway explained. "It gives them a chance to learn good job attitudes as well as make some money. It's also a way for the government to spend some money in our area."

Looking for a name

The Charlevoix Housing Commission is seeking suggestions for a name for the 62-unit Senior Citizens Housing Facility on West Garfield Ave which is nearing completion.

Suggested names may be mailed to the Charlevoix Housing Commission office at City Hall or called in at 547-5461 by July 1.

New summer schedule is on

The First Congregational Church, Charlevoix, will go on a summer schedule of 10 a.m. worship on Sunday mornings, beginning this Sunday, June 21. Also, during the summer, there will not be Sunday School.

On Sunday, June 21, there will be a pot-luck supper at 5:30 p.m. at the church, followed at 6:30 by an illustrated talk by Mrs. Carol Dutcher on her three months as a mission volunteer in India. The public is invited to attend.

Knight on the Town

Comparing notes

by Dave Knight

I imagined I had the following conversation last week with some reporters from Philadelphia, Chicago and Cleveland.

"There will never be another one like him," said the Pennsylvanian, "Frank Rizzo was more than a mayor for Philadelphia. He was like a General Patton. You either feared him or loved him. When he was in office, city hall was run with military discipline and woe be unto the poor soul who stepped out of line. Rizzo got away with a lot while he was in office just because people were somehow amused and actually approving for the most part, of his heavy-handed tactics. What a character!"

The Chicagoan could not keep still at that.

"If we're talking about characters in city hall, I'll stack Jane Byrne up against anyone," he said with conviction, "Not a day goes by that she doesn't say or do something outrageous. But the problem is that the people have become so used to it that any shock value has long since been worn off. Like when she kicked the Tribune's reporter out of his city hall office; nobody got upset because everyone knew she just had a bee in her bonnet that day...and the whole issue would blow over within a week. Sure enough, she got onto something the school board did before the week was over and the guy was back filing stories from his city hall desk in no time."

"And the big move to Cabrini Green," he continued gaining steam, "What a laugher. How long did she last? Two weeks? Boy, did she pull a good one there."

"Before you get going on Jane Byrne," said the Cleveland man, "Don't forget what we went through with Dennis Kucinich. Now there was a guy who, even when he knew he had a tiger by the tail, only held on and swung harder. He was still swinging, in fact, on the way out. People are still shaking their heads at some of his antics. If nothing else, Kucinich probably gave Cleveland more national press than any single issue or person since Jim Brown."

"It must be nice," said the Philadelphian turning to me, "To live in a small town where public officials like the mayor aren't always pulling such crazy stunts."

"That is only if you consider the mayor throwing a juke box into the river an everyday occurence," I said as my colleagues quickly sat up with looks of disbelief on their faces.

"You have got to be kidding," said the Chicagoan.

"Nope," I said, "Just a week ago Sunday, late in the evening, our mayor was in a nice bar and restaurant overlooking the channel that runs through town when the juke box in the place quit working. He and three other guys apparently decided that the thing had swallowed its last Canadian quarter and that it deserved the worst. They muscled it out the door, down to the water's edge and dumped it in. I think the proper terminology is taking the matter in one's own hands."

"Wow," said the Clevelander, "Kucinich got away with some bizarre things but he never got caught doing anything like that. Were charges filed?"

"There are no charges on the books," I said, "The juke box was fetched by a diver a couple days later and his honor has now bought himself a soggy Wurlitzer."

"How can that be?" said the Chicagoan, "Say I went into that place and wheeled the juke box into the drink. I'd still be in front of the judge."

"Me too," I replied.

"How do voters in your town react to something like that?" asked the Philadelphian.

"I don't know for sure," I said, "But I guess we'll find out soon enough."

Clockwise

From another era

by Bob Crick

THERE IS SOMETHING almost 1930-ish about the scene.

The graceful cruise ship lying alongside its newly refurbished pier on Round Lake, just below the Finn Lumber Co. buildings.

The crew in dinner jackets, dark trousers and white shirts bustling about preparing for guests.

Inside the gleaming buffet table ready to be laid. Cocktail glasses sparkling behind the bar.

The combo tuning up on the second deck.

Couples dressed for an evening on the town — or on the lake — filing aboard for an evening supper cruise on the Bay Queen, one of the new additions to the Beaver Island fleet.

The Bay Queen started its summer schedule Friday with luncheon and supper cruises, a Sunday brunch cruise and a Saturday night (11 p.m.) dance cruise.

The Bay Queen is an exciting addition to Charlevoix-the-Beautiful. I wish the Beaver Island Boat Co. well on its latest venture. The cruises add a refreshing dimension to summer life in Charlevoix — one that vanished when the party schooner Keuka sank off Ferry Beach 50 years ago.

THE LOCUSTS ARE in leaf along Bridge Street and they look every bit as attractive as their promoters promised during the bleak days last winter when the city council debated landscaping our main thoroughfare.

Some merchants are concerned that gratings for the sidewalk openings have not as yet been put in place. They fear twisted ankles among pedestrians if the openings are not taken care of before the tourist season starts in earnest. It's too easy not to look where you're stepping on a crowded sidewalk.

THERE APPEARS to be a proliferation of bicycles around town this summer — and not just among the young fry. Many couples well into middle age are out every evening, covering mile after mile on their two-wheelers.

I suppose the high price of gasoline has something to do with the new craze; but that answer is too simple. I think many people are discovering how much fun it is to ride a bike and how much more you can see from a bicycle seat than from behind the wheel of a gas-guzzler.

Furthermore, the new multi-speed bikes are easier to pedal — particularly over hills — than the old one-speed clunkers of yore. Even the North and South Side hills are a snap when you shift into low gear.

Of course, there's exercise as an added benefit. It certainly is more healthful after supper to ride a bike than doze in a chaise lounge.

DOES THE NAME Kathy Fiscus ring a bell?

It probably does if you were around in 1949.

That was the year Kathy Fiscus, 3, fell down a 104-foot well near her home in San Merino, Calif., and the world literally stopped and held its breath while rescue efforts were under way.

For 49 hours, rescue teams dug a parallel well to save the little girl. But when contractor Bill Yancy finally reached her, Kathy was dead — the victim of fright, according to medical authorities.

As I recall, news bulletins about the rescue effort were flashed by radio around the world every few minutes that weekend and an infant television station — KTTV — suspended all other broadcasting to carry on-the-scene reports from San Merino.

Soviet bloc nations condemned the wide press attention as imperialistic ballyhoo over the fate of a single individual.

The case was reminiscent of the death of Alfredo Rampi in an artesian well in Italy on Saturday. Alfredo's plight even brought Italian President Sandro Pertini to the wellhead.

This week little Alfredo is mourned around the world, the Soviet bloc notwithstanding.

highway and a 20 square foot sign on the office. Current sign ordinance restrictions limit a road sign to 36 square feet, however, thus prompting Welke to seek a variance from the Planning Commission and later the council. He said that he will probably put up temporary signs of legal size until the variance request is processed.

In other action, the council:

-Raised the rent paid by Lake Charlevoix Cable TV for use of municipal utility poles from $2 to $3.50 per pole per year. A five-year contract will be signed on that rental basis.

-Tabled action on the changing of insurance carrier from Blue Cross-Blue Shield to National Retirement Insurance Company for the city's group health coverage until city employees meet this week to learn more about the change.

-Authorized an expense of $3,650 to paint the refurbished tank truck being brought into service by the city fire department. The total cost of the project so far stands at $34,321.

-Approved an 8.64 percent raise in salary for the city assessor bringing his annual salary to $9,652.

MR. AND MRS. ARTHUR RANGER

Ward-Ranger

Beth Helen Ward and Arthur Roy Ranger were married at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, June 6 at the bride's family farm outside Big Rapids, Michigan in an intimate surrounding attended only by immediate family. Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Ward of Big Rapids are the parents of the bride and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ranger Sr. of Charlevoix are parents of the groom. The double-ring ceremony was performed by Reverand Robert Girard under an arbor of apple trees.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She wore a long gown of white lace complemented by a halo of daisies in her hair. She carried a bouquet of summer daisies and baby breath with yellow cascading ribbons. Her sister, Kathy Robison wearing an organza print dress with a spray of daisies in her hair, was matron of honor. Mr. Ranger was attended by his brother Robert Ranger. After the ceremony, a family dinner was held for the wedding party. A reception hosted by the bride's parents, followed at 6 o'clock in the Candy Stripe Building at the Fairgrounds. Corinne Ranger, the groom's sister, cut the three-tier wedding cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Ranger will honeymoon in a family cabin on Beaver Island for one week and will return to St. Joseph, Michigan where Mr. Ranger has accepted a position at Whitman & Company, Engineers and Surveyors. Mr. Ranger recently graduated from Ferris State College on May 16 with a Bachelor's Degree in Surveying.

The rehearsal dinner was held at Cabin by the Shore in Big Rapids on Friday evening. The hosts were the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ranger, Sr.

Thornton-Goss

Wanda Thornton became the bride of Brian L. Goss on Saturday afternoon, May 23, in Bowden, Georgia.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Thornton of Bowden. She has most recently been living in Fairbanks, Alaska. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Goss of Charlevoix, and he, too, has been living and working in Fairbanks.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Reverend Monroe Wiggins in the garden of the bride's parents under an arch decorated with magnolia greens and blossoms.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of traditional white satin fashioned with a hoop skirt that featured three tiers of lace ruffles. A scoop neckline bordered with lace and shoulder-strap sleeves tied with ribbons framed the bride's face. Her headpiece was a lace picture hat with a short veil.

The bride carried a bouquet of roses, carnations, and baby's breath on a bridal fan.

Debra VanAllen of Carrollton, Georgia, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor, and Jerallyn Goss of Charlewoix, sister of the bridegroom, was the bridesmaid. They wore gowns of country-flowered sheer cotton, the matron of honor in green and the bridesmaid in yellow. Each carried a rattan fan covered with red roses.

Angie Thornton, niece of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a blue country-flowered dress.

James Sladek of Charlevoix and Alaska served as best man, and Steve Thornton, brother of the bride, was groomsman.

Jim Chase provided traditional wedding music on the guitar and sang "There Is Love".

Following the wedding ceremony, the bride's parents hosted a reception in the garden of their home, assisted by Alice Stash, Dawn Chase, and Wanda Cook. Parents of the bride and bridegroom hosted a cookout the evening before the wedding.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Thornton wore a long gown of orchid qiana, while Mrs. Goss wore a long pale green gown with matching jacket.

Guests from Michigan, Florida, and Alabama attended the wedding. The bride and groom spent a week in Savannah, Georgia before returning to Charlevoix, where Mr. and Mrs. Goss hosted an open house for local friends and relatives. The newlyweds then left for Fairbanks.

The bride is a graduate of Bowden High School, and has been working as a receptionist in Alaska. The bridegroom is a graduate of Charlevoix High School and Westshore College in Ludington. When not in school, he has been working on construction jobs in Alaska.

Little League is off and running this season

by ANNE KELLY

Little League '81 is in full swing, most teams already having worked in four of their 16 games for the season. Running from mid-May through July, Charlevoix's Little League program, which includes senior, major and minor divisions, gets approximately 170 kids ages 8-15 off the streets and onto the ball diamonds.

In July, the senior league will be hosting the District Little League All-Star game.

As the season got rolling, appreciation was expressed to Dick Putman who donates his time and efforts in caring for the grounds and field itself. He was recognized properly and dubbed "Official Head Groundskeeper."

Little League fans will be happy to know that a second set of bleachers has been donated to the W. Carpenter St. field by the Medusa Cement Co. The first set was installed last year.

Hagen-Zaharias golf tourney set

The Antrim Dells Golf and Tennis Club will host the 1981 Walter Hagen-Babe Zaharias Golf Tournaments on August 2, according to the Charlevoix County Unit of the American Cancer Society.

Phil Loomis, Special Events Chairman of the Charlevoix County Unit, says the tournaments will be the first sponsored by the local unit and perhaps the first in the area.

Noting that more information will be publicized in the very near future, Loomis said the entry fee will be $35. He said Lloyd Kirby, one of the club's owners, has "graciously agreed to host the Hagen-Zaharias Tournaments and, in doing so, is allowing golfers to pay no green fees." Golfers will have to pay their own cart rentals if they desire to use one.

Loomis says the tournament will be "Four Man Best Ball". Entrants will be able to play in one of the following categories: Men's Handicap, Men's Scratch, Women's Handicap and Women's Scratch.

Winners in each category will then be able to play in the State Hagen-Zaharias in September at Boyne Highlands. Winners there are then eligible to play in the national finals in Florida.

Loomis, who has been involved in Hagen-Zaharias Tournaments in Cadillac in past years, said none have failed and all participants have had a good time, "knowing their money and time are going for a very good cause--the continuing effort to beat cancer".

The tournaments are named in memory of the two charitable golf professionals, pioneers in their field, who died of cancer.

Hagen became the first PGA professional to earn a $1 million and gave golf the spectator appeal it lacked until he came along. A warmhearted individual, he gave his prizewinning check to his caddie as a tip when he became the first American-born to win the British Open in 1922. His record included five PGA championships, four British Opens and two U.S. Opens.

Zaharias almost singlehandedly changed the face of women's golf with her courage and determination. In 1946-47, she had 15 consecutive victories including the U.S. Amateur Championship. Babe was struck with cancer in 1953 but returned to golf just three months after surgery and won her third U.S. Open title in 1954.

Loomis said, "Everyone regardless of handicap is welcome to enter the Hagen-Zaharias event. The Hagen-Zaharias appeal to the serious golfer as well as the high handicapper. That's why scratch and handicap divisions are available to men and women of any age."

Anyone desiring more information can contact Loomis at 547-4331 days and 347-0114 nights.

Read-A-Thon tally

In this year's MS Read-A-Thon program, 45 students from Charlevoix County participated. These students read a total of 570 books and raised $562.96 for mutiple sclerosis.

Combined with 11,000 other students in Michigan, a total of $170,000 was raised. This money will be used to aid the nearly 12,000 people in Michigan alone who have multiple sclerosis through research and direct patient services.

The Read-A-Thon was started by the National Multiple Sclerosis Society in 1974. Participating students ask friends, relatives and neighbors to pledge a certain amount of money for each book read during a six-week period. Prizes are offered to students as incentives.

Service Changes and New Features for Charlevoix Customers

Beginning Saturday, June 20, 1981, new electronic telephone switching equipment will begin serving customers in the Charlevoix 547 exchange, and will provide the following service changes:

— You'll hear a lower pitched dial tone when you pick up your receiver.

• IMPORTANT •
On local calls you'll need to dial all seven numbers to reach your party. If fewer numbers are dialed, the call won't go through.

— You'll need to call Repair Service for codes to all other parties on your line.

— All one- and two-party lines will hear only one ring.

Two new optional services will become available for a small monthly charge as a result of this change: TOUCH-TONE' calling and CUSTOM CALLING SERVICES.

Touch-Tone calling is the fast, easy way to make a phone call. Instead of dialing you merely tap out the phone number. It's much faster than dialing because you don't have to wait for the dial to return between digits.

Custom Calling Services will be available to one-party customers. It includes the following features:

—Call Waiting
A tone indicates that someone is trying to call you while you are already on the phone. You can hold the first call and answer the second.

—Call Forwarding
This feature permits the transfer of an incoming call to another phone number.

—Three-Way Calling
You can bring a third party into your phone conversation.

—Speed Calling
By dialing a 2- or 3-number dialing code you can reach a frequently called number.

If you have any questions about your phone service or want to order Touch-Tone service or any of the Custom Calling Services, please call your service representative toll free: Residence customers call 1-800-632-9870; Business customers call 1-800-632-7386.

Marion Township issues second denial of concert season permit

by DAVE KNIGHT

Castle Farms' second application for a season's concert permit was denied by the Marion Township board at a June 16 meeting on grounds that provisions set by Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater for his approval in March had still not been met.

The board also mentioned in a letter sent to the Castle Farm Foundation that their certification of insurance indicates a lease agreement with concert promoters Pyramid Productions but that the permit application did not indicate that relationship.

Ticket sales for potentially the two largest concerts of the summer, Ted Nugent oo June 28 and REO Speedwagon on August 22, are under way. Conceding that any attempt to place stronger regulations on these two concerts would be fruitless, since promotion has already begun, the township board exempted the two events from a new initiative to restrict concerts to daylight hours and limit the crowd size to 8,000.

A new list of seven provisions for approval of their permit was sent to

Brinker resigns

Charlevoix City Manager James Brinker submitted his resignation Monday night to the City Council. Brinker tendered the following letter of resignation addressed to "Gentlemen and Mrs. Roloff":

"I have been offered an opportunity to purchase an interest in a business in Charlevoix which my wife Kathy and I feel we cannot pass up and have accepted. We have given this decision careful thought and consideration.

"It was not an easy decision to make to leave the city (as an employee) as I have enjoyed working with the City Council and the city employees the past two and a half years.

"Therefore, I respectfully submit my resignation as city manager of the City of Charlevoix effective August 1. I regret that I am unable to give you more of a notice but it was necessary that I become involved in this business as soon as possible. I would be willing to offer my services on a consulting basis for an additional 30 days to keep the ongoing projects moving, but only with projects and not with the day to day operation.

"I would strongly recommend that the City Council seek out and appoint a young aggressive professional city manager to fill my vacancy. I am a strong believer in the council-manager form of government and with the right person in the manager's position, Charlevoix will progress.

"I wish to thank the City Council for giving me the opportunity to serve as city manager these past two years as I have learned a great deal and hopefully the projects we have undertaken during this period have made Charlevoix a better city."

Queen pageant may be cancelled

There may well be no 1981 Charlevoix Venetian Queen due to lack of interest.

Georgia LaBlance, chairman of the Venetian Queen pageant held in conjunction with the Venetian Festival, said this week that only one entry had been submitted following the passing of last Friday's deadline. That deadline had already been extended from the previous Monday because of the shortage of entries.

"We need at least five girls to hold the pageant," said LaBlance, "And at this point it looks as though we will not have enough."

This year's Venetian Queen would be the 51st to be crowned at the annual festival which is planned for July 23-26.

LaBlance said Monday that the only way to avoid cancelling the pageant would be for at least four more entries to be submitted this week. She said a decision would be make this Friday as to whether the pageant would go on or not.

"It's a shame," she said, "But there is no sense in pushing it if nobody is interested."

Entry applications are available at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

Michigan Am opens this week

Once again the top amateur golfers from across the state are converging on Charlevoix for the 70th annual Michigan Amateur tournament starting this week Tuesday at the Antrim Dells and Belvedere Club Golf Clubs.

Qualifying rounds begin Tuesday morning at the two sites and will continue through Wednesday. On Thursday and Friday, match play for the championship begins at the Belvedere Club. By Saturday morning the field will be narrowed to four and following the morning semi-final round, the two finalists will tee off in the afternoon. Rain delayed rounds will be played on Sunday if neccessary.

The defending champion of the Michigan Am is Steve Madalena of Jackson who beat University of Michigan teammate John Morse 4-1 in championship round last year for the title.

As many as 400 golfers are expected to participate in the tournament which is sponsored by the Golf Association of Michigan and hosted by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

At least four golfers from Charlevoix, Joe Etienne, Sam Supernaw, Pat Paul and Mike Custer, will take a shot at the title.

A mild spring interspersed with warming sunlight and plenty of rain has resulted in excellent playing conditions at both courses. Indications from Belvedere are that the course has never looked better for the spring tourney.

Spectators are invited to take in tournament action. Gallery seats are free.

New program puts those receiving aid to work

BY PEG OHLE

Able-bodied recipients of general assistance from the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services are now being placed in jobs to "work off" their general assistance payments.

The program, called "Work Relief", is part of the Employment Training and Employment Marketing program which has been part of the State Department of Social Services for some time. However, it has not been workable in Charlevoix County until recently because of the lack of transportation facilities.

Since many Social Services clients do not own automobiles and the work sites are scattered throughout the County, there was no way for most of them to get to work until the State approved a four-month pilot program whereby volunteer drivers are paid mileage to transport workers back and forth to their jobs.

Electronic switching ushers Charlevoix telephone system into futuristic era of pushbutton convenience

by DAVE KNIGHT

For most telephone customers in the Charlevoix area, the change made Saturday to a new electronic switching system was no more noticeable than a different dial tone. The step was a significant one, however, in that the equipment now handling Charlevoix phone service paves the way for a pushbutton future in a solid state world.

Switchman Walter Holcomb works on some of the old switching equipment taken out of service Saturday. It will now be recycled for limited use in another area.

Shortly after midnight Friday, a new $2.6 million electronic switching system took over from the now obsolete mechanical system in use here by the Michigan Bell company since 1953.

The new system provides Charlevoix's 3,700 telephone customers with several options including Touch Tone calling and four custom service features. These features are: Call Forwarding, which automatically transfers an incoming call from one telephone to another; Call Waiting, which lets a customer using the phone know that there is a second call waiting to be answered; Speed Calling, which permits a customer to reach frequently called numbers by dialing special codes and Three-Way Calling which enables a caller to add a third party to a conversation.

The installation of Touch Tone service or any of the above custom services involve extra charges. The cost of regular phone service, however, is not affected by the switch to the new electronic system.

Must dial all seven digits now

One thing Charlevoix phone users will not be able to do from now on is reach a local number by dialing only five digits. Previously, the mechanical system "ignored" the first two digits, five-four, and keyed only on the seven thus making it possible to dial 7 and the next four digits.

Now the entire 547 prefix must be used to complete a local call. This is part of a standardization of phone service across the country, according to Michigan Bell officials.

Said Fred Lawrence, Michigan Bell division manager for switching systems, "The phones in Charlevoix are part of the nationwide telephone switching network – the world's largest and most complex machine. To keep a machine of this size functioning efficiently, there has to be standardization of its parts. Seven digit dialing is part of this standardization."

Another difference one and two-party phone customers will notice is that they will hear one long ring instead of two short rings for incoming calls.

Capacity of 50,000 calls an hour

Besides the additional services made available to phone customers, the electronic switching equipment that has now been installed at Michigan Bell's State Street facility is faster, more compact, easier to troubleshoot and provides for virtually unlimited growth in the Charlevoix area.

The new equipment can handle 50,000 calls an hour. It's present capacity of 5,000 customers in Charlevoix can be expanded by another 2,000 with the addition of components taking up no more space than a bedroom closet.

Planning for the change in Charlevoix began about five years ago, according to Lawrence. After initial evaluations of the specific needs and potential for growth in this area, the actual engineering designs were made. By 1979, the paperwork was complete and an order was made to the Western Electric company for the equipment.

Though many of the components of the new equipment are standard, the total system was custom made for Charlevoix by Western Electric, the Bell system's manufacturing and supply arm. The system is solid state and computerized thus it has few moving parts and can be maintained easily. Most of its circuitry is contained on printed boards which eliminate the spaghetti-like masses of wiring characteristic of the old, mechanical

Burglaries continue to plague city

Investigation continued this week into a rash of burglaries that has plagued several Charlevoix businesses over the past three weeks.

The most recent break-in was reported Sunday morning at the law office of Pointner & Pajtas on Petoskey Avenue. Entry was gained through a screen sometime between noon on Saturday and 8:25 a.m. Sunday. Reported missing was a stereo and a small amount of cash.

Police are also still investigating two other break-in burglaries of Wednesday, June 10 at Whitley's Floor Covering at 204 W. Lincoln and the American Legion hall and Monday, June 8 at the Oleson Food Store. About $600 in cash was taken from Whitley's and a public address system from the Legion hall. The Oleson burglary netted about $900.

To date, no arrests have been made but Charlevoix Police Chief Jack Mol said that there are suspects in the cases. Of the cash and items taken, only the American Legion's public address system has been recovered so far.

Mol cautioned business owners to double-check their security to make sure doors and windows are locked after hours. He also said that when a burglary is discovered, it is important to notify his office immediately and not disturb evidence.

"When a cash box is found lying on the floor, the common tendency is to pick it up right away," said Mol, "But it is very important to our investigation to leave everything as it is found and not contaminate the evidence by handling."

County Extension office now has computer hookup

If you have a question, take it to the Charlevoix County Cooperative Extension Service.

Not all questions, of course, but almost any question concerning homes or farms and what makes them run.

The Extension Service has a computer system hooked up to Michigan State University, whereby answers to specific questions and problems can be obtained in a matter of minutes. The system has been operating through a telephone hookup, but soon there will be a computer terminal which will furnish print-outs of answers so they can be kept for reference.

According to Extension Director Ronald Cortright, answers to almost 200 questions are stored in the computer bank and more are being added all the time.

The advantage of a computer hookup is especially evident in situations such as a crop insect infestation, where a delay of only a few hours in applying treatment could result in losing the crop.

The new computer terminal, which will cost approximately $1,500, will be paid for jointly by Michigan State University, the Extension Service, the Soil Conservation Service, the Farm Bureau, and Charlevoix County. At its last meeting, the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners appropriated a sum "not to exceed $400" toward the computer terminal.

The Charlevoix County Cooperative Extension Service is located in Boyne City, phone 582-6232.

Another rush to secure gas and oil drilling rights is on in county

BY PEG OHLE

Charlevoix County is best known as a resort and vacation area, but its small farms and factories add other dimensions to the life of the community.

Now comes still another activity that could change the whole complexion of Charlevoix County in years to come. Oil and gas leases.

For the second time in ten years, there is a flurry of activity among exploration companies to secure drilling rights from one end of the County to the other.

Charlevoix County Registrar of Deeds Stephen Pond reports that the area around Huffman Lake in Hudson Township (eastern Charlevoix County) seems to be especially attractive to leasing companies, although leases have also been signed by property owners in Hayes, Marion, and Norwood Townships in western Charlevoix County. In fact, just last week, a lease covering 3,510 acres on Beaver Island, owned by the Beaver Island Timber Company, was signed.

The leases came in "in batches of one to eight and are for pieces of property of all sizes, even down to one acre", Pond says.

The going rate for oil and gas leases in Charlevoix County is about $10 an acre, according to Pond.

No actual drilling has begun in Charlevoix County as a result of the lease flurry, although Pond says one company has plans to start in Hudson Township next year. There is no accurate count, but it is believed that as many as a dozen small leasing companies have been working in the County. A few of them will eventually do some drilling and others will turn their leases over to larger companies such as Shell Oil Company.

One explanation for the present oil and gas lease activity is that the leases signed ten years ago are expiring and many of the new ones are simply extensions of the old leases. However, another reason must be the demand for domestic oil and gas due to the high price of imported fuel, a demand which has to encourage taking greater financial chances than heretofore.

In one way or another, oil speculation in Charlevoix County goes back as far as the 1930's, but there is no sign anywhere of an oil rig or other oil field paraphernalia.

Maybe this time it will be different. There are those who hope so and those who fear so.

St. Sen. race spurs rumors

by PEG OHLE

The first rumblings of action toward the 1982 primary elections were heard in Charlevoix County last week.

Word went the rounds at the monthly meeting of Charlevoix County Republicans that two county residents were ready to enter the race for the state senate.

Both John Haggard and William Huber were rumored to be considering the race.

Later, Haggard told the Courier that indeed he was "interested in being a candidate" and was "trying to determine his support within the district."

He also said that he would hold off opening his campaign until mid-August or September when he can "get out into the district."

Haggard has a plumbing business in Charlevoix and is serving his third term on the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners representing Charlevoix and Hayes Township.

When queried by the Courier, Huber denied that he is presently a candidate.

"I have no intention at this time of running for office," he said. "But I have not precluded the idea for some time in the future."

Huber is a resident of Hayes Township and has worked four years as a field representative for Congressman Robert Davis starting when Davis held the job of state senator from the district.

Actually the whole matter of Northern Michigan representation in Lansing is up in the air at this time because of the possibility that a new district may be added to the area due to increased population.

It is possible that Charlevoix County would be taken out of the 37th senatorial district and added to another one, so the most any local candidate could say at the present time would be "I want to represent Charlevoix County and all the other counties in the same district as Charlevoix."

The 37th district is currently represented by Mitch Irwin, a Democrat.

Champagne Cruise set for Fourth

The ship, carrying passengers for the 5th Annual Champagne Cruise, will depart at 9 p.m. from the Beaver Island Boat Dock in Charlevoix. The boat will then cruise the north end of Lake Charlevoix to Boyne City where those aboard may view a fantastic fireworks display.

For listening and dancing, there will be a band named "Summer Storm" aboard the ship. This band consists of four musicians and plays contemporary music. Also aboard the ship will be a cash bar.

The motorship will sail regardless of the weather as it has an enclosed area.

Tickets must be purchased in advance. The cost is $8 per person. For more information, or to obtain tickets, contact the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, 408 Bridge St., Charlevoix, 547-2101.

Paget slated for two Sunday sessions

Rev. Jack Paget will speak at the Community Reformed Church on two successive Sunday nights on the topic "Ministering to Those in Need." The first service will be held Sunday evening, June 28 at 7 p.m. and the second will be Sunday, July 5 at 7 p.m.

Rev. Paget, well known speaker in this area, has spoken at Christ's Intersessors Banquet and at Charlevoix Area Women's Day of Renewal. Rev. Larry Grooters, pastor of Community Reformed, said, "So many of our women heard Rev. Paget speaking on the same theme at the Day of Renewal that they wanted their husbands to have the opportunity to hear him also."

Rev. Paget left the parish ministry years ago when he experienced kidney failure. He lost one kidney and subsequently had a transplant. Later he lost a leg and then the other yet, last year, he walked in a Jog-a-long sponsored by Campus Life. He initiated and heads the chaplaincy program at Northern Michigan Hospitals.

Knight on the Town

Familiar setting

by Dave Knight

A thorough review by Bob Clock of the thriller novel "Crooked Tree" appeared on these pages some months ago. For those who have not yet read the book by Robert C. Wilson, a former Northwestern Michigan attorney, the paperback version has been released and provides very entertaining reading for the beach or porch swing.

It is a gripping and often gruesome tale, the moral of which is don't mess with Mother Nature. Wilson follows a Arthur Hailey type format of constant action skipping from scene to scene, from character to character. For the lunch hour reader, it is an easy plot of which to keep track day to day.

"Crooked Tree" piqued the particular interest of local attorney John Michael.

In reading the description of the town Wilson names Wabanakisi, where much of the major action takes place in the book, Michael was convinced that Wilson was actually describing Charlevoix.

Indeed, it was hard not to get that impression. Wilson is quite explicit in his description of a town located in the ring finger area of the Michigan mitt and on an isthmus between Lake Michigan and a smaller inland lake. He describes very accurately the drawbridge, even to the metal grating which gives him the image of a screen when raised, and the residential neighborhoods.

Michael was certain that Wabanakisi was Charlevoix but he wanted to confirm it so he went right to the source and wrote Wilson. He recefilly received the following reply:

Dear Mr. Michael:

Thank you for your letter and I'm glad you enjoyed my novel "Crooked Tree."

The geographic layout of Wabanakisi was indeed based on Charlevoix, a city I've been in love with for many years. The buildings, however, were either from my imagination or were borrowed from other cities I am familiar with. The Salling, Hanson Building you will find in Grayling, where my great grandfather Nels Michelson had an office on the second floor up a side staircase. (The actual building is brick, not wood, a detail I changed based on Espern Hanson's "Rasmus" son-house. He's the one who personally selected the finest, and knotless, boards to be used in construction.)

So Michael was right about the setting but he had one other question. The protagonist of the novel is a character named Axel Michelson and is an attorney with an office in Wabanakisi-Charlevoix. Michael couldn't help but wonder if Wilson had had him in mind when he created this character. Wrote Wilson:

My grandfather, Axel Michelson, died when my mother was a young girl. Though I never met him, I chose his name for my main character simply because it had an interesting sound to it and it was the requisite Danish.

So even though Michael is not in the book, at least we now know for sure that Charlevoix is. Wilson continues:

One of the best things about the whole "Crooked Tree" experience for me has been the favorable reaction of fellow Michiganders to it. With the paperback version being released now and with its wider distribution, I'm especially sensitive to the comments of those close to the actual area where the story is set, and of course to my fellow attorneys' views. In light of that, I appreciate your interest and your taking the time to write.

Word has it that a screenplay of "Crooked Tree" is in the works. Given the current popularity in the film industry of the thriller genre, the movie could be a real winner for a major studio.

When the time comes to shoot it, what better location than in the town for which it was written? How about some more letters to the powers that be, including Governor Milliken who seems to be very anxious to sell Hollywood on Michigan filming sites, suggesting Charlevoix as the logical setting?

Seems to me that a producer would be hard pressed to find another community anywhere quite like ours.

Work Relief program instituted

Now, between 60 and 75 County residents who find themselves in need of help from Social Services' general assistance program are working to pay back whatever assistance they receive.

They are paid the minimum salary of $3.35 an hour and work as many hours as needed each month to cover their assistance checks. Since the average general assistance check is $174 a month, the average participant works approximately 50 hours a month.

The work sites set up by the Department of Social Services are all either public agencies or non-profit private agencies. At the present time, they include Charlevoix Township, Charlevoix County Senior Centers in East Jordan and Boyne City, Leader Dogs for the Blind in Boyne City, the Charlevoix County Humane Society in Charlevoix, the East Jordan Fire Department, and the Charlevoix County Building.

Social Services clients working at these sites are doing many different kinds of work – clerical, janitorial, custodial, maintenance, gardening, meal preparation.

Oscar Stroud, supervisor of Charlevoix Township, is happy with the work program. He has had as many as six men at a time working in the township athletic fields and park areas. They have been mowing and trimming grass, setting fence, raking newly-turned sod, painting fire hydrants, and doing many other maintenance-type chores.

"About 50 percent of them are pretty good workers – I don't have to follow them around," Stroud says. The whole program is excellent because it separates people who want to work from those who are just leaches."

And that is what the program is doing – giving those able-bodied persons who want to, a chance to work, and taking from the general assistance rolls those able-bodied persons who can, but won't, work.

This fact is stressed by David Straubel, who is in charge of the program for Social Services. "If they don't want to work, they don't get help," he says.

Through the program, Social Services hopes to close between nine and 21 general assistance cases this summer. This should be accomplished, according to Straubel, by making it possible for recipients to get out into areas where there are private industry jobs, teaching them good work habits, and, last but not least, "losing" those who are able to work but don't want to.

If only nine cases are closed, the savings over a four-month period will be approximately $6,200. If 21 cases are closed, the savings will be over $14,400.

Social Services has all the work sites it needs at the present time, but is looking forward to enlarging the program later in the year. One possibility is working with the Commission on Aging to provide help for those who need maintenance work done on their yards and homes. A program of addressing the needs of senior citizens in this manner would be unique in the State of Michigan.

New telephone system switching equipment.

It even monitors itself constantly and will alert telephone company personnel automatically if it detects a problem.

Lawrence estimated that electronic switching is being installed in about one telephone exchange every working day across the country.

Electronic switching, said Lawrence, opens the door to endless possibilities of future phone use. Some uses he mentioned that may come by the year 2000 include shopping, voting, filling out income tax forms and even cooking dinner by phone.

Castle Farms permit denied

Castle Farms. Some were the same as those first set on March 18 by Lasater such as limiting crowd size, fencing in all parking areas and stationing uniformed guards in the parking lots.

New restrictions called for include allowing concerts only between the daylight hours of 12 noon to 8 p.m. and establishing a "mini-substation" for the Sheriff's Department on concert grounds from which at least two officers would patrol on concert days.

Though the township ordinance calls for one lavatory for every 200 people and one drinking fountain for every 500, the board relaxed those requirements for Castle Farms. The board asked for only eight lavatories on the concert grounds, six in the parking lot across the street and four in the lot adjacent to the grounds. They also asked for a total of four drinking fountains.

The call for daytime concerts elicited objection from representatives of Pyramid Productions who attended the meeting and said that it would be difficult to book acts for daytime concerts because of the tight schedule most big acts are on and the time needed to set up equipment. They also indicated that many working people would not be able to attend concerts held during the day.

The refusal of the Marion board to approve the concert permit was the second time Castle Farms has been turned down, the last being in May. Attorney Norman Robiner, who is representing the board in the matter, is seeking a court date in the Michigan Appeals Court to contest the denial of an injunction issued by Judge Martin Breighner before the Memorial Day concert.

At its June 16 meeting, the board authorized payment of a $2,000 retainer and $3,496 to Robiner plus $1,200 in legal fees to Township Attorney Stephen Graham.

Waste disposal: problem without a solution

by Bob Clock

I read about how dreadful chemicals are seeping out of landfills and contaminating water in neighboring wells and I wonder if we'll ever find a final solution to our waste disposal problems.

Then I remember waste disposal problems of yore — and see how far we have come — and I feel a little better about it.

It probably won't come as a surprise to young people, but few of us aside from professionals gave a second thought to waste disposal a generation ago. Of course, we didn't have deadly chemicals lurking in the worn out motors of our discarded refrigerators and washing machines. And we didn't use lethal chemicals to clean our clothes, kill garden pests or insulate our homes.

But we polluted with an abandon that was magnificent to behold.

Although Detroit had regular trash and garbage pickkups when I was a kid, we also used our coal furnace as an incinerator for all kinds of household garbage, from pork chop bones to melon rind. What we didn't burn at home was shipped downtown to huge burners near the riverfront — an area reserved for such unsavory activities in olden days.

The pollution from the city incinerator plus tens of thousands of home chimneys was sometimes horrendous.

Pollution from our sewage systems was even worse. Someone had the bright idea that a swiftly moving river or stream "purified" itself every mile.

So cities like Detroit, with millions of inhabitants, emptied their raw sewage into the closest waterway and let nature take its course.

Only the burden was too great for most rivers and in time many of them became so polluted they would support only the lowest species of animal life and were unfit for swimming or other forms of recreation. If downriver communities tapped the Detroit River for drinking water, it had a funny taste. And little wonder.

However, most of these problems have been taken care of. The switch away from coal heat also eliminated most of the smoky household incinerators. And tough state and federal laws have mandated a clean-up of our lakes and rivers that has been truly remarkable.

The problem now is one of sheer waste — billions of tons of it — and no small part of it is deadly, dangerous or indestructible. Chemicals with alphabet names show up in unexpected places — and most of them cause cancer in rats.

Fortunately, state health officials and the Department of Natural Resources are on top of the problem. They may not have the anwers yet — but they have identified areas of concern and that is half the battle.

Considering how far we have come, one more scouring of the environment should be duck soup.

Great Lakes Whitefish and Chips is newest downtown eatery

by FRAN MARTIN

Great Lakes Whitefish and Chips has opened for the season at 411 Bridge St. in downtown Charlevoix.

As the name implies, the newest short order restaurant in town is featuring whitefish from Lake Michigan as well as the less known but even tastier walleye.

The generous portion of whitefish or walleye is served with tartar sauce, french fries and cole slaw.

While whitefish and chips is our most popular choice, we realize that not everyone enjoys fish so we have included a wide variety of other foods, some of which include a combination such as the fish and chips and other sandwiches such as the grilled variety," said Terry Left and Jom Crothers who own and operate the shop. Paiil Warner is in charge of the dining room and assists elsewhere in the business. Left, who is the chef, said, "We prepare all our own meats and we feature only quality Vienna products."

Also included on the menu are the "Challenger", a super-special combination of any three meats plus cheese on a 12-inch roll which takes its name from the ship that calls Charlevoix its home port. For lovers of chowder, they offer a Great Lakes fish chowder.

"Old timers recall the days when the Charlevoix harbor was home to a fleet of 25 or more fish tugs which departed the harbor every morning before daybreak to lift their nets and return to port, loaded to the gunwales, with lake trout and whitefish. We want our place to reflect those days and to have our patrons enjoy what was once a part of Charlevoix," said Left.

In addition to the Great Lakes whitefish or walleye and chips and the other tasty offerings, the restaurant is prepared to offer a full catering service. "We can offer anything from hors d'eouvres to a formal dinner in your home or, if you choose, grilled hotdogs in the backyard or a box lunch to take on a fishing trip or picnic," he said.

Both young men who have returned to Charlevoix to operate Great Lakes Whitefish and Chips are well versed in food preparation.

Left, who is in charge of food preparation, was trained at the Culinary Institute of America in Hyde Park, N.Y. and had had two years study at a graduate school at Florida International University in restaurant management. For the past five seasons, he has been employed as one of several chefs at a Miami hotel which is one the 12 five-star restaurants listed in the Mobil Guide. "I served as awing chef, taking each chef's place on his day off. In this way, I have had experience in every phase of food preparation from soup to dessert. When we were closing for the winter season, the bead chef informed me that I had made 22,000 dessert souffles during the season," he said.

Prior to attending culinary school, he was employed in local restaurants as a high school student here Left said, listing the Grey Gables, Weathervane and Leutheuer's as the places. Since completing chef's school he was at Duffy's of Charlevoix for three seasons. "It was may early experience at restaurants here that first aroused my interest in food preparation," he added.

Crothers, who calls Hastings his hometown, comes from a restaurant family. "I started at the bottom...you know, washing dishes and cleaning up," he said.

He first came to Charlevoix in 1970 and after several jobs went into food preparation. He and Terry first joined forces when they were employed at a summer restaurant here several years ago. Since then, he, like Terry, has been involved with seasonal restaurants here and in Florida.

Since deciding to open Great Lakes Fish and Chips, they have redecorated both the interior and exterior. The restaurant now has natural cedar walls, a new ceiling, ceiling fans and red carpeting plus attractive furnishings. The exterior has been painted.

The restaurant opens at 11:30 a.m. in time for the lunch crowd and, for the present, will stay open until 10:30 p.m. "until we can determine what the need is. We've made no firm decision on hours at this time. If we're needed, we'll be here," was the final word.

Quilt has local motif

A quilt depicting 13 familiar Charlevoix scenes in applique and quilting with the alternating 13 plain-color blocks quilted in miniature lighthouses has been completed by the Charlevoix Area Garden Club. Designed by Mrs. David Fowler, Mrs. Gordon Rower, Mrs. Paul Santek and Mrs. Jackson Beatty, the entire club membership joined in the project from the cutting of the blocks to the final quilting process.

Mrs. Charles Bleba is arranging for the display of the quilt and the drawing to be held during the Waterfront Art Fair on Aug. 8.

Funds derived from the project will support the club's many community projects which include the Memorial Garden at Mercer Blvd. and Dixon; the planter at the Post Office, the island at Petoskey and Michigan, the Pere Charlevoix Park overlooking Lake Michigan at West Dixon Ave. and lesser projects.

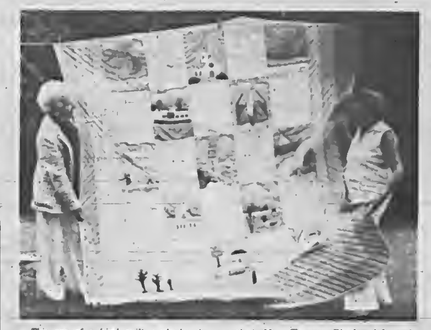
At the recent meeting of the club Mrs. Homer Brady was elected president for the 1981-82 club year to succeed Mrs. Fowler; Mrs. J.O. Crawford, first vice president; Mrs. Joseph Morris, Jr., second vice president; Mrs. Douglas Christiansen, recording secretary; Mrs. Jackson Beatty, correapooding secretary and Mrs. Richard Wakulat, treasurer.

As part of the meeting held at the home of Mrs. Frank Webb, the members visited the Rowe flower and vegetable garden on Park Ave. and the garden at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph McRae which has a "before and after" theme and features a raised garden, stone walks, trees, a pool and a fountain.

Mrs. Webb with Mrs. Anthony Stabnick as co-hostess received and served the 27 members and guests following the business session.

Recently club members visited the Grass Bay Conservancy Area located in Cheboygan County on Lake Huron. The local club participated in the purchase of the property by the Michigan Federation of Garden Clubs. Dr. Mayhand, naturalist and guide for the tour, was loformative about the property at which 25 kinds of wild flowers were confirmed by Mrs. Webb.

Mrs. Brady will host the July 14 meeting at her North Point home at 1 p.m. Mrs. McRae will be the co-hostess. Prior to the meeting, the membership will visit the rose garden at the Henry Felix residence at North Point.



This one of a kind quilt made by the Charlevoix Area Garden Club as a fund raising project is now on display at Sears in downtown Charlevoix. Shown above are two of the many members who worked on the project, Mrs. Clarence Ringler, left, and Mrs. Douglas Christianson. The quilt is large enough to serve as a spread on a queen size bed and as a coverlet on a king size bed.

Americans are Kicking up their heels for comfort.

By Mary Lee Huber

Walking barefoot through the sand or on a carpet of freshly mown grass are two of the "little joys" of summertime. But when it comes time to abandon the carefree feeling of our barefoot demeanor, Americans clad their feet in shoes and boots to the tune of $17 billion a year.

For young and old the footed fashions for the past decade have been the soft lightweight styles that are both comfortable and wonders of wonders -- good for our feet.

For the moment "footnotes" are continuing to be a classy casual "Leisure life-style and Country Club Casual." A continental look that ranges from moccasins, that are now available in pastels for women as well as the rustic browns for men, women and children, to boat shoes available in several styles and name brands.

All the foot doctors applaud what they see as a trend toward bigger, more flexible, less confining shoes. Starting this list is the running or jogging shoe followed by boat moccasins. They cradle your feet rather than contain them.

These shoes combine lightweight and flexibility with good toe and heel support. Not a "closet shoe" as Randy Carey of Carey's Boot Shop in Charlevoix stated, "but a shoe that will be worn again and again."

Yet when the weather is fickle as it has been in Northern Michigan the past few weeks the fashions seen on the street reflect a mixed bag. Because chilly winds and rain provide the basis for a strong pant look, pumps and rain boots are most prominent.

Pants are slim or slightly baggy and for that basic reason the pump has returned with heels under an inch and a quarter. Flats too are strong and are cleverly restyled with straps, buttons and bows, with options of monogramming or metallics running through.

The note that is being played right now is metallic. While bronzes are still the strongest all metals, gold, silver, pewter and bronze are appearing laced through the dressier shoes. What's particularly interesting is that metallic shoes are worn by all ages. You're just as apt to see a young girl wearing a tan leather and bronze shoe as you are to see a little old lady trotting around in gold pumps during the day.

Men's dress shoes are dead...at least here in the North Country. Men are after the dress casual and buy casuals in color to go with or match their three piece suits.

Teenagers are after a name brand...be it Nike or Dexter. They want what every other teenager has or wants...fashion. (See story page 8)

The cowboy boot for men, women and children is still strong, with appliqued leather, fringing, boot height and several colors to choose from. The Winter Trend .... high cut boots that are water proof or water resistant and above all, comfortable.

In all price ranges, Americans seem to be choosing more expensive shoes for quality and comfort and classics they know will be in style for awhile. Prices are still important but when a working man or woman is out to buy shoes, money is no object, again it's quality and comfort they're after...for that they're willing to pay.

On The Bay View Country Club Western Dinner Dance

By Mary Lee Huber

If you enjoy Bar-B-Q Chicken, Spare Ribs, Cottage Fries, Baked Beans and good 'ole American Apple Pie along with, polkas, waltzes and lots of good friends. You would have enjoyed the Bay View Country Club Western Dinner Dance held Saturday evening June 12 at the club house.

At 5 p.m. earlier that day a membership golf tournament was to be held. But like all outdoor events lately it was cancelled due to rain. Not to be defeated prizes were awarded by Master of Ceremonies, Mr. Jack Phillips to members of the club for their "imaginary" golf scores.

The Red Heart Band from Petoskey supplied the hoe-down music while club members from Harbor Springs, Petoskey, Charlevoix, Bay View and guests from out of town kicked up their western boots to the beat of the music.

Next month ... A Hawaiian Dinner Dance.

Let it not be said that rain prevents the master of ceremonies Jack Phillips and his helper Louise Wright from presenting golf prizes; even though the tournament was not held. Yes ... they had a marvelous time. (More photos on pages 2, 3, and 7.)

Americans Are Embracing The Spirit of Wine

By Gerri Ann Santek

Since the days of ancient Rome, man has been taking pleasure from wine. It is subtle and romantic. It lifts the spirits, soothes the palate, and warms the heart. Wine is the panacea for a hectic day, a complement to a fine meal, and a ritual bespeaking the finer things in life. It creates a mood and sets a pace.

Wine can also conjure up anxiety like nothing else imaginable. Who among us has never stumbled over the pronunciation of Pouilly-Fuisse or searched a label in vain for one small word written in a familiar language, or been patronized by a snooty wine steward who assures that our choice is a naughty little Bordeaux, saucy, mischievous, yet with an air of innocence.

The appreciation of wine is a learned response, an acquired taste that more and more Americans are beginning to embrace. No surprise then, that as our appreciation and enjoyment of wine grows, American vintners are gaining a reputation (and awards) for their domestic wines.

Virtually every dining establishment in the area offers wine, from the California jug varieties to the finest samplings from France, Germany, and Italy.

Located near the village of Ellsworth, the diminutive Rowe Inn has quietly and assuredly been building a reputation for exceptional European cuisine. The four course meals found at the Rowe Inn are unlike anything

From vines to the bottle a series of wine making steps are needed that take several months, even years before the wine is palatable.

The Pleasures of That Magic Grape else available in the area, and because fine food deserves a fine wine, the restaurant features 75 different vintages.

"We generally put out a new wine list every spring and we try to get a representative sampling of all wines," says Harlan "Pete" Peterson, general manager of the Rowe Inn. Although the bulk of their wine is priced between ten and twenty dollars, (with some as low as six dollars) you'll also find wine with a price tag to rival your monthly car payment.

For the ultimate wine experience, the Rowe Inn offers a 1971 German dessert wine called Durbacher Schloss Staufenberg Trockenbeerenauslese. That last word, (don't even try to pronounce it) means "best quality" and insures that the grapes were individually chosen from the vine when they were almost like raisins and therefore at their sweetest. This delightful wine is one hundred and ten dollars. For a half-bottle.

The Rowe Inn has wine for every taste and every price range and its carefully chosen to enhance their special cuisine.

Stafford's Pier, the gracious and picturesque eatery on the waterfront at Harbor Springs offers forty varieties of wine. "By far our most popular wine is the house chablis," says general manager Dudley Marvin, attesting to the popular seafood entrees offered at the Pier. In bottled wines Marvin mentions the German whites, with Piesporter Michelsberg leading the list in popularity.

The Pier also offers Le Blanc Travers, its own label produced by Chateau Grand Travers Limited, a blend of local Chardonay grapes and California French Columbard grapes.

To explain Americans' growing love affair with the grape Marvin adds, "People are beginning to recognize the value in wine and are paying more attention to diet and nutrition. Wine is certainly a more nutritious beverage than, say, a bourbon and water."

As wine grows in popularity, a number of do-it-yourself afficiandos are enjoying wine making as a hobby. "There really is an art to it," says Bill Huber, local winemaker with five years of experience. At home wine-making is a labor of love. It is an exacting, time consuming science, based on the fundamentals of chemistry. And all along, you thought it was just a bunch of well-endowed peasant women slogging through a vat of grapes in their bare feet.

Bill and his wife, Mary Lee, make grape wines and "common" wines, or wines made from something other than grapes. They use raspberrys, pears, plums, apples, and cherrys. Because the fruit grows on their land, a bottle of wine costs the Hubers between fifty and seventy-five cents. "Buying the sugar is the biggest expense," says Huber.

While the actual wine-making is a series of steps that takes several months before it is ready to bottle, the secret to successful winemaking is the hydrometer, a measuring device with a double scale to record specific gravity, or the amount of natural sugar in the fruit, and potential alcohol content.

The thirty-five gallons of wine that are fermenting at the Huber's will yield 175 bottles which should age at least one year.

Not a hobby for the impatient, wine-making is a satisfying but not-to-be hurried project whose rewards greatly outweigh the disadvantages.

The enthusiasm with which American's have embraced the ritual of wine gives no indication of slowing down.

On the contrary, our enjoyment will only increase as our knowledge broadens, and whether we enjoy a great wine, or merely a good one, nothing can diminish the pleasure of the magical grape.

Towels and Sheets A Fashion Item

Can towels and sheets be a fashion item? You'd better believe it! New towel colors & sheet prints are created with a tremendously competitive flair and in a shroud of secrecy. Two times a year the major mills reveal their new offerings to the bed, bath & linen buyers. The latest show in June introduced new solid colors & prints in towels and sheets that will appear this fall. The trends that were seen expressed the ideals from French & Italian designers. The prints were fine & small with soft feminine tones. The new colors were blends of peaches & pinks that combine as lovely corals and also romantic shades of lavender and blue.

One of the most appealing new entries in bed linens, which is already on the market, is the addition of trapunto or quilted hems on flat sheets & pillow cases. These hems give the sheets an added dimension in styling and substance. They can add a tailored look as in some new martex sheet prints, or a soft look with wamsutta solid tone sheets.

In towels, martex still has the corner on the colorful 100% cotton market. Looped terry towels are still the favorite for absorbency. The new colors featured this summer are coral, jade green, taupe & deep-violet. These new shades are subtle romantic tones & coordinate with the new martex sheet prints & some wamsutta prints.

What's In A Name?
(A Lot of Money, That's What!)

By ANNE KELLY

You know when a generation is beginning to gap when you go shopping with your ten year old daughter and come back feeling like somebody's mother. Suddenly you realize what this whole mother-daughter competition thing boils down to -- high finance. It's a matter of who will get the $29.00 jeans, you or your little girl. For years you've followed the tradition of purchasing her cheap tennies at the beginning of the summer season and yourself, a reasonably nice pair of sandals. Tables turned, sorry, Mom. Now she "has to have" Topsiders and you find yourself thumbing through the sale catalogue for a bargain for your own feet. Until you can share the same size, there's bound to be tension in the air. And her feet still look so little!

Amy is almost eleven. That's like pushing 15 in my day as it turns out. By my day, I refer to those years wherein if you didn't wear socks with your penny loafers, you would have been strange. In the 60's, the twenty-year revival syndrome being in evidence, there were crew neck sweaters, Oxford cloth shirts and even sport shirts with embroidered emblems to covet. I can remember the compulsion to be "in" wearing Spalding saddle shoes, bobby socks and trench coats.

But that was high school, not fifth grade. It appears that kids' fashion consciousness has matured at an alarming rate. I'm pretty sure that at ten, I believed that only gypsies, Latins or street walkers pierced their ears. Our babysitter has three holes in her lobes and thinks nothing of it.

Not wanting to be a frumpy, bogus parent, I find myself being fairly compromising. But I don't think I'm "preppie" which is a definite minus point among the pre teen set. For this I need green Dickies and a pink I-Zod shirt. Even Cheryl Tiegs would do, which makes me feel good because we all know that she's not all that young either. But who wants C.T.'s all over anything. And I've got to be honest. I'd have a hard time filling out her name on those bathing suits.

As Amy would say, "You've got to be " with it, Mom." This I have come to realize means that you have to have an alligator on your chest, Ducks on your feet, and Calvin Klein waving goodbye from your right hip pocket as you hop on your 10-speed and buzz off to get your crew neck sweater monogrammed.

"Whatever happened to homemade dresses?" I wonder as I watch Amy lust after $30.00 blazers and pleated skirts to mix or match. "How about clogs?" I suggest as she slips on a pair of $27.00 Nike running shoes.

"This is pathetic," I remember commenting to my husband one day. "Do you realize how much money we could be making if we had only bought stock in an alligator applique company instead of investing in laser beams?"

I'm considering going into the French braiding business before bus time next year to make ends meet. And as for polka dots and moonbeams, I'm not even sure they'll be wearing them at the Middle School dances this fall. If they are, you can be sure of one thing. They'll be expensive.

Sew What?

By Anne Kelly

The rating of my expertise as a seamstress would probably be "6" on a scale of 1-10. I have been working at sewing ever since the day Charlene Stunger and I made our first wrap-around skirts in high school. The skirt was made out of medium green denim. I never bound the seams so they traveled after the first washing and got progressively lumpy after that. Charlene did a better job on the seams but forgot to make the hole in the waistband for the tie to go through. It always looked as if it was riding.

Another memorable attempt came in college when I whipped up one of those "Sew tonight-wear tomorrow" jumpers. It was that attempt that taught me about corduroy having nap. The left front of that jumper ran up, the right front piece down.

Salvation was finally attained through Sister Brigetta of the Department of Home Economics. In my fourth year of college my program finally allowed an elective and I elected to sew with Sister Brigetta. This dear, elderly lady was so thrilled to have a senior taking a freshman beginning sewing course that she practically tutored me in my ineptitude. When it came time for the spring fashion show and it looked like I might not make it down the ramp, it was Sister Brigetta who hemmed me up so that I could model the sleeveless, collarless, but two-piece, navy sheath outfit. It was perhaps my most glorious hour as a seamstress.

Then the children became inspiration to get back to the machine. The layette was a disasterous use of blue flowered flannel. The kimonos never seemed to cover the babies properly. However the ensemble worked well for doll clothes later on. There were a few basic "Easy-to-Sew" patterns which could be varied and improvised beyond belief. I needed only to change the material to protect my integrity. Little overalls, little jumpers, little bubble suits, once and only once--bermuda shorts for my husband, fly front et al, one bathing suit that didn't stretch when sewn, and a father-son robe combination with a slightly imperfect plaid match.

The "6" rating was awarded on the basis of effort and making the most out of mistakes all the way through a slip cover for a living room chair. The "4" missing points are explained by the tragic flaws which have become my trademark over the years.

Talent in sewing is like talent in any other area. You are either gifted or you bumble your way through and settle for the less than perfect. This is not to say that the novice or mediocre seamstress derives any less enjoyment out of his/her hobby than the expert seamstress. Perhaps just a little less satisfaction when wearing or viewing the final product.

According to Kay Chase of Charlevoix Creations, one of the two main distributors of sewing materials and supplies in town, there is plenty of sewing going on. "People who sew," she has noticed, "fall into one of two categories: 1) those who sew for themselves and their families and 2) those who are into sewing novelties and craft items. Quilting is the hottest hobby on the market right now," she added. "I noticed that materials ranged from ready made squares and pre-quilted fabrics to everything needed for the most serious quilting enthusiast. Kay has also noticed a trend of young people learning to sew and to choose their own patterns and fabrics.

The "economical appeal alone is an invitation to get back behind your machine. I happened to run into Willie Holmes at Ben Franklin recently. A local designer and dressmaker, Willie has had one showing of his creations this past March and is aiming at another this fall at The Weathervane.

"Fabric shops often engage in price wars to attract customers, so the buyer is in a good position to get a bargain," he noted. "It's the details and trims that are costly."

Never-the-less, both shops agreed that in making your own clothes, you are placing the emphasis on economy, quality and individuality.

Whether you rate yourself as a "10" or a "6" (or worse) seamstress, chances are that sewing can be an enjoyable and satisfying experience.

But if you get frustrated just filling the bobbin and cry when your needle breaks in the middle of a waistband seam--better give Willie or one of the other local dressmakers a call.

Embroidery specialists contribute to the co-ordinate look.

They show off their creative talent by embroidering towels with replicas of prints used in bedspreads & blanket covers. They also have their own embroideries which combine as a totally embroidered bed & bath look.

One very tailored co-ordinate look that Gattles' is offering this year uses solid color towels, curtains & bedspreads and trimming them with bands of solid color chintz fabrics. This addition of trim chintz makes an ensemble that is very custom in looks, but not so custom in price.

The embellished treatments offered by the better manufacturers are still applied by professional embroideries & seamstresses whose talent is becoming increasingly rare. This rarity is not offered by the department stores where only the big mill looks are available.

Gattles' selection represents the best such work rooms in the business. Their ability to do any custom embroidery work to co-ordinate an ensemble for bed & bath makes them one of the finest specialty shops in the country.

IN TRAVEL
BAYSIDE TRAVEL

The American dollar is not only alive and well, but also very strong in most of Europe. This somewhat surprising, but good news comes at a time when we all know that inflation has been hard on our dollar at home and abroad in recent years.

We at Bayside Travel want to advise our friends in travel about the good news, and introduce an excellent buy for your strong American dollar--a new travel program within the magnificent British Isles. It's titled the Rail Drive Package.

Brit Rail and Godfrey Davis--Britain's largest car rental company--have combined to offer you a very comprehensive package.

The Brit Rail system has been acclaimed by travelers in Britain as the most economical and comfortable means of getting from one region to another. However, the independent traveler has often desired to travel out of the big cities and into the countryside. This could be to the beautiful West Coast of Scotland, the Wuthering Heights of the Yorkshire Moors and Dales, or perhaps the picturesque Cotswalds leading to Stratford-on-Avon and Shakespeare Country.

This option is now available and sensibly priced by the Rail Drive Package. This is a package that offers you the opportunity to reach inaccessible areas as well as the more popular ones. It gives you total independence in the most practical way--practical in the sense of strong U.S. dollars as well as in the rate per person. A seven-day Brit Rail pass and four-day car rental is as low as $142.00. This rate is per person for two in a car, inclusive of a Brit Rail pass for each person, valid for Economy Class rail travel. The rental car model for the $142.00 rate would be a Ford Fiesta 1100L, or similar model. Additional passengers and children aged 5 through 13 pay only the regular fares for a Brit Rail pass.

Cars can be collected at any of 200 Godfrey Davis rental offices, including branches at 73 rail stations and all main airports. Cars can be dropped off at any other Godfrey Davis office without additional charge.

The magnificent Brit Rail pass service which includes ferry travel and additional discount packages for hotels and museum and special attraction admissions, is most comprehensive. This type of nationwide service opens up the beckoning British Isles to all our friends in travel and their strong U.S. dollars!

Bill McDonald had his hands full.

Runner-up Jim Gittleman congratulates McDonald.

McDonald is first champion-medalist of Mich. Am. since '66

by DAVE KNIGHT

In the end, maturity and consistency won out over youth and power as two 37-year olds battled in the finals of the Michigan Amateur golf tournament held Saturday afternoon at the Belvedere Golf Club.

Wayne State faculty member Bill McDonald came away with the championship honors beating Jim Gittleman of West Bloomfield 4-3 in the final round.

McDonald also accomplished something that no one has been able to do since 1966. He not only won the match play segment of the tournament but also took medalist honors for the qualifying rounds.

This year's tournament was the first in recent years not to be dominated by collegiate players. To reach the finals, Gittleman downed Eastern Michigan University's Jake Pilat 2-1 while McDonald beat Greg Alksnis of Grand Rapids 3-2.

Those making it to the quarter finals included Pete Owens of Livonia, John Trivison of West Bloomfield, Dan Roberts of Ypsilanti and Mark Hendrickson of Grand Blanc.

Michigan Am defending champion Steve Maddalena was eliminated in the second round of match play by Pilat 1-up.

Saturday's finals, played under near perfect conditions at the well-groomed Belvedere course, saw McDonald's methodical, relentless style of placement before power triumph over Gittleman's ability to hit the ball a ton.

McDonald played the steady game that had won him medalist honors earlier in the week and waited for Gittleman to make the mistakes, which he did.

After the two exchanged birdies on the first and second holes, McDonald first and then Gittleman, McDonald's 20-foot birdie putt on number three put him ahead for good.

McDonald went on to win the sixth and the eighth but just when he seemed on the verge to ice the championship, Gittleman wowed a large clubhouse gallery crowd on the ninth with a ten-footer for a birdie that brought him back to within two strokes.

On the back nine, Gittleman was plagued by Belvedere's expansive sand traps hitting approach shots twice into bunkers on the 14th and 15th holes.

McDonald's par on the 15th wrapped up the title for the former National Publinx Champion (1964) who has played the Michigan Am nine times but has never before made it to the finals. McDonald is originally from Topeka but moved to Michigan in 1968.

Saturday's final was attended by one of the larger galleries in recent years, numbering up to about 200 at times.

Gittleman sinks a crucial putt on the ninth.

A few words from the champion.

Chx. Township to start on new township hall

by FRAN MARTIN

Plans for a new Charlevoix Township Hall advanced last week at the township's annual meeting held Saturday.

A sum of $30,000 was designated to be placed in a sinking fund established two years ago for the new building. The fund had already totalled $20,000 and now has enough on hand to proceed with construction, according to township clerk JoAnne Elzinga.

The planned building will be 50 feet by 70 feet in size and will be located at Waller and Old Orchard Roads at the site of the township recreational complex and north side fire truck garage. Plans for the new township hall are being drawn by architect Louis Orlowski, a Charlevoix township resident.

Plans call for construction of the foundation, floor and septic system to be installed this fall with the rest of the building erected in the spring of 1982.

At the annual meeting, attended by only eight people in addition to the board of trustees, the township approved a proposed general fund budget of $225,528.

Of the total $111,126 was set aside for capitol improvements. This includes $39,637 for the recently completed tennus courts, $12,000 for the parking lot; $29,489 to the water fund to underwrite the cost of a new well on the north side of the township and the $30,000 for the new township hall.

A total of $43,000 has been appropriated for highways and streets including $18,000 to hard-surface a spur of Waller Road near Mt. McSauba and Old Orchard Road and $25,000 for widening Mercer Blvd. and adding another coat of blacktop.

Another $71,402 was set aside to underwrite the operation of the township. This includes the township's fire department, ambulance, recreation, grounds and equipment, utilities, salaries and related expenses.

Supporting the budget is $152,566 in anticipated revenue from taxes and other sources; $63,472 on hand and $9,490 from Federal Revenue Sharing.

At the hearing regarding the Federal Revenue Sharing Funds, it was decided to set the anticipated $9,496 aside for the new well.

Queen contest back on track

Charlevoix will have a 51st Venetian Queen after all following at least four last minute entries received last week.

The Queen pageant was threatened with cancellation at one point when, even after a deadline extension, only one entry had been submitted.

Pageant chairman Georgia LaBlance said this week, however, that plans for the Queen contest, held traditionally on the Thursday before the Venetian Festival weekend, are now proceeding smoothly.

The full slate of contestants for the Venetian Queen pageant will be featured next week in the Courier.

Dinner cruise to benefit trees

A special dinner cruise on the Bay Queen has been scheduled for Friday, July 10 for the dual purpose of introducing the boat to local residents and raising money for the downtown tree project.

Sponsored by the Merchants Division of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, the cruise will leave the dock just north of the drawbridge at 6 p.m. and return at 11 p.m.

Tickets for the benefit cruise are $30 per person and include the boat fare, dinner and dancing to the Dan McCormick Band on board the Bay Queen. A cash bar will be provided. The cost of the tickets is tax deductible; all proceeds of the event will go toward the tree project which is nearing completion.

While the trees themselves are all paid for and planted, additional funding is needed for the grates to be placed at the base of the trees. The grates are currently being manufactured at the East Jordan Iron Works and are expected to be delivered early in July.

Tickets for the benefit can be obtained at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce office, Mettlers, Charlee's and the Wharfside Market. Those wishing more information are asked to call 547-9953.

'Name the Photo' contest debuts

A new summer addition to the Courier, featuring a creative contest with valuable prizes, makes its debut this week.

"Shorelines", a weekly special supplement to the Courier for the summer months, will provide our readers with more of what makes our area and unique. It will feature in-depth articles about the people, events and environment of the Charlevoix area.

To stimulate interest in the new section, the Courier introduces a new contest in this week's "Shorelines" in which readers can become writers by composing a clever caption for a photo.

for details of the contest, see pages 6 and 7 in "Shorelines".

'Racquet for the Arts' to benefit Arts Center

The second annual "Racquet for the Arts", a mixed doubles tennis tournament benefiting the Virginia McCune Community Arts Center, will be held July 11 and 12.

Preliminary matches will be played at various locations throughout Charlevoix and Emmet Counties on Saturday, July 11 with the finals held Sunday at the Little Traverse Racquet Club.

The tournament is open to anyone 16 years and older and will be broken into class divisions "A", "B" and "C". This year an open division is being added for tennis professionals and ranked amateurs.

A luncheon at Loeb Farm will be provided by Charlevoix Court Hostesses for Charlevoix entrants following Saturday's round of play.

A cocktail party for all tournament participants capped by a presentation of awards to winners in each division will follow the finals matches Sunday.

The 1980 "Racquet for the Arts" netted over $3,000 to benefit the new Community Arts Center which was dedicated in May. This year's tournament may be entered by calling the Crooked Tree Arts Council at 347-4337 by July 5.

Outdoor summer jobs at Whiting Park provided for area youth

Whiting Park, which is operated by Charlevoix County, is the site of an outdoor summer employment project funded by the Charlevoix-Emmet County Youth Activities Program and the Youth Employment and Training Program.

Connie Phillips, left, and Lois Hodgson of Charlevoix will perform at the antique show as the "Dimpled Darlings of the Pine River Saloon".

Young people working in the park will be responsible for clearing and filling the picnic area, assembling tables and grills, clearing and filling the parking area and drive, grooming the exercise trail, making and installing necessary apparatus on the trail, and grooming the beach area.

The program will serve a two-fold purpose, according to Mike Davis, director of the Youth Activities Program. First, it will improve the recreation facilities of Whiting Park by expanding the useful areas, and second, it will provide meaningful summer-long employment for several young people in Charlevoix County.

Most of the young people working in Whiting Park have been involved with the Charlevoix County Juvenile Court, the Charlevoix County Youth Diversionary Program, or the Charlevoix County Child Welfare Unit, although some others have been employed.

Philo Sumner, park manager, is overseeing the young workers.

Antique Club to sponsor review with local talent

A nostalgic trip into the past will be provided on July 9 and 10 by the Petoskey Antiques Club.

The club is sponsoring a show called "A Time To Remember" at the Virginia M. McCune Arts Center in Petoskey at 8 p.m. on those dates. The show will consist of tableaus featuring the fashions and activities of the area during the last 100 years.

Among the subjects to be covered are "Lumbering in the North Country", "Composers of the Area", "Adventures of Hemingway and Other Authors of the Area", "Land of the Ojibways" (with native Americans dancing in costume), "A Christening", "School Days", "Graduation", "A Double Wedding", "A Golden Wedding", "The Mourners", and "Early Winter Carnivals". Following the tableaus there will be a parade of fashions.

Also featured in the program will be "The Dimpled Darlings of the Pine River Saloon", a group of Charlevoix dancers dressed as flappers of the 1920's.

Florentine Baril of Bay Shore is general chairman of the show and will be assisted by several members of the Antiques Club. Ross Stoakes of Petoskey is the director.

All proceeds from "A Time To Remember" will go to the Virginia M. McCune Arts Center. Tickets are $5 for adults and $4 for senior citizens and children. Patron tickets at $10 are also available. Tickets may be obtained from the Apple Tree in Charlevoix, Kaden's in Boyne City, and the McCune Arts Center in Petoskey.

Investment materials donated to library

For those who need help investing their money, who wonder which stocks and bonds are doing the best and who would like a weekly update on the investments they have already made, the Charlevoix Public Library has an ideal new feature.

Tom Bickersteth, a local investment counselor for Financial Strategies Corporation, is donating the Standard & Poor's investment package to the library. The package consists of:

- "The Outlook" (52 issues), a weekly advisory publication that gives explicit investment policy plus commentary on current stock market trends; recommendations are made for a variety of investment objectives.

REAL ESTATE IS A PEOPLE BUSINESS... and SKI & SHORE WANTS YOU TO KNOW IT'S PEOPLE

Having lived on Beaver Island for eleven years, Laurie McGlocklin is certainly well qualified to be the latest addition to the Ski & Shore sales staff on the island. Laurie became interested in the real estate field last year just out of her own curiosity and ended up getting her license in March. An opening at the Ski & Shore Beaver Island office was conveniently timed to allow her to join the firm immediately after she passed the licensing exam. Laurie is originally from Detroit and has most recently worked for her parents, Lil and Bob McGlocklin, who own and operate the Circle M Supper Club on Beaver Island. She is a 1974 graduate of Beaver Island School and has raised horses as a business and hobby in recent years. Laurie will specialize in all types of real estate out of the Beaver Island office.

Knight on the Town
It can be done

by Dave Knight

Sunday night's appearance by Ted Nugent at Castle Farms, though somewhat of a puzzlement in terms of crowd size, did provide further evidence that well-run concerts, of a moderate size, can indeed fit into the... scheme of things in Charlevoix.

Promoters had expected a turnout of up to 15,000. The last time there were that many people at the Castle, for Bob Seger last summer, it got pretty hairy.

Ted Nugent is easily in the same class as Seger; both are Michigan natives who have established national reputations in the recording field. It would seem natural to expect the same response to a Nugent concert as for Bob Seger.

But for some reason, the expected throngs did not materialize. Crowd estimates ranged around 5,000 to 8,000. The gloomy weather may have had something to do with it though it did not actually rain until only a short time before the concert and then, the rain was not much.

I don't think that can account for 10,000 people not showing up.

Maybe Nugent is just riding a bad streak. His concert last week in Marquette was cancelled after a phony bomb threat was called in. At this rate, he'll hardly be able to pay for the gas to cart his band around in their ultra-fancy motor home.

Whatever the reason for the smallish crowd, it showed for the second time this year that concerts of that size can be handled with relatively few threats to the public safety.

There were still some tickets written but the total was substantially less than on previous occasions. Traffic moved smoothly Sunday evening with no back-ups in town. One might have even forgotten there was a concert.

Thus the recommendations of Sheriff George Lasater and subsequently the Marion Township board to limit concert crowds begin to make more sense.

There are, to be sure, many who will not be satisfied until there are no more concerts, period. But in all their discussions this past spring, the township board and the concerned citizens who got involved stressed that this was not their aim.

Their aim was to make the concerts safe and I think Sunday's was a good example of a safe concert.

Clockwise
Vacation notes

Did you know that Michigan's sand dunes are among the newest geological formations in the world? They started shoving their broad shoulders and bald pates along the eastern shore of Lake Michigan a mere 3,000 years ago.

The pyramids in Egypt are much older. The pyramid of Cheops, for example, was built about 4,500 years ago — during an era when the level of Lake Michigan was at least 25 feet higher than it is today. It wasn't until the water level dropped that conditions were ripe for dune formation.

These are some of the things I learned last week on a visit to the P.J. Hoffmaster State Park, located astride high dunes on the Muskegon-Ottawa county line.

In addition to the ubiquitous campgrounds, Hoffmaster State Park has a permanent nature study center under the shadow of a towering dune where you can learn how dunes are formed, the kinds of vegetation that survive in dune country and how the plant life changes the farther you get from the water. There also are mounted specimens of the wild creatures that inhabit the dunes.

Slides and movies filmed in the dunes in all seasons are shown at regular intervals in a small theater on the premises.

Two trails depart from the nature center, each shored up with timbers and equipped with handrails, wooden walkways and staircases where necessary to protect the delicate dunescape — which can be altered by as much as a single footprint.

One trail leads to a beautifully wild section of Lake Michigan beach; the other soars 190 feet above the lake to an observation platform.

A visit to the Hoffmaster State Park is a breath-taking experience. If you have any breath left when you reach the top of Mount Cardiac — as it has been dubbed by winded visitors — you will probably want to use it oh'ing and ah'ing over the view.

AFTER SPENDING the better part of a week poking around Michigan and Ontario, I have come to the conclusion that there certainly can be few more pleasant places in the world for a summer vacation.

Our itinerary took us from Charlevoix to the Straits, across Big Mac, and through the eastern Upper Peninsula to Sault Ste. Marie; then east along the North Channel of Lake Huron and Georgian Bay to Espanola; then south across the high, rocky southern lip of the Canadian Shield to Manitoulin Island.

The drive from Little Current, the principal city on the island, to the ferry landing at South Baymouth, is truly spectacular, with every turn unveiling gull's-eye views of Georgian Bay dotted with tiny wilderness islands on the east and the picturesque farms and rail fences of Manitoulin on the west.

If you're lucky you'll have to wait a couple of hours for the ferry to Tobermony and the Bruce Peninsula — giving you time to investigate the quaint little village of South Baymouth, ransack the souvenir shops and stoke up on butter tarts at the aromatic dockside restaurant.

The gigantic car ferry Chi-cheemaun, operated by the Ontario Department of Transport, is one of the wonders of the northern Great lakes. It will carry more than 100 cars and in excess of 600 passengers. It makes four round-trips daily South Baymouth and Tobermory, 40 miles distant, during the height of the tourist season.

Aboard you'll find attractive passenger lounges, a combination newsstand and gift shop, and a well-appointed cafeteria serving snacks and multi-course dinners. The kids tell me there is also a taproom aboard, but I was too busy admiring the scenery to look for it.

Want a job? Go to Houston!

by Peg Ohle

Just looking at the possibilities could send the average working man or woman into orbit!

Forty-eight (count them) pages of "Help Wanted" ads in the Sunday edition of the Houston (Texas) Post, which now may be read at the Charlevoix Public Library.

And the jobs are all neatly categorized so you don't have to waste precious time reading columns of job opportunities in fields in which you have no interest.

There's something for everybody: Professional, engineering and technical, offshore personnel, electronic data processing, administrative and financial, merchandising and advertising, sales, insurance, office clerical, industrial, crafts and trades, beauty and barber shop help, cleaners and launderers, restaurants and clubs, theatrical, institutional, medical, general, security help, domestic — take your choice.

Engineers apparently really have it made in Houston. Consider the fringe benefits of these jobs for engineers: Life-dental insurance, company paid health-thrift program, stock ownership plan, tuition re-imbursement program, relocation plan (purchase of home equity for cash, moving household goods, and mortgage interest subsidy).

If you're just beginning an accounting career and have a yen to travel, how about this job: Requires one or two years of experience with ability to advance to supervisory position. Willing to accept a foreign assignment in near future.

What if you want to work only a few hours a day? The First City Bank has several jobs, including part-time paying and receiving clerks to work from 10:30 a.m. to 2 p.m.

If you're a top-notch secretary, you might like to be a "President's Person" — to work with "a dynamic yet demanding chief executive". Need excellent skills. "$2,00 a month, maybe more".

For those seeking their first job, the Bellaire General Hospital has several "Beginner positions for new high school graduates" — file clerks, collectors, PBX operators, receptionists, insurance billers, admitting clerks.

Teachers might like to: "Make this the most profitable summer you've ever had" by working for Olster Temporary Services.

Want to work just weekends? One hospital needs several RN's and LPN's for Saturday and Sunday work.

Or are you an early morning person? You could earn $300 to $500 a month delivering the Morning Post from sunup to mid-morning.

The real estate business is obviously booming in Houston. You could be a salesman with a company that averaged $951,00 a day in sales during May. The company employs "200 sales associates and eight corporate relocation specialists". It has "863 incoming clients from major corporations, with 570 still needing to purchase before school starts".

It all sounds great, doesn't it?

And some of it is, according to Kathy Cornell, Courier advertising representative, who lived in Houston for a year, from June, 1979 to June, 1980.

Kathy went to Houston with a friend following graduation from Michigan State University with a degree in advertising and after working for a year in Lansing in the offices of Ingham County.

She had no prior job contacts in Houston and got her first job through an employment agency — working as a "Kelly Girl". For the uninated, Kelly Girls are temporary employees who go from business to business filling in at whatever jobs need doing on a given day. One of the places where Kathy worked was the Motorola Company, and after a while they offered her a full-time job.

Kathy earned $5.50 an hour working in the accounting department of Motorola, and at the same time she worked evenings at a dinner theater as a cocktail waitress. The latter job brought in another $70 an evening. Kathy particularly remembers New Year's Eve, when she took home $150 in cash on top of her regular payroll check.

Kathy shared a two bedroom, two bath apartment in a nice part of town with her friend. They paid $370 a month rent.

"I like Houston," Kathy says. "It is a nice place to live and shop and eat, and there are many cultural advantages. It's easy to get around and the weather is nice in the winter. It's green and lush and only 45 minutes from the Gulf. However, it's too hot for me in the summer. The city is clean but there is smog."

Kathy came back to her home in Boyne City for two reasons: She couldn't get the kind of job she wanted in advertising, and the smog made her allergies worse.

However, Kathy has not ruled out the possibility of going back to Houston, especially since the advertising manager of the Houston Chronicle told her to "get a couple of years advertising experience and come back."

Uhricks to feature fresh produce at new stand

by FRAN MARTIN

Uhrick's Produce, the community's newest market, has opened for business at U.S. 31 North and Mercer Blvd. opposite the Municipal Golf Course.

The market will feature a full line of fruits and vegetables and, when possible, will offer home grown products according to Dawn Nickel who is managing the market. Ms. Nickel said she has worked with produce for seven years at a family-operated market and as head of a produce department in Southern Michigan.

The market offers a full line of fresh fruits...everything from cantaloupe and watermelon to peaches, nectarines, plums apples, bananas, grapefruit, lemon, limes, pineapple and other fruits as they come in season. At the present time, the market offers home-grown strawberries by the box or by the case for home canning or freezing.

The same is true of vegetables. "We will be receiving all our produce from an area truck farm as soon as it becomes available," Ms. Nickel said. Meanwhile, the market will offer a full line of fresh vegetables which have been obtained through Martin's Market in Petoskey and Handen's in Traverse City.

The market will also offer a selection of cold cuts, bread and popcorn.

Beginning July 1, the market will be open from 9 a.m. until 7 p.m. weekdays and from 12 noon to 4 p.m. on Sunday.

Jim Uhrick displays some of the produce available at his new stand on the north side.

Gengle - Lieberman

Mary Patricia Gengle and Kirk Robert Lieberman were married on Saturday afternoon, June 20, at St. Francis Xavier Church in Petoskey.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony F. Gengle of Petoskey, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Lieberman of Charlevoix.

The rites were performed by Father Cronan Murphy, O.F.M., assisted by Father Nicholas Meyer, O.F.M. before an altar decorated with bouquets of white gladioli and yellow and pale blue chrysanthemums. Father Murphy is an uncle of the bride.

Approximately 350 guests watched as the bride and her attendants walked down the aisle past pews decorated with white satin bows. Mr. Gengle gave his daughter in marriage. Her gown, which was created by the bridegroom's mother, was fashioned with the bodice and full-length sleeves of Chantilly lace accented with tiny seed pearls and tear-drop neckline. The skirt was of white taffeta with an overlay of bridal mist ending in a Chapel-length train of Chantilly lace and tiny seed pearls. The bride carried a bouquet of silk yellow and white roses, blue forget-me-nots, and baby's breath.

Becky Gengle served her sister as maid of honor, and Jennifer Gunderson, Tara Conti, and Kit Lieberman, sister of the bridegroom, all of Petoskey, were the bridesmaids.

They wore floor-length gows of pale blue woven polyester organza with off-the-shoulder necklines and full bustled skirts, with picture hats to match. They carried arrangements of silk long-stammed roses and forget-me-nots.

Julie Gengle and Jennifer Kulik, godchildren of the bride, were flower girls. Their gowns were of floor-length pale blue organza, and they wore yellow ribbons with yellow and pale blue silk forget-me-nots in their hair. They also carried small white baskets of yellow and pale blue silk forget-me-nots.

Kraag Lieberman of Vicksburg served his brother as best man. The rehearsal dinner was held at Vic's in Petoskey, hosted by the bridegroom's parents.

Wiser - Spurgeon

Janice Wiser of Charlevoix became the bride of Joseph Spurgeon of Petoskey on Saturday evening, June 20, at Greensky Hill Methodist Church in Charlevoix.

The bride is the daughter of Dewey A. Bruce, Sr. of Charlevoix and the late Mrs. Bruce, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. P. Pontazopolus of Traverse City.

Sixty guests witnessed the double-ring ceremony performed by the Reverend David Yingling.

For the occasion, the church altar was decorated with a trinity candle, daisies, baby's breath, and ferns. A trinity candle lighting ceremony reading was offered by Beth Marchetti.

The bride was given in marriage by her son, Jason Wiser. She wore a floor-length ivory-colored gown with empire waist, accordion pleated skirt, and an attached lace overlay that draped the back of the gown. A hat with attached veil completed the costume. The bride's bouquet consisted of daisies and roses with baby's breath and ferns.

Traditional wedding music was provided by Fran Tollas at the organ. Trina Wiser, daughter of the bride, sang "You Light Up My Life", "The Lord's Prayer", and "We've Only Just Begun".

Deborah McGee of Charlevoix served the bride as maid of honor, and Myra Miller was bridesmaid. They wore matching sundresses of peach and orange rosebud print dotted Swiss accented with white lace shawls. Each carried two orange roses with baby's breath and streamer ribbons.

The bridegroom's mother wore a floor-length nylon gown with an overlay of turquoise and blue print flowers.

Paul Skeel of Charlevoix served as best man; Glen Peterson of Petoskey served as groomsman; and Tim Bruce of Charlevoix, brother of the bride, was the usher.

A reception at the Charlevoix V.F.W. Hall followed the wedding ceremony. Nancy Powell cut and served the wedding cake, and the other food was prepared and served by Connie Krebbs, assisted by Frieda Malison. Three nieces of the bride – Tori Bruce, Beth Armstrong, and Chrissy Rydell – greeted guests and took care of the guest book.

Following a wedding trip downstate, the newlyweds are at home in Charlevoix.

Guests from several Michigan cities attended the ceremony.

Rasch, first Top O' Mi. employee, retires

On July 2, 1981, Top O' Michigan Rural Electric Company will celebrate the retirement of its first regular employee, Eric H. Rasch. Rasch went to work for the electric co-op in July, 1939, 42 years ago.

Before coming to Top O' Michigan, Eric worked for Monroe Electric who did the initial construction of the system. Eric helped set the first pole in September, 1938 located near the dam on the Boyne River east of Boyne City.

Says Rasch, "I've done just about everything there is to do in this company, from cutting grass and washing trucks to new service construction." He was also on stand-by service crews for outages and emergencies in the Boyne City area for 28 years. "We didn't have a Journeyman's program in those days," he went on, "it was an on-the-job, learn by doing method."

Moving to the Boyne City area from Chicago at age five, Eric has seen a lot of change in the area as well as in the co-op. He and his wife Virginia plan to stay at their home on Boyne City Road; however, they have some travel plans to visit friends in New York State, Iowa and Chicago this fall and Florida this winter.

Long time co-workers Clyde Wuerth and Jerry Mapes expressed happiness for Rasch and his retirement while reminiscing about working with him over the years. Top O'Michigan's general manager, Thomas Hanna, said, "His dedication and conscientious service to his job and this company for 42 years is a model for any employee of any company. I wish Eric good health and enjoyment on his retirement."

Weddings

Warner-Mackowiac

Rachelle Kaye Warner became the bride of Robert C. Mackowiak on Saturday afternoon, June 20, at St. Mary's Church in Charlevoix.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Leland H. Warner of Charlevoix, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Casimir Mackowiak of Boyne City.

The double-ring rites were performed by the Reverend Dale Magoon before approximately 250 guests. For the occasion, the altar of the church was arranged with palm plants. Large white scalloped lace bows trimmed in yellow satin and attached to ferns graced the candelbra, and white feathered doves complemented the arrangements. Matching bows marked the pews.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her mother, wore her sister's wedding gown of silk organza over taffeta. It was trimmed with rosepoint lace and featured an A-line silhouette, wedding-ring collar, and slightly belled sleeves jeweled with seed pearls and baby pearls. The rosepoint lace was also repeated in a pyramid pattern on front of the skirt, and appliques of the lace were scattered lightly on the attached watteau chapel train.

Completing the bridal costume was a Camelot cap of English netting trimmed with re-embroidered Atencon lace, baby pearls, and sequins. The bride's bouquet, which was presented to her by the bridegroom, was composed of yellow roses, peach and green daisies with baby's breath, and white satin ribbon on a scalloped rattan mat. She also carried her mother's prayer book covered in white lace entwined with her maternal grandmother's rosary.

Jill Ostrum served her sister of matron of honor, and topped by a flowered silk chiffon jacket with cap sleeves, and tied at the waist.

The bridesmaids wore similar gowns, with Miss Mackowiak in melon peach and Miss Bergmann in lemon yellow.

All of the adult attendants carried cascades of silk flowers consisting of baby's breath, green tiger lilies, peach and green daisies, and ferns arranged on heart-shaped fans, secured with satin ribbon streamers in shades of the gowns.

Kathryn Rose Thorp, niece of the bride, served as flower girl. She wore a white polysatin floor-length dress with ruffled neckline edged in eyelet. The puffed sleeves and full ruffled skirt were edged with eyelet and caught up with bows and forget-me-not flowers, and a blue sash accented the waist. The flower girl carried a parasol of yellow rose petals.

Corey Ross Ostrum, the bride's nephew of Charlevoix, was ringbearer.

All of the attendants' gowns were designed and fashioned by Mrs. John Gilding of Charlevoix, a friend of the family. All of the silk flower arrangements were designed and made by the bride's sister, Mrs. Richard Renshaw of Dimondale.

The mother of the bride wore an apricot-colored polyester chiffon gown with a ruffled capelet and featuring an empire waist. Her flowers were a polyester spray worn in her hair to complement the gown. The mother of the bridegroom was attired in a sky blue polyester gown with lace coat and matching blue accessories. Her corsage was made of white roses and baby's breath.

Tom Mackowiak of Big Rapids served his brother as best man. Steve Delaney, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Ken LaBracque, a friend, served both as groomsmen and ushers.

Traditional wedding music for the ceremony was provided by Mrs. John H. Lignell.

Following the wedding, the family of Leland H. Warner hosted a reception at the American Legion Hall. The rehearsal dinner was held at the Weathervane Inn on Friday evening, hosted by the bridegroom's parents.

Following a wedding trip to the Upper Peninsula, the newlyweds will be at home on Stover Road, Charlevoix. The bride is employed in the therapy department of the Charlevoix Area Hospital, and the bridegroom is employed by the Wojan Aluminum Company of Charlevoix.

Sherry Bergmann of Charlevoix and Mary Cay Mackowiak of Big Rapids, sister of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids.

The matron of honor was dressed in a full-length mint green qlana gown fashioned with a scooped neckline, shirred bodice, and flowing skirt ending in a ruffle. The gown was

A double ring ceremony at the Community Reformed Church Saturday, June 20 united Denise Boss and Paul Busman in marriage.

The church was decorated with Boston ferns and potted geraniums for the afternoon ceremony. Rev. Thomas Stark of University Reformed Church in East Lansing performed the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride designed her wedding gown fashioned with full sleeves and high neckline. She carried a bouquet of miniature white carnations, red rosebuds and baby's breath.

Selections of classical music were played by the organist, Mrs. Garry (Esther) Vandenberg. She also accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Phil Busman.

Mrs. Douglas (Gayle) Koopman of Washington, D.C. attended her sister as matron of honor. Phil Busman of Traverse City, brother of the groom, was best man. Craig Boss, Kent Busman and Kurtis Busman were ushers.

Health Dept. warns about insect stings, reactions

The District No. 3 Health Department has issued a warning to area residents about harmful insect stings.

According to the department, insect stings can be fatal to some people; approximately 100 people in the United States die each year from insect stings. Anyone can be allergic to insect bites or stings at one time or another in their life thus nobody should take lightly the threat posed by certain insects, said a health department spokesman.

Basic reactions of people who are allergic to insect bites include dizziness, fainting, upset stomach, shock and cold skin. The more quickly these symptoms appear after being stung, the more severe the symptoms are likely to be; a doctor should be consulted immediately if these symptoms occur.

To avoid being stung, people are advised to keep their lawns free of clover and dandelions, avoid close contact with flowering bushes, trees and flowers where bees and wasps are collecting nectar, keep sweet drinks covered and remove vines from house areas where insect nests may be concealed.

SPRING CLEANING YOUR JEWELRY

You wouldn't think of wearing soiled clothing or scuffed shoes to the office or on an evening out, but do you ever pay attention to your jewelry?

Jewelry picks up soap film and grease very easily, and transparent gemstones are especially susceptible. This seriously detracts from their beauty. Here are some suggestions to follow to keep your jewelry looking its best.

1. Have all your jewelry professionally cleaned once a year. You should be patronizing a gemologically trained jeweler who has the proper knowledge and equipment to thoroughly clean your jewelry. A gemologically trained jeweler knows all about the structure of gems and metals and can properly handle delicate gems.

2. While your jeweler is cleaning your pieces, ask him or her to check mountings for wear and clasps for security. This will protect you against losing gemstones or an entire piece.

3. In between professional cleanings, follow these care instructions:

TRANSPARENT GEMS (diamonds, rubies, etc.) AND CORAL, IVORY AND JADE: Wash with jewelry cleaner or mild detergent and a soft brush, rinse and pat dry with a lint free towel.

PEARLS AND OPALS: Wipe with a chamois after each wearing to remove body oils and acids. Never use heat on opals.

TURQUOISE: Wipe off periodically. Keep away from soap or grease, which may cause discoloration.

If you have a piece of jewelry you don't know how to care for, please stop by and see me, and I'll prescribe something for you.

Coach Spieles, three Rayder players named All-Conference

Peter Spieles, coach of the Charlevoix Rayder baseball team, and three members of the 1981 squad have been accorded regional and Michigan-Huron conference honors.

Spieles, who has coached baseball since it was introduced as a high school sport in 1976, has been named Region I Class C coach for 1981. During the past two years on which the recognition was based he has a 20 win, 10 loss record. In 1980 his team advanced to the semi-finals in the state and in 1981 to the district finals. He has an overall record of 83 wins and 26 losses. He has been a member of the faculty here for thirteen years, teaching first in the Middle School and currently at the high school.

Jim Buchanan, an outfielder, and Mike Loper, a pitcher, also received All-Regional honors. The two, along with Scott Kelly, received All-Conference honors.

Buchanan has a record of 30 hits in 69 times at bat for an average of .434. Loper has a seven win, no loss record as a pitcher and an earned run average of 1.70.

Kelly has a record of 26 hits in 75 times at bat for a batting average of .346. Spieles said that Kelly is a fine defensive player as well and that the coaching staff considered him the team's most valuable player.

All three players wil be seniors next year.

Presnell lands CMU spot

Central Michigan University football coach Herb Deromedi has confirmed the addition of Plas Presnell, right, to the regular Chippewa coaching staff. Twice a CMU graduate assistant, Presnell will work with the defensive ends and outside linebackers and recruit the Upper Peninsula, northeastern Lower Peninsula and the Clare-Isabella-Gratiot counties region. Presnell is a 1973 Michigan State University graduate who spent five years as an assistant coach at Charlevoix High School. He was the defensive coordinator for four of those years and offensive coordinator one year. Presnell worked with Central's coaching staff as a graduate assistant in 1978-79 and again last year. Community Reformed Church plans Super Summer Wednesdays

Super Summer Wednesday, a summer program for the community sponsored by the Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix, will begin Wednesday, July 8 at 9:30 a.m. and will continue each Wednesday morning through August 5.

The two-hour program has activities for children from kindergarten age to fifth grade, a program designed for junior high aged students and a program for adult women.

The K-5 program involves recreation, Bible study, crafts and music with different people teaching in each area as the participants move from event to event.

The junior high program began last year will be taught by Tom Kragt, a seminary student and former College All American basketball player from Holland who is spending the summer at the Community Reformed Church. Activities this year wil be less strenuous than last and will less structures than the other programs.

The adult women's program consists of three elective classes including dance exercise and stained glass art from 9:30 to 10:15 a.m. and Bible study from 10:25 to 11:30 a.m. Dance exercise will be taught by Carolyn Kragt, a physical education teacher from Holland, and stained glass art by Linda Brown who said this year's class will be less difficult than last year's.

The Bible Study class will be entitled "Coping: A Study of John 15" and will be taught by Mickey Grooters who teaches at Northwestern Michigan College in Traverse City and in Sunday School. Fay Rostar will lead worship and singing before the class.

Other staff members and their specialties include Jeannie Brewster Lignell, music; Craig Bosa, recreation; Nancy DeHollandar, older children's recreation; Carol Martin, Vicki Wallich and Marsha Sheedle, crafts and Shari Martin and Marilyn Izor, children's Bible classes.

Sara Price is director of the Super Summer Wednesday program which started three years ago and attracted over 125 participants of all denominations last year. Pastor Larry Grooters explained the program as a means to provide structured activities for women and young people who may have more spare time in the summer months. It is not a vehicle to recruit more church members, said Grooters, and participants' names will not be entered on the church's mailing list.

Registration begins at 9:10 a.m. July 8; the only cost is for materials in the stained glass class. Participants do not have to attend every week.

Michigan's unique sand dunes exist in a delicate ecological balance

The sun is high and shining brightly. Below, the hot sand radiates its warmth. A slight breeze skims the waves and sluggish breakers lap up the shore and fall again. On the beach, the tall grass sways in the uneven wind. A few dried leaves rattle in the limbs of a toppled oak; the poplars rustle. Now and then the calls of birds that live off this land rise up.

These are the sand dunes of Michigan.

Common symbols of natural beauty to residents of the state, these ancient dunes are actually rare. Only the passage of thousands of years, combined with certain unique geologic events, could have produced so delicate an environment. And now, the prevailing westerly winds off Lake Michigan move the sand that glaciers left in the wake of their slow drifting through this area ages ago. Even today the winds toss the sand, blowing it over and over into dunes.

Yet there are other sounds here: human noises. There is the faint whir of machinery. Within these dunes, the sand mining industry also lives, and like the forces of nature, the movements of mining are shaping the dunes.

There is very little large-scale sand mining done in the immediate Charlevoix area; most of the mining is done on the central and southern coastal areas along Lake Michigan.

It is between the two powers - nature and industry - that a conflict has arisen. It is a controversy that disturbs conservation groups and mining companies alike.

"It's our understanding that these are the only freshwater dunes in the world," says Don Wilson, president of Hope for the Dunes, a conservation group. He, and members of other environmentalist groups, want to end the mining of Michigan dune sand.

"The dunes are heavily wooded and have unique vegetation," Wilson says. "When sand mining companies come in, they flatten every stick of wood, mine the sand and there's nothing that survives. All we end up with is a wasteland."

Complaints like these led to the passage of the Michigan Sand Dune Protection and Management Act in 1976. The new law provides guidelines for the study, protection and reclamation of sand dunes.

Sand mining companies, however, have not embraced the idea of government regulation of their industry. They claim that the dune land, owned and mined for as long as 50 years by the companies, is private land and that the state should have no say in what they do with it.

"People who don't own the land are trying to regulate it," says Bob Robinson, marketing manager for Construction Aggregates Co., a sand mining firm in Ferrysburg.

"It's like any other industry that affects people in some way," argues Mary Nardo, environment and planning analyst with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources. "If some company is dumping toxic waste into a water system, the people have a right to complain. And government will pass laws to regulate it."

As part of the Sand Dune Protection and Management Act, the DNR was required to conduct a variety of comprehensive studies to develop a sound management plan for dune areas.

The wooded dunes of Charlevoix's north side shoreline are visible for miles; they are not threatened by the sand mining industries common along the Southwest Michigan coast.

Dune sand is essential to many industries

One of these studies, a look into the environmental, social, aesthetic and economic impact of sand mining in Michigan, was prepared under the direction of Eckhart Dersch, a Michigan State University professor of resource development and researcher with the Agricultural Experiment Station.

The project set up methods for assessing the effects of mining. But researchers were unable to give conclusive answers about what sand mining will do to the dune areas.

So the two sides remain polarized.

Some environmental groups want sand mining totally abolished, but it is unlikely that will happen because Michigan dune sand plays an important role in producing a number of commonly used products.

For example, dune sand is used extensively in the auto industry. Ninety percent of the metal castings for American cars are made with dune aand. Forty percent of all castings for all U.S. products are manufactured with dune sand. It is used to make bathtubs, sinks and other plumbing facilities. And much of the farm and construction equipment in the Midwest is produced with the use of Michigan dune sand.

All these products would be more expensive if another type of sand were substituted for dune sand. That cost inevitably would be passed on to the consumer in higher automobile prices and increases in the costs of many items, including food, housing and roads.

Dune sand has unique characteristics that make it desirable for use in manufacturing. Swept by the constant action of the wind for thousands of years, grains of dune sand are of uniform size and have the right chemical balance for metal casting. It is also easy to mine. Once the covering layer of vegetation is cleared, it is faster, easier and less expensive to mine dune sand than any other.

"We're a business," Robinson says, "And a business doesn't want to lose money. It wants to make money."

"We are changing the land, not destroying it," maintains Robinson, "Besides, the land is worth more after it has been flattened out. You can't build on dunes. It is to our benefit to keep the land valuable. We can't afford to mine it and just leave it."

To maintain the dunes' land value, Construction Aggregates Co. wants to use the flattened land for a residential development. Certain dunes are being left unmined to enhance the future community, Robinson says.

Other mining companies take the same position. They must make plans for the

FISHING VILLAGE

AT ONE TIME THIS HARBOR WAS RINGED WITH FISH BOATS, DOCKS, NET SHEDS, NET REELS, FISH-BOX MILLS, AND ICE HOUSES. FROM THE 1870's TO THE 1940's FISHING WAS THE MAJOR ISLAND INDUSTRY. DURING THIS ERA THE BEAVER ISLANDS WERE THE CENTER OF LAKE MICHIGAN'S FISHING ACTIVITY AND MANY OF THE MAJOR FISH BUYERS OPERATED HERE. WHITEFISH AND LAKE TROUT WERE THE MAIN CATCH. WHEN HEAVY FISHING, THE LAMPHREY EEL, AND CURTAILMENT OF STOCKING DECIMATED THE FISH POPULATION, THE POPULATION OF BEAVER ISLAND DROPPED PROPORTIONATELY.

When commercial fishing in northern Lake Michigan was in its heyday, nearly 2,000 people called Beaver Island home.

During this prosperous time, St. James was considered one of the country's leading fresh water fishing ports.

That was about 100 years ago. Today, fishing is still popular in the waters that surrounded the island, but not to the extent that it was in the 1860's.

The Beaver Island area is primarily known for its smallmouth bass fishing. Little Sand Bay, French Bay and Greane's Bay are fertile fishing areas.

Garden and Hog Islands also offer good smallmouth bass fishing. Pike and perch fishing are good, too. Northern pike can be found in Beaver Harbor as well.

Four of Beaver Island's seven inland lakes provide good fishing. Font Lake, at the north end of the island, is a large, shallow lake that is known for its largemouth bass. Perch and bluegill are abundant, too. Barney's Lake, three miles south of town, is a small, protected lake that abounds with pike and bluegill. Fox Lake, near the center of the island, reaches a depth of 20 feet and is stocked with rainbow trout. Lake Geneserath, in the southeast corner of the island, is the largest of the inland lakes and has a variety of fish including — large and smallmouth bass, pike, sunfish, perch, suckers and sturgeon.

Wind and waves shape the dunes future and most of these plans start with replanting to stabilize the dunes.

But dune stabilization is not as easy as simply replanting. The sandy soil is naturally blown and changed by the wind. Because it is in a constant state of change, dune sand is a tough environment in which to establish new vegetation. In addition, an unstable dune can be very hazardous.

The dune system is in equilibrium between the action of wind and waves, the MSU study says. The wind and waves deposit the sand near the shore. As the sand levels increase, the surface area dries out between high and low tides. The wind then takes over and blows the sand about, often into dunes.

Dunes near the shore are primarily sand and are constantly moving and shifting. As vegetation establishes itself, a dune becomes stable. Stable dunes are usually found inland from the shore.

If the vegetation is destroyed on inland dunes or the supply of sand is altered, the dune and surrounding areas are left unprotected from wind erosion. In such cases, blowouts can occur. And the inland dune - now unstable - can begin to move and disturb the surrounding community.

"I've heard of whole communities being buried by sand," says Jon Roethele, extension specialist with the DNR.

"A delcate balance exists in the ecosystem of the dunes," adds Joan Peterson, graduate assistant in the MSU department of resource development. "If it is disturbed, it could lead to a more rapid increase in coastal erosion."

An illustration of such danger from moving dunes has occurred along Lake Michigan south of Holland. Houses built on the beach near unstable dunes and eroded coastline will be buried by the shifting sand.

Coastal erosion, which happens even if the dunes are left alone, also presents a problem for homeowners. In some areas, it has eaten away at the shoreline, gradually causing beach homes to fall into the lake.

But property damage to lakefront homes is not the only, or the biggest worry related to the dunes.

Larry Keamer, assistant director of the Lake Michigan Federation, a Chicago-based conservation group, has still other anxieties about the dunes. The people in Michigan, he says, should be concerned about the dunes, not only because they are unique and perhaps threatened, but also because they bring money to the state through tourism.

Regulation may help save the dunes

Though the sand mining companies contribute to state and local governments through taxes, the benefits afforded by taxes from the companies are only short term, but those from tourism are long term.

"The jobs and money will last only as long as the sand," Keamer says. "But on a nice day, you'll see license plates from many Midwestern states. As gas gets more expensive and the supply becomes more limited, more people will limit their travel. More people will probably go the dunes rather than take a longer trip."

Between the mining groups and the conservation groups - each with its definite and emotional point of view - the state government hopes to step in and help control the situation through regulation.

Nardo, who represents the state through DNR, does not neccessarily like the idea of regulations but believes they are neccessary.

We're faced with a situation where we have to educate people to think about the future," she says. "There are going to be people here after we've gone and they will have to live with and in that environment. We can't just use it up and leave. Therefore, the regulations are neccessary to help establish a different attitude.

"We need better communications," she said. "And if we put a little time into that now, we'll save ourselves some trouble down the road."

As the publication on MSU's research project states: "The sand dunes are a living portion of the natural history of Michigan. There exists a delicate balance of factors which maintain and replenish the shifting dunes."

Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, one of world's best, will appear in concert at Interlochen

The Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra will perform in concert at 8 p.m. July 12 in Kresge Auditorium as part of the Interlochen Arts Festival at the National Music Camp.

Tickets for the concert, priced at $6.50, $8 and $9.50, are available through the Interlochen Concert Office.

Long regarded as one of America's leading orchestras, the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra (PSO) under the guidance of musical director Andre Previn has gained an enviable position in the eyes of audiences all over the world, as well. Its most recent European tour, in 1978, generated highly enthusiastic responses in 13 major cities. Typical was the report of a Stockholm critic who called the PSO a "dream orchestra".

The orchestra was founded in 1858, flourished early in the century, faltered financially in 1910 and was reborn in 1926. Since that time a succession of famous names have lent their talents to the orchestra, including Otto Klemperer, Fritz Reiner, William Steinberg and, in 1976, Andre Previn.

In 1971, the PSO moved into its permanent residence, the elegant Heinz Hall, and now enjoys the largest endowment of any orchestra in the United States.

The triumphs of recent years have generally obscured a troubled –and somtimes amusing– past. Early in the century, during the orchestra's leaner years, businessman and philanthropist Andrew Carnegie showed up during a midday rehearsal with a lunch invitation and probable offer of financial support, but was kept waiting for half an hour as the orchestra played on. The august Carnegie left in irritation, offering neither invitation nor aid.

On another occasion, when the newly reborn orchestra was staffed largely by musicians under contract to other Pittsburgh theaters and organizations, rehearsals could be held only on Sundays, when the musicians were available.

The inevitable "sacrilege" caused the Sabbath Association of Pittsburgh, (SAP) to invoke the State roadsides to be bushier

Grass and weeds will be allowed to grow more this summer along many state roadsides.

The Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT), which maintains approximately 9,500 miles of state highways and freeways has been gradually reducing its roadside mowing for two decades. This year, however, the cutback may be more evident than ever before.

It's part of an ongoing effort to hold down spending for maintenance as highway tax revenues decline and costs, fueled by inflation, continue to soar.

All state highways north of M-20 will continue to be mowed twice.

The total width of areas mowed in the medians will not be mowed.

Pennsylvania Blue Laws of 1794 in an effort to stop the rehearsals. The orchestra persisted, however, and the resultant arrests, civil disobedience, fines and angry letters constituted a major publicity coup that garnered the beginnings of the vast public support the group now enjoys.

Directing the orchestra during its Interlochen concert will be James Conlon, conductor of the New York Metropolitan Opera and widely known in Europe and America as a conductor of great sensitivity. A former member of the faculty of the Juilliard School of Music in New York, Conlon conducts frequently at summer music festivals all over the United States.

Six summers ago, he led the National Music Camp's World Symphony Orchestra through a performance of Tchaikovsky's famous "Symphony No. 6" and Mussorsky's "Pictures at an Exhibition".

For the concert, Conlon has chosen a dazzling program that includes Wagner's "Flying Dutchman Overture", Stravinsky's "Firebird Suite" and a Ravel piano concerto featuring pianist Kun Woo Paik.

This appearance by the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra is funded in part by the Bell System as part of its "American Orchestras on Tour" program.

For further information on this and other Interlochen events, contact the concert office by writing National Music Camp, Interlochen, MI 49643 or phoning 276-9221.

$100 in gift certificates will be given to the author of the winning caption for this photo. Your entry can be a "one-liner" or up to five lines of limerick.

Roadside mowing cut back program has been reduced to the absolute minimum consistent with driving safety," said Donald Orner, MDOT's chief maintenance engineer. "To cut back any further might create some hazards in terms of clear-vision areas for drivers and that is something we will not do."

Orner said there are some benefits to reduced mowing. It saves wear and tear on equipment and reduces fuel consumption as well. Also, hundreds of miles of naturally landscaped roadside emerge, often more attractive than the manicured variety.

The transportation department is continuously searching for ways to improve roadside maintenance. In cooperation with the federal Soil Conservation Service, it recently began an experiment using salt-tolerant grasses, wild flowers and hybrid grasses along a portion of newly reconstructed M-99 between Lansing and Eaton Rapids. It is aimed at finding a ground cover requiring a minimum of care and mowing.

Department officials say that a minimum care grass also is being planted on all new highway projects. The grasses used are a result of many years of testing by Michigan State University.

125 YEARS

Supplement to Charlevoix Courier

Boyne City to look back at 125 years

Boyne City once-supported a professional baseball team whicb played teams from as far awsy ss Muskegon and wbose players earned salaries of up to $600 a season.

By DAVE GUZNICZAK

BOYNE CITY — It was 125 years ago that Harriet and John Miller found an abandoned cabin on the shores of Pine Lake (Lake Charlevoix). The Millers made a home there and became Boyne City's first permanent settlers.

In celebration of the Millers historic landing, Boyne citizens are holding a historical festival July 5 — 11.

In addition, the city will also be celebrating the Fourth of July with many activities planned for that day.

The city historical commission will have a hospitality center open July 2 — 11 in the railroad office building, 112 S. Park St.

Copies of Bob Morgridge's book on the city's history will be for sale at the center along with festival buttons and enlarged copies of historical pictures.

Refreshments will be available and the center will be staffed by local senior citizens. The center will also serve as an information office for visitors who would like to locate old friends in town. Center hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily.

It took about 50 "dockwallopers" to load lumber onto the ship Three Brothers for transport to New York State.

Other festival events scheduled are beard and costume contests, an art festival and barbershop singing.

The art festival will be July 11 from noon to 4 p.m. near the bandshell in Veterans Memorial Park. People of all ages will be able to participate in a variety of art projects. They include clown face, body and easel painting. Two large 5 by 12 foot canvasses will also be provided for those who would like to express their artistic talents.

Festival goers may also get a festival logo silk-screened on their T-shirts or other articles.

Festival organizers encourage people to bring blankets to sit on because entertainment will be provided during the art festival. The entertainment includes songs by the fourth and fifth grades choir, an enactment of the Millers landing by the school youth challenge group, excerpts from Hello Dolly by the high school drama club, guitar and banjo medleys by the Harmeling Brothers, piano recitals, and excerpts from Oliver to be performed by Billy Casper.

Beard contest entries will be judged July 6 at 7 p.m. at the bandsheli.

Local barbershoppers will perform July 7 at 7 p.m. at the bandsheli

Costume contestants will be judged July 8 at the same time and place.

In addition, Boyne will also be celebrating the Fourth of July with many activities planned that day.

The Fourth opens with an eight mile foot race at 8:30 a.m. followed by a one-mile race at 8:35 a.m.

Local artists will be displaying their wares at an arts and handicraft show. The show will be held from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the south eod of Veterans Memorial Park.

The parade will begin at 10:30 a.m.

The local rotary club will hold a chicken barbecue at 11 a.m. at Veterans park.

The garden club will have a pie sale in the park too.

The race of homemade rafts on the Boyne River will be at 3 p.m. The finish line is the river mouth.

A tug-of-war contest will be at 5 p.m. and will be beld just west of the Water and Lake streets intersection.

The Lions club concession will be open all day at Veterans Park.

The Fourth will close with fireworks at 10:30 p.m.

Also, the chamber of commerce will hold a public auction July 5. The chamber is seeking donations. Items may be dropped off at the chamber building or the Charievoix County Press office.

For more information on the beard contest, contact Harvey Varnum, 582-7138. For information on the costume contest, contact Linda Franchino, 582-2152. For more information on the festival and Fourtb activities, contact the chamber of commerce, 582-8222.

Bob Morgridge brings early days of Boyne City to life in new book of local history

By DAVE GUZNICZAK

BOYNE CITY — What waa it like to live in Boyne City in the days of horses, steamboats and log cabins? Local teacher Bob Morgridge has a good idea.

In conjunction with the city historical festival, Morgridge has published a pictorial history of Boyne City. The book, Settlers to Sidewalks in Boyne City, covers the city from its early beginnings to the end of the booming lumbering era.

The book could be termed a community project. Some historical information and pictures in the book were provided over the years by students, parents and other residents, he said.

"Without them, this book would not have happened," he said.

The book opens with a section on steamboats and their role in bringing early settlers to the Lake Charlevoix region.

"Steamers not only conveyed newcomers to Boyne and offered excursions, but also served as the main mode of transportation between Boyne and Charlevoix.... One resident recalls that around 1915, a one way ticket from Boyne to Charlevoix cost half a dollar," Morgridge writes.

The book is about people, places aod events that shaped Boyne City's past. It begins with a New York State couple who came to the ahores of Pine Lake (Lake Charievoix) In seerch of a dream cabin. Those first permanent settlers, the Millers, were soon joined by other pioneers, such as the Morgao family. What started as a small settlement grew to a town complete with lumbering, tanning, chemical, iron and clay products factories. Mortgridge's historical journey ends in the 1920s when the timber stock was depleted and the lumbering boom came to an end.

The people of the past include George Beardsley who is dubbed the "father of Boyne City" although he oever lived in the community. Beardsley's brother, Alfred J., was the town's first storekeeper.

Many of the historical pictures appearing in this issue were taken from the book. Some of the historical data in the accompanying articles was also obtained from the book.

Copies of the book will be available for sale at the festival hospitality center in the railroad office building, 112 S. Park St.

Local teacbet and historiao Bob Morgridge is the author of "Settlers to Sidewalks in Boyne City", an early history of the srea.

The buge Tourist Home Hotel, above, was built in 1884 by Hiram B. Chapman for $35,000 in Bay Springs. Chapman had visions of building the community into a potential county sest. The hotel was unsuccesful, bowever, and changed hands frequently until it became the Beulah Home for boys in 1904. Later in the 1920s it was razed for lumber.

BOYNE RIVER INN
Downtown Boyne City

The Boyne City Band was a familiar sight on holidays and weekends as it paraded in downtown Boyne City.

Burning of the New Boyne

During a severe blizzard on March 7, 1910 the New Boyne Hotel, a 52-room inn remodeled in 1907 by Frank Mayers featuring electric lights and a bathroom, caught fire and was destroyed, left. The fire department was unable to save the building and sprayed so much water on the fire that a massive sheet of ice covered the rubble of the burnt hotel the next day, below. Eventually a grocery store was built on the site which is now occupied by Schafer's Store.

One descendant of pioneer family still lives in Boyne City

By DAVE GUZNICZAK

This ring and watch belonged to James Miller, a member of one of Boyoe City's first families who drowned in a skating accident but managed to leave these artifacts on the ice before going down.

BOYNE CITY — The celebratioo of the landing of the Miller family on the shores of Lake Charlevoix has a special significance for Vera Tokoly.

Mrs. Tokoly, a former school teacher, is the last living direct desceodant of the Millers.

"All I know about my ancestors is what I've read," she said.

Mrs. Tokoly is the great granddaughter nf John and Harriet Miller whn were the first permanent settlers in a wilderness regioo that later grew to he Boyne City.

In his book, Settlers tn Sidewalks in Boyoe City, Rohert Mnrgridge retells the stnry of the Millers migration frnm tbeir New York state hnme to Northern Michigan:

" ... It is said that on one morning in 1855, Harriet Miller awoke from a straoge dream: In ber dream she envisinned a lake to the west which was shaped like a bear and had ao abandnned cabin at its eastern end. Convinced that she must seek out this mysterious place, Harriet persuaded her husband to sell their land, pack their bags aod head westward.

"It took them awhile to settle their affairs. Finally, they made their way a few miles northward to Ogdensburg where they booked passage oo a Northern Transportatiion Line Compaoy ship routed for Chicagn. The steamer made its scheduled stop at Northport, Michigan to take oo wnod. Here on the dock the Millers stood when a decisive event occurred that would determine the course of their lives. Whether by accideot or design, the Millers struck up a conversation with a gentlemen by the name nf John Sargeant Dixnn. John Dixon persuaded the Millers to come to Pine River [Charlevoix]. On October 26, 1856, the Milliers and Dixoo arrived at Pine River. The Millers stayed with John Dixon and his wife for several weeks. The Dixons pleaded with the Millers to make Pine River their hnme, but Harriet was reluctant and insisted on exploring the eastern end of the lake. So the Millers and Dixon set nut in an old fishing boat. Late in the day on November 14, 1856, the boat struck the shores nf Boyne, and they found the 'dream cabin.'"

The dream cablo was an abaodoned Mormon home. The Millers settled there with their two sons, Hugh aod James.

Tragedy befell the family io 1868. James fell through the ice and drowned in Lake Charlevoix. He was skating hnme from his fiancee's hnuse in Advance and was to be married the oext day. James' watch and ring were found next to the hole in the ice.

The watch and ring and other family artifacts were dnnated by Mrs. Toknly to the city and are now on display at city hall.

Brnther Hugh later married and had one daughter, Harriet Agnes. Harriet Agnes married and the couple had one daughter, Vera.

Vera and her parents established a bome in Boyne City in 1905 where she bas been a permanent resident since. After graduation from high schonl in 1921, she entered college, became a teacher and later married Samuel Toknly.

From talks witb her mother, Mrs. Tokoly remembers great grandfather John as a man with ao avid thirst for reading.

"He got deaf in his old age, mother said, so he would read all the time," she said.

George Wuerth remembers well the old tannery...

By DAVE GUZNICZAK

BOYNE CITY — When the old tannery plant was torn down in the early 1970s, George Wuerth Sr. dearly cried.

The leather tanning company, which for years was a major industry in the community, provided him with a job for 48 of his 97 years.

Vivid memories

The old tannery property is currently being developed into an 108 unit condominium complex with a marina. But to one of Boyne's oldest citizens, the land embracing the city's southwest shore will always be remembered as the site of a once thriving business that gave young men jobs and provided food and clothing for their families.

In August, George will be 98. Raised on a farm just west of town, he's lived in the Boyne City area all his life. He now resides with his son, George jr., just a few blocks from where the tannery once stood.

George's memory of the plant is uncanny. He can tell you the dimensions of various equipment within the plant. Names come to mind without hesitation. There was Burt Crandell who worked with him in the blistering steam of the leachhouse where they shoveled bark. There was "a little fella by the name of Dale Morgan" who toggled the hides. Harry Bradford's nephew was the poor devil who lost his arm in the hair scraping machine. There was the time Frank Holley nearly took his head off with the elevator.

Paid $1.85 a day

The year was 1901 and a Canadian tanner, William Sutherland Shaw, was looking for men to build a leather tanning plant in town. Giant holes had to be dug along with other excavation and building work. The holes would later be filled with vats where the cow hides would be soaked and tanned.

One of the newly hired hole diggers was a teen-age farm boy who was accustomed to hard work and long hours.

"I was 18 years and a half old," George recalled. "Well, I went down there to the tannery and I got that job first thing. I was big and I was strong. I could do a man's work at that time. John Shepard. He took me in."

Among George's other tannery bosses was Harry Colley. Colley paid George $1.85 a day to shovel dirt by hand for the new tannery. It was a 10 hour a day job and workers would haul about 55 cubic yards of dirt a day. The dirt was hauled by wagon to the Lake Charlevoix shoreline where it was dumped.

"No steam or electric shovels in those days," Robert Comloquoy wrote in a letter to George. "One had to have a broad strong back and be able to handle a No. 5 shovel."

Shortly after the letter was written in 1970, Comloquoy died of cancer. George didn't have a chance to write his friend back.

George Wuerth displays some of the products turned out by the old tannery where he worked for 48 years.

Held every job

Comloquoy started his career as a common laborer at the tannery. He became the company bookkeeper and later moved to Pennsylvania where he operated his own tannery.

"He was a common town boy who came from Canada," George said. "He got to be a millionaire."

George held about every job the plant could offer before quitting the company in the late 1940s.

"It was kind of a dirty place to work but the money was clean," he chuckled.

Before the hides could be tanned, the hair and fleshings had to be removed. This was accomplished in part by soaking them in a lime and black soda solution. The soda was strong enough to dissolve fingernails, he said.

...where he spent half his life

In 1901 workmen began digging the foundations for the tannery.

Soaked in liquor

"That lime and black soda together was an awful stinking God-darn stuff. You'd take a bath and change your clothes. You'd go home and you could smell it just the same," he said.

"Fellers would come in there and they would work only a half a day and they'd get the hell out of there. They didn't want it atall. The fellers were used to working in a dry job in the mills or someplace. You come out of there and go into that tannery. There's a belluva difference I can tell you."

The tanning was done by bundling the hides together, a procedure called toggling, and soaking them in vats containing liquor made from hemlock bark. The extraction of liquor from the bark was done by a process similar to the way coffee grounds are steeped to make coffee. In later years, other solutions were used to tan hides.

Comloquoy's father was the beam house foreman when the first hides were soaked in the spring of 1902.

Comloquoy wrote the letter at the time when the old plant was being torn down.

"For many years and after the decline of the lumber industry, it was the mainstay of the community and I know it will be missed," he wrote.

"The tannery made this town grow like everything," George said. "... When I was a kid, this town didn't amount to anything atall. Just White's sawmill down here. No, one mill he called it. We used to drive around among the pine stumps. Just had a dirt road. There were no streets atall. When the tannery started here, it made a big difference I'll tell you."

With the tannery came the construction of homes near it. Several homes were rented by the company to its workers. In some cases, the homes were heated by pipes that ran from the plant to the houses, according to another former tannery worker.

"Mind like lightning"

The man responsible for founding the tannery is described in Comloquoy's letter as having been a "whiz" with figures. "Mr. Shaw (at times) would go on a figuring 'binge' and sometimes worked all night," Comloquoy wrote. "Numerous times he was leaving his office for home when I arrived at 7 a.m. One of my jobs was to check his calculations for accuracy. At times and after one of his 'binges', it took me many hours to do so and I must admit I caught him in very few errors. ... His mind worked like lightning."

Redman and Peachy Scrap were the chewing tobacco brands workers used. "Mr. Shaw would not permit cigarette smoking — but he never objected to a 'chaw.' In fact, (he) always kept a plug in his tannery coat." Comloquoy wrote.

1,300 hides a day

The tannery was owned by Howes Leather Company when it closed in 1969. The shutdown was attributed primarily to the flood of lower-priced footwear imports into the country. Most of the tannery's leather was made into shoe soles.

Just a few years before its closure, the tannery reached a near record production of 1,300 tanned hides a day. At the time, the plant employed about 180 men.

The tannery plant also sold hair from the hides to furniture upholsterers and felt manufacturers. The fleshy remains of the hide were sold to make glue.

Stubborn bridge causes early morning traffic jam, halts boat traffic

Commuters and travelers on Highway 31 through Charlevoix faced an unexpected delay early Tuesday morning when the drawbridge over the Pine River channel stuck in the open position for close to an hour.

A power failure was being blamed for the malfunction which caused some traffic to back up and probably a few impatient drivers to circle Lake Charelvoix to reach their destination.

The bridge reportedly was opened and was closing at about 6 a.m. Tuesday but refused to close completely leaving a gap of a few feet. A manual mechanism was used to eventually close the bridge at about 7 a.m.

An electrical technician from Lansing was reported to be enroute to work on the bridge later Tuesday. Indications were that until repairs were made, the bridge would not be able to open and large boat traffic not able to pass through the channel.

Miss Charlevoix hopefuls preparing for pageant

Five young women have tossed their cowboy hats into the ring for the title of Miss Charlevoix and the Venetian Queen.

The five applications were recently accepted by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce and work has begun in preparation for the pageant which is to be held Thursday, July 23 at the Charlevoix High School gymnasium.

Candidates include:

Janice L. Egler, 20, 102 Auld, is the daughter of Mrs. Audrey M. Egler and the late Robert Egler. Janice graduated in 1979 from Charlevoix High School and is now employed at the Charlevoix Area Hospital in the Purchasing Department. Her hobbies include reading, cross country skiing, walking and hiking, camping and baseball. Janice also enjoys horseback riding, babysitting and water skiing. She is planning a comedy skit for the talent competition.

Margaret Jean Himebauch, 22, Rt. 2, Box 312D, Charlevoix, is the daughter of Archie and Elizabeth Himebauch. Margaret is a Charlevoix High School graduate and attended North Central Michigan College in Petoskey. An outdoors lover, Margaret enjoys hiking, fishing, bird watching and cross country skiing. She also does sewing, needlepoint, bowling and likes to take care of children.

Kim Jones, 20, 1003 May St., is the daughter of Neil and Joanne Jones. She is also a Charlevoix High School graduate and has one year of college under her belt. Kim lists as her favorite activities downhill and cross country skiing and swimming. She also mentioned "being with friends" as important to her as well as music and being in the outdoors. Kim plans either a skit or humorous reading for the talent competition.

Lori Niswander, 19, Silver Birch Motel, is the daughter of Jack and Rachel Niswander. In 1979 she graduated from Charlevoix High School where she was a member of the Fall Homecoming Court. Lori enjoys playing softball, playing guitar, traveling and meeting people. When outdoors, she spends her time cross country skiing, fishing, bike riding snowmobiling, camping and going to the beach. Lori is preparing a poetry reading for the pageant.

Tami Lynn Noirot, 18, 316 W. Garfield, is the daughter of Alva and Evelyn Noirot. Tami graduated last year from Charlevoix High School and has attended Adrian College for a year. While at CHS she participated in forensics, plays, flag corps, marching band, volleyball, softball, track and cheerleading. In track and forensics she won state honors. As her other interests, Tami lists being with people, skiing, outdoor activities, working with kids and reading. She plans a reading for the talent part of the pageant.

The Venetian Queen pageant is the traditional start to the annual Venetian Festival in Charlevoix which will go on from July 23 to July 26. The theme for the pageant this year is "Frontier Days." The girls will be featured in a choreograped Western number as part of the entertainment.

C. Max Novak and Doris A. Pearl assumed four-year terms and Robert Drenth a two-year term to fill a vacancy.

Following this, Novak was elected to his third term as president of the Board of Education. Other officers were also elected unanimously to their respective offices; Elaine Martin as vice president; Kenneth Boss, secretary and Ardith Wieland, treasurer.

Following the adjournment of the organizational meeting, the regular Board of Education meeting was called to order.

The major item on the agenda was the attendance policy which has been altered slightly. The new policy will be outlined in detail in student handbooks

Beaver Island's latest attraction is toy museum

by TOM DAMMANN

Beaver Island, on which history is vibrant, has a new museum.

Unlike the Beaver island Historical Society Museum, old Mormon Jail and the Marine Museum, the new museum has nothing to do directly with the island.

It is a museum of toys - the Beaver Island Toy Museum - and a shop where middle aged folk can buy all the junky little knick knacks, wedding rings, flag pins, necklaces, false fingernails, fuzzy dolls, old Valentines and such they used to buy, as kids, at the Dime Store and at the original prices. Remember?

All this is located in a house on the waterfront about a mile north of the dock where the ferries tie up.

Hanging from the ceiling of the main room are venerable World War I era Buddy L Fire Engines, hook and ladder trucks and more modern Tonka trucks and trains. These are not for sale.

The goods that are for sale, dolls, old Coca Cola advertisements, greeting cards, costume jewelry and a wide assortment of other merchandise, the proprietors acquired when they bought old inventories from Woolworth warehouses in Chicago whence they came.

But why on Beaver Island?

The answer is simple (though the story is long): they liked Beaver Island and decided to live there.

The proprietors, Mary and Lawrence Scholl, had a store in Chicago which Mary opened on July 4, 1970 to sell things she made such as purses, dolls, necklaces and T-shirts.

Some years after the opening, along came Larry with his collection of Buddy L and Tonka toys.

Some years before that, while Larry was working as a maintenance man in an apartment building, he found an old Tonka truck for sale at a Salvation Army shop. He bought it for 25 cents, fixed it up, painted it and sold it for $3 to a tenant in the building.

He was in the business, he found more old toys, fixed them up and sold them to other tenants.

Larry and Mary pooled their resources and were married.

Then a few years ago, a friend told Mary about Beaver Island. Her descriptions of the near wilderness on the island, its trees, its flowers, particularly the wild iris and the pink ladyslippers, filled Mary with longing.

Two years ago they made a quick trip to the island and within weeks of their return to Chicago they bought property.

Mary says it was the ladyslippers that did it.

She sold her building in Chicago and moved into the Beaver Island house July 4 last year. It took them seven trips to move 600 boxes of goods to their new home.

Mary is an artist and gardener also. She has a vegetable garden and a greenhouse made from old glass doors and windows in which she started

Classic cars pay Charlevoix a visit

One side of downtown Charlevoix almost looked as if it had been through a time warp Saturday as a caravan of beautifully restored classic automobiles stopped on the way to an exhibition. The cars lined the east side, right, of Bridge St. which had been cleared for them by previous arrangement. Classics such as the flashy Cadillac, below, drew several admiring passers-by.

A look at who does what in the County Building

by PEG OHLE

Some people may never enter the Charlevoix County Building during their lifetime. Others may make only occasional visits to pay a tax bill or seek vital statistics information. Still others, such as attorneys and real estate people, may find the County Building almost a second office.

The County Building is symbolic of county government, which is largely supported by property taxes, revenue sharing, and various fees and fines.

Most of the county's 95 employees work in the County Building, while others have "outside offices".

In the County Building are the offices of the County Clerk, County Treasurer, Register of Deeds, County Prosecutor, District Court, Circuit Court, Probate Court, Friend of the Court, Probation Officers, County Buildings and Grounds, Veterans Affairs, Planning Department, and Equalization Department.

Just across the driveway, in the Annex Building, are the offices of the Department of Building Inspection and the Drain Commissioner.

On the south side of town, at Grant and Garfield Streets, is the Sheriff's Department Building, which houses the County Jail, the office of Emergency Planning, and the Commission on Aging.

Over in Boyne City, in the City Building, are the offices of the County Cooperative Extension Services and the County Transit System.

Between Boyne City and Charlevoix, on the south side of Lake Charlevoix, is Whiting Park, owned and operated by the county.

Out on M-66, the Social Services Building houses two county offices, Juvenile Justice and the Youth Diversionary Program.

The men and women who work for Charlevoix County are practically all residents of the county. They are friends and neighbors of Charlevoix County taxpayers. Collectively, they receive an average of $43,750 every two weeks in salaries.

The Courier recently received an up-to-date list of county employees, department by department:

County Clerk's office: Jane Brannon, clerk; Betty Straw, Janet Dean, Mary A. Driedzic, and Janis Williams.

County Treasurer's office: Anah Potter, treasurer; Jean Cunningham, Joan Balch, and Toni DeVries.

Register of Deed's office: Stephen Pond, register; Charlene Gaskin, and Jan P. Babb.

County Prosecutor's office: Scott Bestty, prosecutor; John Michael, assistant prosecutor; Marilyn Swanson, Nancy King, and Laurie Howell.

District Court: (No judge at present).— Karen Alton, Jennifer Brindel, Patricia Conkle, Gwendolyn Groves, Tina Cribb, Wayne L. Barnett, and Janet Potter.

Circuit Court: Martin Breighner, judge; Imogene Leik, and Thomas Wozniak.

Probate Court: John Murphy, judge; Sally Taber, Diana Harrold, and Debra Kimble.

Friend of the Court: George Ebenhoeh and Marilee Towsley.

County Building and Grounds: Harry Potter, Michael Webb, and Debra K. Martinchek.

Office of Veterans Affairs: Ronald Geer.

Equalization Department: Joan Blanchard, Floyd McCracken, Carla Spencer, Robert Hewitt, William Wolf, Betsy J. Louiselle, Judith Hamill, and Jacquelyn M. Thorp.

Planning Department: Lawrence Sullivan and Barbara Fels.

Department of Building Inspection: Howard Carson, Swanee Alden, Ronald Geer, Russell S. Geek, and Moira Martinchek.

Drain Commissioner: Clayton Healey.

Sheriff's Department: George Lasater, sheriff; Byron Stockwell, William Cousineau, Roger Moses, David Burris, Michael W. Wheat, Dale Boehm, Hamilton Gebert, Thomas Sumner, David B. Hague, Rickey R. Pollock, and Gary Taylor. (Jail): Marjorie Warner, Corrine Russell, Keith Miles, Marcella Murdick, and William Yarbrough. (Dog Warden): Dennis W. Andrick. (Marine-Snowmobile): Mark Emmons, Ronald Moore, and Henry Lentz.

Emergency Services: F. Earl Muma.

Commission on Aging: Dorothy Pelton, Phyllis Legato, and Phyllis Tiaron.

County Cooperative Extension Services: Kathryn Sulak.

County Transit System: Art Saworaki, George Kraft, Eugene Beer, John Mooney, Ted Lesher, William Hughes, Jerry Hardy, James Ehrcke, Richard Pelton, Florine Kuzmik, Kelly Stackus, Patricia Ecker, Donald Smith, Gene Farley, and Phyllis Miller.

Parks and Recreation: Philo Sumner, Whiting Park.

Youth Diversionary Services: William Aten.

Juvenile Justice: Mike Davis.

Salaries for most of the above-mentioned county employees come entirely from county funds. Some employees are paid partly from county funds and partly from federal or state grants. A few are paid entirely from state grants (the County Transit System is one of these).

Another group of county agencies – District Health Department No. 3, The Charlevoix County Road Commission, The Department of Social Services, and Grandvue Medical Care Facility – pay their employees from their own separate accounts funded mainly by the state or federal governments.

The Health Department's administrative offices for four counties (Charlevoix, Antrim, Emmet and Otsego) are located in the County Building Annex. They employ 20 people and have a payroll of almost $25,000 every two weeks.

The Road Commission, with headquarters in Boyne City, hires 35 people and pays out about $20,000 in salaries every two weeks.

The Department of Social Services has 30 employees who are paid by the state. Its average payroll runs about $20,000 every two weeks.

Grandvue Medical Care Facility has a staff of 93 people at the present time, although it sometimes dips as low as 86. Its every-two-weeks payroll is usually between $31,000 and $32,000.

While the above figures are "rounded off", the number of employees associated with the county in one way or another add up to 273, and the salaries paid to them amount to approximately $3,646,500 a year, an average of $13,357 per employee.

Council grants three variances

Three variance requests came before the Charlevoix City Council Monday night and all three received favorable action from the council acting as the Board of Appeals.

A request by Mrs. Bernie Ward, Sr., 803 Grant St. for a three and a half foot side yard setback variance was approved. The last time the variance was discussed, action was not taken because of a letter of opposition received from a neighboring property owner.

Plans are to add a bathroom addition to the Ward house thus making it unnecessary for Mrs. Ward to climb to the second floor.

Said council member James Block, "I don't see how we are going to help the situation by denying the variance." It was subsequently approved unanimously.

On a request by Kusina Motors, 103 Antrim, to erect a new sign one and three quarters square feet larger than the new, proposed sign ordinance allows, some council members expressed hesitation to allow an exemption before the ordinance was even passed.

Dennis Kusina explained to the council that the new sign is a corporate GM sign that would replace three large signs now in use. The total area of the new sign is 37¾ square feet while the ordinance approved by the Planning Commission and scheduled for public hearing August 3 dictates a maximum size of 36 square feet.

Said council member Block, "Why don't we just forget the ordinance if we are not going to follow it?"

Council member Robert Timms favored approval of the variance saying that he saw the new sign law as more of a guideline and that the difference in size between 36 and 37¾ square feet was insignificant. On Timms motion, the variance for Kusinas was granted unanimously.

The council also approved a variance to allow a lot split requested by the Ironwood Oil Company, owners of the Holiday Gas Station on Bridge St.

In other action, the council:

-Granted a request from the Charlevoix Little League for $200 to help defray costs of the District Tournament to be held here.

-Voted to not pay a voluntary assessment of $66.18 requested by the Michigan Municipal League for the National League of Cities Congress.

-Learned from the City Manager that an accident involving a city policeman and a State Patrol officer amounted to a total of $2,058 in damage to a city patrol car.

JUL

Knight on the Town

Season's greetings

by Dave Knight

With the Fourth of July weekend now behind us, we can get down to the serious business of Summer. And speaking of business, it has been great lately.

Those who should know say the downtown crowds over the past few weeks have been considerably larger than at comparable times in recent years.

I daresay that few business people in town expected as good an early season as we have had. It is difficult to put a finger on the reason. The dismal shape of the economy has not improved to any great extent though perhaps the hope and belief that it will is just as good as the actual upturn when it comes to shaping attitudes.

A worldwide oversupply of crude oil has knocked gasoline prices off in many markets; travelers from Milwaukee this past weekend reported that unleaded gas could be had for $1.29 a gallon there. Though politics involved with oil prices are too volatile for anyone to get overly excited about a new lease on our automotive lives in America, there's nothing wrong with taking advantage of the cheap gas and sipping off for a driving vacation while the going's good.

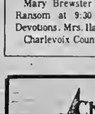
It is at this point of the season that those business owners who are employing high school or college aged help for the summer should make spot evaluations. By now, it should be evident which ones are going to last the summer.

In the resort town where I put in plenty of summers, the formula was that if a kid made it past the Fourth without quitting or threatening to quit, he or she would be good through Labor Day and probably many seasons thereafter.

For those young innocents taking their first summer job, the experience of breaking into the real world of earning money in the hospitality (tourist) industry can sometimes be a jolt. The realization that all people are not necessarily nice and that bosses are not nearly as forgiving as mothers can change an attitude in a hurry.

For the first few days, even finals and book reports look pretty good compared to working for a living.

But if the neophyte survives until the Fourth; if he or she has made a few new friends in the process; if that first paycheck tends to help one forget the initial trauma, the sailing will most likely be clear for the next two months and the introduction to the real world will have been a pleasing one.



Clockwise

The trouble with entrapment

I AM HAVING a hard time dealing with the whole question of police entrapment. I think it stinks.

A case in point is the arrest of Rep. Charles Varnum (R-107th District) in Lansing one night last week for allegedly inviting a pretty lady to go for a ride with him.

Is this an arrestable offense?

Ordinarily, you wouldn't think so. But the neighborhood was pretty sleazy, as is so much of downtown Lansing in the vicinity of the state capitol. In fact, it is difficult to reach downtown Lansing from the suburbs without traveling through some pretty shady neighborhoods.

Furthermore, the hour was pretty late. And the pretty lady wasn't a lady at all but a female cop all dolled up to look like a hooker.

According to United Press International, the Ingham County prosecutor's office says Varnum won't be charged with solicitation of a prostitute if he agrees to do volunteer work — like helping the Red Cross or the Michigan School for the Blind.

All of which means the state is on thin ice, and Varnum should never knuckle under to such nonsense.

In fact, the whole question of police entrapment and civil liberties is long overdue for legislative and judicial review.

From where I sit it appears that the police with their cutiepie decoys are only creating crimes where none previously existed.

The average guy driving through Lansing at night might never give a thought to soliciting anyone — until he is confronted with a painted woman standing under a street lamp, luring the farm boys — to paraphrase Carl Sandburg.

And all this, mind you, is taking place at a time when our jails and prisons are bursting at the seams and court dockets are jammed with cases involving legitimate crimes committed by honest-to-goodness criminals.

I cannot believe that the police in our major cities have so little to do that they must resort to the staging of so-called "victimless crimes" to earn their keep.

If this is the case, our metropolitan police departments are overstaffed.

I don't know what Rep. Varnum was doing in a sleazy neighborhood late at night. But in a free society it's nobody's business but his own.

End of sermon.

I UNDERSTAND the new juke box at the Weathervane Inn is chained to the wall — and wears a life jacket. The last juke box, you'll recall, couldn't swim.

THE GLORIOUS Fourth is now only a memory, but according to all observers it was a bell-ringer. Most motels had "no vacancy" signs posted all weekend and the crowds on Bridge Street were something to behold. Even bicycles had a hard time getting through.

Lights burned late at our two fudge shops and even then they had a sweet old time keeping up with the demand.

If the weekend is any indication of what's in store, the summer of '81 should set new records in all categories.

Of course, the dinner ship Bay Queen is adding to the fun. Attendance on the luncheon and dinner cruises over the weekend was excellent, with an estimated 275 showing up for the midnight "booze crooze" Saturday night.

THE BEAVER Island Boat Co., incidentally, is advertising the luncheon and dinner cruises on Detroit's TV Channel 50 — a move which should benefit our entire resort community. It's surprising to see pictures of the Bay Queen and scenes of Round Lake between episodes of M*A*S*H.

Board of Education meeting

and students and parents will be notified of the policy prior to the opening of school.

In adopting the policy, it was pointed out that the changes would give it more consistency.

A committee was named to check into the possibility of splitting a 150 by 227 foot lot the school district owns on May St. as the possible sites for two Building Trades houses.

The resignation of Douglas Kuebler as head of the custodial staff was read. A committee composed of Mrs. Wieland, Steven G. Smith and Mrs. Pearl will meet with Mr. Kuebler prior to acting on the resignation.

In other action, approval was given for dual enrollment with North Central Michigan College and Charlevoix High School for James Duke and William Horton. Both will be seniors when school opens in September.

The board also accepted the recommendation of the Governing Board of the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference that will admit Onaway and Sault Ste. Marie into the conference in the fall of 1982 for the purpose of participating in football only. Vane H. Smith who represents the district on the governing board said that this would increase the league to ten schools for this sport only and that Charlevoix would schedule Onaway instead of Kalkaska as one of its two pre-season games. Benzie Central would continue to be the second non-conference game. He said that Grayling would not play the Sob because of the distance involved.

He also said that under the new format, a trophy will be awarded to B teams and a second to Class C teams with the overall winner receiving the conference trophy. At the same time, the by-laws were changed to allow D teams to play in the league. This was done to allow St. Ignace to participate in the event its enrollment continues to decline.

Sandra Fassett, who teaches Vocational Business Education at the Charlevoix High School, was named Community Education Director. In this position, she will plan and administer adult education classes offered each school year to residents of the community. She has been a member of the faculty for 14 years.

Monday's was also the meeting at which a meeting schedule for the year is established and the depositories and signatories for various accounts named.

Regular meeting dates will remain the same as they have been in the past at 7:30 p.m. the first and third Mondays of each month at the high school. The public was again reminded that the meetings are open for anyone to attend who wishes.

The First State Bank was named as the depository for the Title I, hot lunch, old debt retirement, new debt retirement, central office internal, high school activities, middle school internal and culinary arts accounts. The Charlevoix County State Bank will be the depository for the public library's general fund and payroll accounts.

Signatories for the general fund, old and new debt retirement and Title I acounts will be the president, secretary and treasurer of the board; Vane H. Smith and Joanne Grubaugh for the high school activities account; David J. Smith and Virginia Woods for the Middle School internal account; Gordon W. VanWieren and Lillian Carr for the central office internal account; VanWieren, Judy Boss and Eileen Nunnemaker for the hot lunch account and Vincent Olach, Mrs. Boss, Mrs. Nunnemaker and Elizabeth Meadows for the culinary arts account.

The Charlevoix Adult Soccer Team logged their first victory of the season Sunday, a 5-1 win over Gaylord at Charlevoix Township's Shanahan Field.

Charlevoix dominated the game early but was not able to score until about midway through the first period. After numerous scoring opportunities wwere just missed by Charlevoix, a ball was misplayed by the Gaylord defense in front of their goal and dribbled in to give Charlevoix a 1-0 lead. Hagen Manker, the last Charlevoix player to touch the ball, was credited with the goal.

Manker went on to score again late in the game for a total of two goals for Charlevoix. Others scoring for the local team were Scott Shepherd, Tim Hiller and Tim Groves.

The lighting of a unity candle was a feature of the marriage ceremony uniting Kyle Renee Ditlow and David Jerome Cook on Saturday afternoon, June 27.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ditlow of Charlevoix, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. John Cook of Dearborn and the late Mr. Cook.

The Reverend David Yingling performed the double ring ceremony before 125 guests in the United Methodist Church of Charlevoix.

For the ceremony, the altar was graced with white chrysanthemums and pink carnations surrounding three tall tapered candles. Lighted candelabra were enhanced by white bows.

Mr. Ditlow escorted his daughter down the aisle and Mrs. Ditlow joined them at the altar as they gave the bride in marriage.

The bride wore a gown of white chiffon, fashioned in a garden length with petal hemline and spaghetti straps. It featured a matching blouson jacket with Alencon lace trimming the wedding ring collar, cuffs, and banding the waistline. Her headpiece was a wreath of silk flowers trimmed with satin streamers and crinkle-edged veiling, and she carried a cascading bouquet of pink roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. Craig Stewart, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. Mrs. Kip Ditlow, sister-in-law of the bride, and Mrs. Kevin McMunn served as bridesmaids. All three attendants wore blue print organza gowns, similar to that of the bride, styled with matching capes and petal hemlines. They each carried two long-stemmed pink roses with ferns and baby's breath.

Robert Karamen served as best man, while Marco Marchelletta and Daniel Onnietanski performed the double duties of groomsman and usher.

THE STARS OF THE GEM SCENE

Gemstones like people, have unique personalities. Some are dull and lifeless, others are bright and exciting. Some remain in the background, others are stars. And by stars, I mean literally, stars!

Some gem materials have an internal structure that causes a star to appear on the surface. Star ruby and star sapphire are the best known of these. They contain numerous, needle like inclusions which intersect at specific angles. Light reflects off these inclusions in such a way that a star seems to float over the gemstone when the light source, the stone, or the beholder moves.

In order for the phenomenon to occur, however, the stone must be cut en cabochon in a dome shape rather than be faceted. The laws of physics are the governing factors here.

Stars and occur in a number of others gems such as quartz and garnet. Sometimes the stars are strong, sometimes not, sometimes they hobble on a weak leg or two, sometimes there's more than one star visible in a single stone. It all depends on the unique internal characteristics of the gem and the nature and power of the light source with which it is interacting.

As American Gem Society jewelers, we at Reusch's have studied the science of gemology and try to keep up on the latest trends and developments in the industry. We hope you'll come to us for guidance when a gem purchase is in your stars.

Charlevoix Outdoors...

Lamprey war has local front

...by Burford

Charlevoix and surrounding environs are known far and wide for their hospitality to non-native visitors during the tourist seasons. One visitor that first arrived in the 1930s, however, sod has been showing up regularly ever since has long ago outworn its welcome.

Most people, in fact, wish the darn things never had come in the first place.

Sea lampreys could well be the most dreaded creatures ever to inhabit the Great Lakes, save the legendary giant serpents of Indian lore. They have absolutely no redeeming qualities and the efforts to curb them in the lakes have been massive. This summer those efforts will be continued locally on the Boyne and Jordan Rivers.

From the time that it first gained access to Lake Erie in 1829 when the completion of the Welland Canal allowed it to circumvent Niagara Falls, this Atlantic Ocean native had gradually established itself as the Great Lakes fishery's public enemy number one.

By the 1950s its impact on both the commercial and sport fisheries of the lakes was clearly evident. Lake trout were all but wiped out, whitefish were becoming scarce and claco were declining quickly. Only the realization by Great Lakes states and neighboring Canadian provinces that cooperation was the key prevented the lamprey from completely decimating crucial fish populations in the lakes.

The formation in 1955 of the Great Lakes Fishery Commission made possible a strong, international effort to control the sea lamprey. From 1958 through 1980, the commission funneled over $54 million to various agencies for lamprey control.

These two full grown specimens show that the sea lamprey grows to considerable size in its adult life span of approximately three years. Also noticeable are the rasp-like teeth in the lampreys' round mouths which can gradually bore through a fish's scales once attached.

Countless studies have been done on this parasitic creature with an eel-shaped body and mouth like a rasp which bores its way through a fish's skin to feed on body fluids. From these studies have come a variety of schemes, from chemical poisoning to electric shock, to curtail its proliferation. The control efforts have been concentrated on tributaries to the Great Lakes where the lamprey breed and where they can be more easily isolated.

This summer the battle is being waged on a nearby front. The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS) is currently working out of mobile laboratories on the Boyne and Jordan Rivers in Charlevoix County to study the extent of lamprey breeding at those locations and prevent the lamprey larvae from making it to the lake.

This is the seventh time these rivers have been treated, the last time being in 1977.

Canoeists, fishermen or swimmers on the Boyne or Jordan who notice a bright green substance flowing downriver should not be alarmed; it is fluorescein dye necessary to study flow patterns in the rivers. It is nontoxic to people, fish and wildlife. Before the actual treatment is applied, such work as stream velocity and volume measurement, water chemistries, and bioassays is conducted.

The data gleaned from these initial studies will then determine the amount and duration of the lampricide treatment.

The lampricide to be used is called TFM and was one of about 8,000 chemicals tested in the 1950s. It was judged to be the most effective along with Bayer 73 with which it is sometimes used in combination. The lampricide kills lampreys in the larval stage, a three to 14 year period during which the larvae are embedded in soft sediment on stream bottoms.

To get the larvae out from the sediment, portable electric devices are usually used to shock them out into the water. TFM is then pumped into the water in carefully measured amounts until further tests show that the larvae have been eliminated.

Despite its apparent effectiveness so far, scientists are not all sold on the use of lampricide as the only answer to lamprey control. Some cite the dependence on TFM as not a good situation in light of the current public attitude toward the use of any chemicals in wild areas.

Thus experiments continue on alternative control methods, such as have been used on other pest species. One method would involve catching and sterilizing male lampreys then releasing them back into spawning streams. Naturally, the spawning success would be greatly decreased.

Whatever the method, one thing that everyone agrees on is that lamprey control is crucial to the future of the Great Lakes fishery. Without it, say goodbye to a major part of the Charlevoix area economy; and that of the entire Great Lakes region.

4-H babysitting workshop graduates 26 certified sitters

Twenty-six Charlevoix area young people between the ages of ten and 16 completed ten hours of instruction in various phases of the business of babysitting on Thursday, June 25. Ten additional youths attended either three or four of the five sessions held in the basement rooms of the Charlevoix Public Library.

The two and a half day workshop was sponsored by the Charlevoix County 4-H, an arm of the Cooperative Extension Service.

Characteristics of a good babysitter and self-esteem for children was covered Tuesday morning by 4-H program assistant Leah Green. Participants also saw a slide tape "When Something Goes Right" and did paired exercises in self-esteem. That afternoon the group adjourned to the Charlevoix Middle School home economics room for instruction by a guest, Betty Horrocks, area 4-H agent, in nutrition, some work with food cards and an hour of preparing and tasting snacks that were both nutritious and suitable for children to help prepare.

The Wednesday morning session was devoted to discussion and display of toys, both purchased and homemade from household items. The group also looked critically at various childrens' books and ways they could be implemented by a babysitter. The group was visited by a guest, Dee Hoadley, R.N., in the afternoon. Mrs. Hoadly explained hygiene, the care of minor injuries, signs and care of illness and answered many questions on related subjects. She also gave instruction on the proper use and reading of a thermometer.

At the last meeting on Thursday, two visitors representing the Charlevoix Nursery School were present. Nursery president Joan Curtis and Mary Lou Norton presented their views on babysitting responsibilities, basic child care, general sitting rules and a wealth of useful hints for the prospective babysitters.

Following completion of instruction everyone enjoyed a picnic and some swimming at the Ferry Ave. beach. Thanks were extended by course organizers to all guest instructors and the attendants.

Charlevoix County 4-H is contemplating the sponsorship of CPR training, Red Cross First Aid training, infant care and a Games for Children class during the coming school year. Those interested are asked to call the Cooperative Extension Office in Boyne City at 582-6232.

Those who received certification for attending the entire babysitting workshop were Kim Hand, Kay Stoneham, Allison Hall, Laura Hall, Kendall Balch, Eric Green, Jennifer Bonar, Michelle Siebert, Cheryl Drewanz, Heather Harrod, Shannon Harrod, Michelle Crain, Paula Harvey, Lisa Harvey, Heather Livingston, Tina Creswell, Lori Healey, Christin Cunningham, Jill Austin, Nickie Stimson, Chris Brown, Michelle Mailloux, Chaya Moore, Amy McKinney, Becky Smith and Becky Christensen.

Bark-Buster 5 Horse

Bark-Buster Auto-Drive

See the new auger-type wood splitters

BARK-BUSTER...the fastest, most efficient, most economical way to split logs.

It's a whole new concept in wood splitting...splitting from the side with an auger instead of from the end with a wedge. Bark-Buster bores through the toughest logs...log after log in just seconds. And it's about half the price of cumbersome hydraulic wood splitters. Choose from three models: PTO — operated by tractor power take-off; 5-Horse — with 5 hp Briggs and Stratton engine; and the unique new Auto-Drive — powered by the drive wheel of a truck or car without removing the wheel.

Don't spend hours and hours doing back-breaking work. Discover the ease and speed of Bark-Buster...America's No. 1 auger-type wood splitters.
